Mooney To Know His Fate During Next Week

GOVERNOR TO CONFER OVER PARDON PLEA

Conference Scheduled For Today With Carnahan Is Put Over Until Monday

CHANCES ARE SLIM

Supreme Court Ruling In Billings Case Probably To Have Bearing

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—(UP)—A conference between Governor C. C. Young and Lieut. Governor H. L. Carnahan in regard to the action to be taken in the application for parole of Tom Mooney may be postponed until Monday, it was said at the governor's office today.
The meeting between the governor and Carnahan, who is head of the state pardon board, was scheduled for this afternoon but it was learned that Carnahan possibly would not arrive here before tonight.
The governor announced that his decision on Mooney, now serving a life term for the San Francisco preparedness day bombing in 1916, would not be made until sometime next week. The meeting with the lieutenant governor is a preliminary to the decision.
Since Mooney has only one conviction against him the governor could act separately in his case but previous indications by the state's chief executive were that the supreme court's decision in the Billings case would influence him also in the Mooney case.
Billings' fate was sealed by the state supreme court in refusing to recommend that the governor act on his application. Mooney, convicted with Billings of murder in connection with the 1916 preparedness day bombing in San Francisco, still may be pardoned by the governor under the law.
Guided By Court
Young, however, has stated he would be guided in the Mooney case largely by the court's action on Billings.
Billings, a "two time loser," was allowed by law to seek a pardon only through the supreme court, which recommended it for denial to the governor. Mooney, serving his first term, may appeal directly to the governor.

ENDURANCE FLIERS REST IN BED AFTER BREAKING RECORD

PRESIDENT MAY TAKE STUMP ON TARIFF ISSUES

May Endeavor to Aid Those Who Stood With Him in Last 16 Months

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(UP)—Political issues grew out of the session of congress which closed Thursday night.
The dearth of clear cut debating inter-party fights over the tariff and the defeated debenture plan of mind relief. Both are fresh in the minds of congressmen who are arriving home today to make ready for their summer primaries and the November election campaigns.
On one hand the Republicans, claiming the Smoot-Hawley tariff act as the major accomplishment of the session, are ready to present this legislation to their constituents as one reason for their selection.
Plan Campaign
Democrats and independent Republicans from the farming regions, on the other hand, are openly basing their campaigns upon the two years fight they waged in behalf of lower industrial rates and higher farm rates, as well as upon their unsuccessful attempt to establish the debenture.
The tariff is an historic Democratic issue, but it has been poor meat for hungry voters since the war. The minority party leaders are agreed, however, that their coming congressional campaigns should be fought around this ancient issue. Their hopes are so high that many of their leaders here are publicly and privately forecasting the election of a Democratic house in the fall.
Big Accomplishments
The secondary issues developed from the Republicans revolve around the $161,000,000 temporary reduction, the veterans' pension bills, and the London naval treaty. The first two represent definite accomplishments, while the treaty is to be considered by the senate beginning Monday.
"We stood with the president," can be the house slogan as well as

L. A. Gasoline Prices Drop To New Level

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—(UP)—With the exception of the production of one independent company, gasoline continued to be sold lower today.
MacMillan Petroleum company still posted a 19 1/2 cent per gallon price, the standard before the start of the recent war, but the fuel of all other oil companies was sold at dropping rates.
Stations were selling the gas of the major companies at from 12 1/2 to 14 1/2 cents a gallon while independent products went for as low as 9 1/2 cents a gallon.

Kingsford-Smith and Crew Land In Oakland After Trip From Utah

OAKLAND, Calif., July 5.—(UP)—The internationally famous monoplane Southern Cross has reached the end of the trail. While its skipper, Major Kingsford-Smith, who was made wing commander of the Australian army in recognition of his trans-Atlantic flight, gained a few hours of rest here today, the Southern Cross was at the airport from which the flight around the world was started on May 31, 1931.
Major Charles Kingsford-Smith brought the old tri-motored Pinner plane back to Oakland airport yesterday afternoon, landing at 3:27 p. m., after a transcontinental journey which followed the landing in New York from Port Marnock, Ireland.

HOOVER CALLS G. O. P. LEADERS TO CONFERENCE

Will Discuss Plans to Remove Claudius Huston As Chairman

ORANGE, Va., July 5.—(UP)—President Hoover has summoned several Republican senatorial leaders to his Rapidan camp for the week end, presumably for a discussion, principally, of measures to remove Claudius Huston as chairman of the Republican national committee.
Senator Fess, Ohio, who has been mentioned recently as a possible successor of Huston, arrived at the camp early today from the capital, and Republican Floor Leader Watson, Assistant Leader McNary, and Senator Walcott, Connecticut, were expected later.
Rumors of Huston's imminent removal from direction of the national committee have been flying thick and fast about the capital, but the Tennesseean, former close friend and associate of Mr. Hoover, has given no signs that he intends to quit his post, despite the criticism of him ever since the senate lobby investigation.
When Huston called a meeting here of officers of the national committee and chairmen of the senatorial and congressional campaign committees, the inference was drawn in some quarters that he intended to announce his resignation.
He has now postponed the meeting from Monday until next Thursday, and it is reported he does not intend to resign, but to discuss plans for the coming campaign.
The president, it is understood, wants to go over the whole matter thoroughly with his senate leaders in the seclusion of his summer camp, and some definite plan of action is expected to result from the conferences.
The president also is expected to urge his senate leaders to seek ratification of the London naval treaty, which will come before the senate in special session beginning Monday, as early as possible. Opponents of the treaty, it is believed, will attempt to delay ratification with the hope that it will be impossible to hold a working quorum of the senate here very long.
The president and Mrs. Hoover spent a quiet Fourth of July in the cool of the mountain camp with a number of friends. The president went for a long horseback ride today over the mountain trails. He plans to return to the capital tomorrow afternoon or evening.

Plane Forced Down Due To Oil Leakage

Hunter Boys Land at 6 p. m. July 4th After 23 Days In Airplane

CHICAGO, July 5.—(UP)—The Hunter brothers, 553 hours of continuous flying behind them, revealed today in the luxury of a hotel pent house, sleeping in a real bed for the first time in 23 days, eating breakfast in bed and preparing for a debut on the stage.
Irene Hunter, the sister who cooked their meals while they circled to a new endurance refueling airplane record over Sky Harbor airport, was an hour routing her brothers from "the best beds in town" this morning.
John and Kenneth, who turned to flying when plowing lacked the romance they sought, slept only about nine hours after their record breaking flight. They were kept up to 1 a. m. listening to speeches of congratulations, nodding in their chairs as 50 speakers lauded the flight. When their turn came they spoke only a few words.
To Tell Story
Later this afternoon they are to tell their experiences from the stage of the Palace theater. Both Kenneth, just turned 21, and John, 27, were somewhat apprehensive about their first stage appearance.
Mrs. Ida Hunter, mother of the fliers who stayed at Sky Harbor during the last days of the flight, also took a well-earned rest.
"I ate breakfast in bed this morning for the first time in my life," the farm woman from Sparta, Ill., told reporters with pride.
Today at the insecure pinnacle of aviation's fame, stood John and Kenneth Hunter, two exhausted Sparta, Ill., farmer boys who drove their Stinson-Detroit monoplane around and around over Sky Harbor airport and marked after their names, heretofore unknown an all time record for continuous flight.
It was the longest time humans have remained in the air, defying gravity, since the desire to fly was born in the dawn man as he gazed longingly at soaring pre-historic birds.
The Hunter brothers landed their wabbling monoplane City of Chicago at 6:20:30, C. D. T., last night, when an oil line became clogged and stopped the flight that seemingly would go on indefinitely.
The fame that came to John and Kenneth as they stepped from the oil soaked cabin of the airplane that had been their home for more than 23 days may be fleeting. Already Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien, from whom they wrested the record, have announced an attempt to regain their lost laurels within a week. Another threat to the farmer miner aviators came from Indianapolis, where Lieutenant Genaro

Planes Of Two Princes In Race For Cup

HANWORTH AIR PARK, LONDON, July 5.—(UP)—Planes belonging to the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, took off today with 88 other aircraft in the race for the king's cup.
The race started punctually at 7 a. m. when W. H. Sutcliffe, piloting a Cirrus Moth, took off in perfect flying weather.
Squadron Leader D. S. Don, who has frequently piloted the prince's special air journey, took off at 10 a. m. in the Prince of Wales' entry, a Hawker Tomtit biplane which has been given the number 33.
Prince George's machine, No. 74, is a speedy cabin monoplane named the D. H. Hawk Moth. The pilot is Flight Lieutenant E. H. Fielden, who is personal pilot to the Prince of Wales.

SENATE TO MEET AGAIN ON MONDAY

Favorable Action on London Treaty Is Predicted By Hoover's Supporters

SEE SHORT SESSION

Problem of Maintaining a Quorum During Present Hot Weather Looming

WASHINGTON, July 5.—(UP)—Administration leaders were confident today of favorable senate action on the London treaty which is to be considered in a special session beginning Monday.
Letters from all parts of the country are on file at the state department expressing approval of Secretary Stimson's radio speech in behalf of the treaty and describing popular opinion in various localities as favorable to the pact.
Calls Session
President Hoover fulfilled his long announced purpose of convening the senate to consider the treaty this summer when he issued a formal call Friday morning, only 12 hours after the regular session adjourned.
"Public interest requires that the senate of the United States be convened at 12 o'clock on the 7th day of July next to receive such communications as may be made by the executive and in particular to consider and determine whether the advice and consent of the senate shall be given to the ratification of a treaty for the limitation and reduction of armament signed at London on April 22, 1930."
His weather and the problem of maintaining a senate quorum so near primary election time in many states is considered a more serious obstacle to ratification than the adverse criticism of the treaty by some senators.
Stimson Confident
Stimson is confident the objections stated by Senator Johnson, Republican, California, and others in the senate have been adequately answered and that a vast majority of American citizens support the administration in its treaty fight.
A story being told in Washington today is that at the United States chamber of commerce meeting at which that body voted to support the treaty only two anti-treaty speeches were made, one by a director from Indiana and another by a Californian. And it was remarked that these states have contributed two of the most active opposition senators, Johnson and Arthur Robinson.

STOLEN PLANE CARRIES THREE IN DEATH FALL

Plunges Into San Francisco Bay—Bodies Are Still Being Sought

LAMEDA, Calif., July 5.—(UP)—A search was being made today of San Francisco bay to find the bodies of two or three unknown persons who yesterday made a mysterious plunge into an airplane into the waters opposite the Alameda airport.
The plane belonging to three members of the Alameda Flying club was kept at the local airport. During the holiday rush the unknown aviators climbed into the machine after starting the motor and rushed out of the hangar.
The plane rose in an unsteady line to an altitude of about 1000 feet and zoomed out across the bay. Spectators who sensed that something was wrong were horrified to see the craft suddenly waver and plunge. With the motor still roaring the plane cleaved the surface amid a spray of foam.
What caused the machine to dive was not known. Some of the watchers said they saw a body fall from the hurtling mass just before it struck the water.
The three owners of the plane, William Lodge, Fred Stackman and Ray Bucklen, were unable to solve the identity of the persons who had borrowed the plane. A checkup of acquaintances failed to reveal anyone missing. It was believed by airport officials that the desire for a "joy ride" rather than theft was the motive behind the unfortunate venture.
Until a late hour last night the search continued, powerful search lights being used to illuminate the waters. A part of the plane was discovered washed ashore near the airport.
Among the searchers was Ernie Smith, famous San Francisco-Hawall flyer.

'DREAM HOUSE' IS INVOLVED IN SUIT

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—(UP)—A "dream house" here was the prize for which a young woman engaged in legal battle today with a wealthy and elderly owner of Mexican and Spanish metal mines.
Miss Iris Ashton, the woman, claimed Walter J. Browning wrote her a letter from Madrid saying he had made the last payment on the $17,000 "dream house" and concluded, "you will have a home no one can take from you."
Browning replied that title to the house was to have been held in trust for him by Miss Ashton's parents.

ASKS REPRIEVE FOR CONVICTED KILLER

DENVER, Colo., July 5.—(UP)—A plea for a reprieve for Ralph Fleagle, leader of the Lamar bank bandit gang, was presented today to Governor W. H. Adams by Thomas L. Purcell, Colorado Springs attorney.
Purcell asked the governor to order the execution delayed until a formal petition can be prepared. Fleagle is scheduled to be hanged at the state penitentiary at Canon City during the week starting at 12:01 a. m. Sunday and ending at midnight next Saturday night.

Balloons Off On DISTANCE FLIGHTS

HOUSTON, Tex., July 5.—(UP)—Fifteen balloons, each carrying a pilot and his aide, floated over north central Texas today in quest of new distance records in the annual national balloon races.
The gas bags, unleashed by Bell-air speedway here between 6:05 and 7:30 p. m. yesterday, spent the night cruising northward at a height of approximately 2000 feet, the altitude calculated to catch the forceful winds blowing off the Gulf of Mexico. All entrants were instructed to communicate with officials here as soon as they landed.
The balloons, according to reports received here, were believed to be traveling between 12 and 15 miles an hour. The pilot balloon, manned by Sgt. Joe Murray, U. S. army, and Harry Weaver, chairman of the arrangements committee, landed 28 miles north of here after staying in the air one hour and 45 minutes.

RAILROAD TRACKS REMOVED BY REBELS

SHANGHAI, July 5.—(UP)—Rebel guerrillas today bombed the Shanghai-Nanking railway above Changchow and destroyed a large section of tracks. Workmen returning home discovered the torn up tracks and flagged the Shanghai bound night express in time to avert a disaster. Traffic over the lines was delayed for over five hours.

16 LOSE LIVES AS ROWBOAT CAPSIZES

MOSCOW, July 5.—(UP)—Sixteen persons were drowned in the Black sea today when a rowboat in which they were attempting to reach shore from a grounded excursion boat capsized.
The accident occurred near Olvia, on the Crimean coast. The 45 persons aboard the steamer Sebastopol clambered aboard the row boat when the vessel grounded on a sandbank, then began rowing toward shore but the boat overturned.

$20,000 BLAZE WIPES OUT MANY LA JOLLA BUILDINGS

Fire, starting from a firecracker, carelessly tossed on the roof of a pool hall owned by Evaristo Roales, wiped out the entire business block of La Jolla, small Mexican settlement, located one mile south of Placentia at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The loss was set at $20,000.
A pool hall, two dance halls, a grocery store and six dwellings were destroyed by the flames which swept the town almost unopposed, due to the fact that there is no water in the town.
The entire squad of deputy sheriffs, headed by Sheriff Sam Jernigan, rushed to La Jolla when the report of the fire was received here and did what they could in the way of saving household goods and equipment, but little was saved.
Jernigan requested that the Anaheim Union Water company turn water into an irrigation ditch that runs down to the town from the water company's plant, three quarters of a mile away, and after some delay the water reached the flaming town, and the fires were extinguished.
The Placentia fire department was present and did what it could, but was handicapped by the lack of water.
One of the dance halls was owned by Carl Simmons, the other by J. Valencia, who also was the owner of the grocery store that was destroyed. A few groceries were saved.
The six houses destroyed were occupied by Mexican families many of whom were not present at the time of the fire.
A. L. Steward, deputy sheriff was injured during the fighting of the deputies in the burning houses and was taken to the Orange county hospital where he was given first aid treatment. He was not badly hurt.

Alleged Hit And Run Driver Faces Two Charges

FAILS TO STOP AFTER HITTING THREE. REPORT

Charged with driving while under the influence of liquor and with failure to stop and render aid after an accident, both felony charges, Ralph Stull, 29, of 132 North Center street, Orange, today was in the county jail following arraignment before Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison. Bail of $1000 on both charges was asked and the preliminary examination has been set for July 8.

Stull was reported as the driver of a sedan which, at 9:30 o'clock last night, ran down three persons, at Newport Beach, near the entrance to Lido Isle property, and then dashed off without stopping to aid.

The injured persons were Polly Trickey, 17, and her sister, Virginia Trickey, 15, of 726 South Van Ness avenue, Santa Ana, and John Estes, also of Santa Ana. None of the trio was seriously hurt, it was reported, and all were resting well at their homes this morning.

Witnesses to the accident, which occurred on a crowded thoroughfare, took the number of the offending car, and Stull was arrested two hours later when he drove his machine into the yard at his home in Orange, by State Traffic Officers Buer and Vaughn, who in the meantime had learned the name of the owner of the machine through the license number obtained.

The two girls hurt had just completed playing miniature golf and were crossing the street, when they were struck by the car.

One of the girls was thrown all the way back, over a fence, onto the golf course. The other girl was hurled 20 feet by the machine, it was reported.

Three persons were reported injured at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon when automobiles driven by Mrs. E. T. Storker and Maurice Price, of Midway City, collided at Brookhurst and Katella roads.

Mr. and Mrs. Price and Buck Justice, who was riding in the Price machine, were taken to the Garden Grove hospital, where they were given medical treatment. No one in the other car was reported injured.

GOVERNOR TO CONFER OVER PARDON PLEA

Six of the seven supreme court justices concurred in the opinion. The seventh, W. H. Langdon, said the court opinion was so overwhelmingly against him he saw no reason to state his basis for dissenting.

A majority report signed by Chief Justice William H. Waste and Associate Justices Emmet Seal, John E. Richards and Jesse W. Curtis, held in effect that if Billings was not guilty of the bombing he was and had failed to reveal this knowledge. Furthermore, they held, Billings' pardon application made no effort to establish his innocence in the crime but sought merely to show irregularities in the manner in which he was convicted.

"We are not sufficiently convinced of his innocence to recommend that your excellency act on his appeal," the court's message read.

Two other reports concurring in the adverse report, but arriving at the decision by different methods, were presented by Associate Justices John W. Shenk and John W. Preston.

Receives News
Billings received the news calmly from Warden Court of Folsom prison.

"I didn't expect the court to act and so I am not disappointed," he said. "It looks like you are going to have to take care of me for a while longer, doesn't it?"

Rena Mooney, wife of Tom Mooney, sobbed hysterically when she read the report and realized its possible effect on her husband's application. She had anticipated greeting him as a free man the fourth of July, the day after their wedding anniversary.

Both men claimed they were "railroaded and framed" into prison. Their case attracted widespread attention, and among their supporters has been Judge Franklin W. Griffin, who sentenced them. He later announced that prosecution evidence had been shown to be perjured, in his opinion, and approved their pleas for release.

The bombing, which claimed 10 lives and injured 40, took place while the parade was proceeding along Market street. Mooney and Billings were arrested shortly afterward and tried twice on the murder charges. Billings was sentenced to life imprisonment and Mooney was sentenced to hang. Governor William D. Stephens commuted Mooney's sentence to life imprisonment.

PRESIDENT MAY TAKE STUMP ON TARIFF ISSUES

that of the less successful administration group in the senate. "Debt and tariff" is the Democratic slogan favored by one of the wagish house leaders. The campaign debate will naturally center around the name of President Hoover, and there have been indications at the White House that he himself may take the stump in a few weeks to "educate the public" to the accomplishment of his first year and a half in office.

Orders were given to the Hunters to taxi the plane to the hangar and, with much difficulty, police cleared a lane for its passage. Many persons suffered slight injuries in the mob demonstration, but the injuries were forgotten in the excitement of the landing.

John, the youngest of the Hunters, was the first to emerge from the ship. He was smeared with oil from head to foot, was hollow-eyed and a bit unsteady, and a cut over his eye showed distinctly. The cut was received several days ago when an oil can fell on him while he was sleeping in the tiny cabin of the plane.

Wash Oil Dirt
Inside the hangar, the boys were given an opportunity to wash away some of the three weeks' accumulation of grease and dirt, then they gave short radio talks and when it became possible to get them through the crowd they were taken to a downtown hotel to get some much needed rest.

"That's one thing I'll never try again," said Kenneth, wearily, as he looked into the grimy cabin that had been his home so long. The boys said they had not intended to come down until this afternoon but that they were unable to keep the oil lines clear any longer and so were forced to land. The ship, they believed, still was good for many more hours, but the minor troubles had become so numerous that they could not stand the grind any longer.

The fliers themselves were not the only ones of the family who were glad the record smashing flight had ended. Mrs. Ida Hunter, their mother, had been wishing for several days they would come down and so had Irene, their school teacher sister, who supervised the cooking of all their meals up until the last day.

Probably the proudest woman in the world, Mrs. Hunter also had been one of the most worried, fearing, she said, that her boys were hurting themselves by staying up too long. Irene, too, was almost exhausted from the long grind.

Firecrackers Hurt Two Orange Boys

Two persons were treated at the Orange county hospital on July 4 for injuries received from exploding firecrackers used to celebrate the day. Neither was seriously hurt.

Kenneth Hill, 19, of Orange, suffered burns on the face and arms, and Grant Beck, 21, also of Orange, was burned on the neck and ears when a firecracker thrown at him struck him on the back, it was reported.

Fireworks Cause Of Man's Arrest

Although police were called out no less than 50 times to stop persons from firing fireworks inside the city limits, in violation of the city ordinance, only one arrest was made for the offense, police records revealed today.

Archie E. Best, of 501 Cypress street, was arrested yesterday by Chief of Police L. C. Rogers, for shooting fireworks from a taxicab office on Main street.

Best was told to appear in police court today on the charge.

rescued from a mud flat near Port George mission when he had been missing 14 days on a flight from Sydney, Australia, to London.

Kingsford-Smith expects to take the Southern Cross over the bay to San Francisco's municipal airport in a day or so, he said, and plans to fly it to Santa Maria Tuesday. At Santa Maria he will turn the plane over to G. Allen who backed the flight of the Southern Cross from the Pacific coast to Australia.

"I'll park it with Hancock for a while," he said. "You see I can't afford to take it back to Australia."

He will leave California within the next two weeks and go to New York. Then he will sail for Australia by way of England and in the latter part of September, the exact date to be set, he will be married to Miss Mary Powell.

Kingsford-Smith was asked what he thought the odds for success were when he left here.

Makes Statement
"If we had not thought the odds were on success we should not have started," he replied, and continued, "but at that time we did not know we should make a complete circle around the world."

In response to a question as to his opinion of the greatest accomplishment of the entire flight, he responded:

"Navigation of the Pacific. It was by old methods."

Then he was asked to tell what part of the trip had been the most dangerous.

"A comparatively short flight from Sydney, Australia, to New Zealand was the worst," he responded. "We encountered a severe lightning storm and were fortunate to get through."

Kingsford-Smith brought to the Pacific coast with him the three members of his crew on the flight from Ireland, Captain John P. Saul, M. E. Van Dyk and J. W. Sannago. They will enjoy a sight-seeing tour of the United States for several weeks.

MISSION CITY RACES ATTRACT 2000 PERSONS

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, July 5.—It is estimated that over 2000 people attended the marathon races held in this place July 4. So successful was the second annual event that plans are forming to make a permanent organization for the holding of the races each year.

Events were given as scheduled with little or no delay and were interesting and successful, with much keen competition, and all contestants in fine condition.

The main event of the day, the 440-yard relay race, between teams composed of runners representing Laguna Beach, San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano, was won by Capistrano, with Laguna Beach a close second. The local team was composed of Oliveras, Landell, Stroheim and Daneri. The winners' time was 48 seconds.

The musical chair event proved the most spirited contest held. A number of exceptionally fine horses, well trained for the stunt, a snappy band, and some fine riders contributed to the excitement.

The stake race for horsemen was won by Charles Pates, a cow boy from the O'Neill ranch, who was able to turn his horse around much faster than his competitors. The musical chair event was won by Hugo Forster from a field of ten starters.

Manriquez and Charlie Belardes won first honors in the relay race for men, around the mission wall, with Paul Lobo and Joe Soto close seconds.

Henry Watenberg won the one-mile race for high school boys in 5 minutes and 19 seconds, and Joquin Errecarte took second money.

The boys sack race caused much excitement, and was won by Jerome Oliveras, with M. Villanueva second, and Freddie Hunn, third. Charlie Belardes won the four-mile marathon, covering the distance in a few seconds over 21 minutes, while closely crowded by D. Conti, who won second place. Joe Yerbe carried off third.

The 100-yard dash for girls was won by Miss L. Erickson, of San Clemente. Second place went to Miss E. Nettles, and third to Miss R. Soto, both of San Juan.

The big dance in the evening climaxed a day of entertainment, attracting a large crowd. Winners were awarded prizes during the dance.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

You wish that you might escape from the long and responsible ahead of you; but you can not. You have to go on living even though it all seems as footless and meaningless now. Comb the wreckage for bits of precious experience and carry them along to lend color and strength to whatever is ahead. Make the best start you can even though you can not see more than a single step.

There are things for you to do which will reveal themselves to be worth the best that is in you. Fresh courage will come as you go bravely on. Light will break through the thinning clouds as you proceed. The nearness of your best-beloved will become increasingly real to you and you will learn to know that one rejoices because you are true to

PICNIC GROUPS ENJOY OUTINGS ON OPEN SAND

Many thousands of people spent the Fourth of July at Orange county beaches. From Sunset Beach to San Clemente thousands of open and closed tents stretched like an army encampment side by side with gay ropes touching, and in many places there were double and triple rows of tents. Only the sections of the beach fenced and guarded were free from the tents of campers.

A great many more people sought the open beaches than accepted the hospitality of the beach cities. With elaborate programs of varied characters, the cities failed to rival the open stretches of sand, where people could camp and play beside the sea.

Defying posted signs, warning signs and state laws, the Fourth of July crowds took possession of the open beaches, pitched their tents, built camp fires and enjoyed their Fourth of July in their own way, passing up programs of entertainment, beach playgrounds, and protection of life guards and all the frills and furbelows in favor of the freedom of the natural beach and the wild waves.

This does not mean that all the Fourth of July crowds passed up the cities and their programs. There were more on the open beaches away from the cities, but there were thousands at the cities attending the programs and enjoying the conveniences of the municipal beach playgrounds. Huntington Beach is estimated to have entertained 50,000 to 75,000 at the varied program given there. The day passed with no mishaps or serious traffic accident and the police reported not an arrest during the day, and no emergency or accident calls.

Band concerts, vaudeville, a rodeo, an athletic program on the beach, fireworks at night and the American Legion dance at night, completed the entertainment program in Huntington Beach.

Newport Beach and Balboa were thronged throughout the day with an army of pleasure seekers. Not only the ocean front but also the strips of beach along the bay were filled to capacity with bathers. Boating on the bay was a popular diversion and the water was dotted with canoes, rowboats, launches and speed boats.

ARRANGE SERVICES FOR MRS. HARRISON

FULLERTON, July 5.—Funeral services for Mrs. Nettie Harrison, 74, who passed away Friday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. W. H. Morgan, will be held at the McAulay and Suters parlors in Fullerton Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Harrison had been a resident of Fullerton for the past 25 years. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Bertha Henderson, of Big Bear; Mrs. Ethel Newton, of San Diego; and Mrs. Morgan, and one son, Allen Goss, of Laguna Beach.

Court Notes

Deputy District Attorney William Menton today was making investigation of allegations by Hugh McGuire, of Fullerton, that Ophelia Montgomery substituted for his daughter in applying for a marriage license here under which his daughter, Hassel McGuire, was married last Monday to Frank Stratton, of Fullerton. The ceremony was performed by Kenneth Morrison, justice of the peace. The wedded couple is believed to be some place in Texas.

Ether Nieblas today filed suit for divorce from Ernest Nieblas, alleging desertion. They married and separated on July 1, 1927, according to allegations in the complaint.

Frank Vejar was awarded $500 damages by a jury in Judge G. K. Scovel's court hearing testimony in his suit against Calista Mayhugh company for $30,000 damages for personal injuries resulting from an auto accident on the state highway between Santa Ana and Anaheim in May of last year. Vejar was employed at the time by the Griffith company, paving contractors.

Judge G. K. Scovel has issued an interlocutory decree of divorce to Cecelia H. Schultz, severing matrimonial ties that bound her to James W. Schultz. The couple married in 1907 and Schultz deserted Mrs. Schultz at Laguna Beach on Dec. 28, 1927, it was alleged in her complaint.

Blanche Frick, widow of J. L. Frick, today had filed suit against Clayton E. McKeeth, et al, for $76,082.60, alleging that negligence on the part of defendant was responsible for the death of her husband. Frick was a passenger in a car driven by Roy W. Colyer when a machine driven by McKeeth and the Colyer auto collided at the intersection of Seventeenth and Orange streets, Costa Mesa, April 12, 1920.

DEATH THREAT IS REPORTED BY PUBLIC BEACH CHAMPION

Alfred E. Guy, leader of a group of men at Dana Point fighting for preservation of beach frontages at Dana Point and other points on the Orange county shore line, has received one letter and many anonymous calls threatening his life if he does not cease his active fight, according to a declaration by Guy here today.

At the same time, Guy asserted that S. H. Woodruff, manager of the Dana Point syndicate, yesterday personally ordered persons off the road leading from the bluffs to the beach below.

Whether the road is private or public property is a question that is now being debated as between the syndicate and District Attorney Z. B. West. West is of the opinion that the public has acquired, by long usage, at least a 10-foot strip of the road. The district attorney now is negotiating with the syndicate for a free deed to 10 feet.

Guy declared today that enemies had gone so far as to report him to federal authorities as the leader of a bootleg gang, and to declare that his principal concern in maintaining the road to the beach is so that his "gang" would have access to the beach for loading onto trucks contraband liquor unloaded from boats.

Guy declared today that a suit filed Thursday against his wife, formerly Anna G. Walters, to dispossess her of certain property at the point, was nothing more than spite work.

ALLEGED THIEF CAPTURED NEAR MAGHELI HOME

Reported to have been "caught in the act" of burglarizing the home of Jess Magheli, at Acacia and Orangethorpe avenues at 6 o'clock last night, a man giving the name of Laure Ahumada, 21, of Corona, was captured in an orange grove, a few feet from the house, by the owner of the house and his brother, Fred Magheli.

The man was turned over to Fullerton police officers and Sheriff Sam Jernigan and Deputy Jess Buckles returned the prisoner to the county jail here last night.

In Justice Kenneth Morrison's court this morning Ahumada was arraigned on a burglary charge, and his preliminary examination was set for Tuesday morning. Bail of $3000 was demanded.

At the time of the arrest, the youth is said to have had his pockets filled with jewels and trinkets taken from the Magheli home. He also had drunk a quantity of perfume and rubbing alcohol, officers said, and was deathly sick, when discovered near the house.

The burglar took everything in the house that he could get in his pockets, including orange glasses, cuff links, bracelets, necklaces, five stick pins and numerous other articles, officers reported. The value of the stolen property was $200, it was reported. A rifle also was found in the orange grove near the youth at the time he was captured.

CAMPBELL, BAER SIGN
SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Max Baer, up-and-coming young Oakland heavyweight, formerly of Denver, and Frankie Campbell, San Francisco Italian, will meet at Recreation park here the night of August 26 in a 10-round fight, promoters announced today.

Local Briefs

The Rev. C. D. Hicks, pastor of the Christian and Missionary Alliance church, Cypress and Bishop street, with Mrs. Hicks and their family, of 1222 South Broadway, is enjoying a month's vacation and is at present at Yosemite lodge. During their absence, the Rev. Earl Harvey, of Glendale, who spent 16 years in the mission fields of China, will have charge of the weekly services of the church, where services will continue to be held each Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

The Old Time Pennsylvania society of Southern California calls all from that state to a picnic reunion, all day, Saturday, July 12th, 1930, in Bixby park, Long Beach. The Pennsylvania society will serve as a great reception committee and will open county registers and headquarters and supply souvenir badges and hot coffee. A brief program of song and oratory will follow the dinner.

A special German service will be held Sunday at 9 a. m. at the St. Peters Evangelical Lutheran church. It was announced by the Rev. George F. Pauschert, pastor.

August W. Brown, 31, of Huntington Beach, and Betty Ann Mobler, 44, of Long Beach, have secured a marriage license in Riverside.

SCHOOL REPORT REVEALS GAIN IN ATTENDANCE

R. P. Mitchell, superintendent of county schools, today forwarded to the state superintendent of public instruction, a report of school attendance in the grammar, high and junior colleges of the county for the past year. The figures will be the basis on which state aid will be given for the present fiscal year, $700 being apportioned for each grammar school teacher and a fraction over $5 per pupil, and $2000 for each junior college and $56 per pupil. The high school apportionment is $30 per pupil.

The population gain is reflected in the figures forwarded, the average daily attendance record for grammar schools being 17,300 for 1929-30 as compared with 16,376 for the previous year.

All of the principal grammar schools made a gain except Seal Beach, which showed a loss of 37 pupils, the daily attendance for last year being 187 as against 224 the previous year.

The report gives the average daily attendance for last year and the previous year, as follows, the first figures representing the fiscal year of 1929-30:

Anaheim, 1661, 1482; Brea, 493, 492; Buena Park, 417, 386; Fullerton, 1548, 1470; Garden Grove, 918, 839; Huntington Beach, 478, 701; Laguna Beach, 270, 225; La Habra, 724, 664; Newport Beach, 252, 228; Oceanview, 254, 251; Orange, 993, 947; Placentia, 463, 420; Santa Ana, 3820, 3738; Tustin, 460, 424; Westminster, 325, 321.

A gain was made by all of the high schools, the figures for these districts being as follows:

Santa Ana, 1536, 1428; Anaheim, 722, 667; Brea-Olinda, 247, 238; Capistrano, 39, 30; Fullerton, 1171, 1049; Garden Grove, 239, 195; Huntington Beach, 500, 444; Orange, 593, 571; Tustin, 313, 284.

The college records were as follows: Fullerton, 417, 383; Santa Ana, 398, 362.

The $56 per pupil the colleges will receive this year is $44 less than in the past due to a decrease in state revenue from which the aid is given.

Burglar Gets $50 From S. A. Plant

A burglar who broke into the offices of the General Bottling Distributing company, at 1420 West Fifth street, some time last night, stole $50 from a filing cabinet, it was reported to police this morning. Entrance into the store was gained through a rear door which was jimmied.

The entire office of the bottling works was ransacked and papers and matches strewn over the floor.

Members of Silver Cord Lodge No. 505, F. & A. M., and Masonic Brethren of Santa Ana, will assemble at the Masonic Temple Monday, July 7th, 10:30 a. m., to attend the funeral of our late Brother Frank Blacketer.

SANTA ANA ON DIRECT STAGE LINE TO EAST

Direct motor-bus service between Santa Ana and New York City and Boston was inaugurated last week by the Imperial Bus Lines, Inc., and large 40-passenger busses will leave daily from the Santa Ana depot at 305 North Broadway.

The route of the new transcontinental line starts from Los Angeles and passes through Santa Ana, San Diego, Phoenix, El Paso, Dallas, Memphis, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and ends at Boston, Massachusetts. A bus will leave Santa Ana for San Diego at 5:45 p. m. daily and for Los Angeles at 6:15 a. m. daily, on the return trip.

The type of bus used is said by officials to be the last word in motor construction. Ten carriers of the same type are used in the cross-country route, which makes it possible for passengers to change to a freshly overhauled bus every 400 miles. New drivers are put behind the wheel every 200 miles. The busses are 33 feet long over all and have a wheel base of 250 inches. They are equipped with 665 square inches of braking surface and the braking system is similar to that used by the railroads.

George Mercier, general traffic manager, declared that the new service has tapped a new bus service territory between Dallas and St. Louis by way of Memphis and a new route to Denver by the way of Las Cruces. The Imperial Bus Lines, Inc. operate in conjunction with the Southwestern Transportation company.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY ANAHEIM C. OF C.

Election of new officers for the Anaheim Chapter of Commerce by the newly elected and holdover directors resulted in the selection of Lotus London as president. George W. Reid, secretary, was re-elected by the directors. The Bank of America was chosen as treasurer and Charles Pearson as vice president. Secretary Reid gave his financial report, showing that the California Valencia Orange show will have a deficit of $114.9 and that the chamber of commerce is ending its fiscal year with a small balance.

Four Yachts Sail In Honolulu Race

SAN PEDRO, July 5.—The blue Pacific today held four California yachts, speeding under full sail to Honolulu in the annual San Pedro-Honolulu classic.

A long voyage was in store for the yachtsmen on their 2225-mile trip, the record for which is more than eleven days.

PARALYSIS CASES REPORTED TODAY

With one new case reported yesterday and another today, there were seven patients with infantile paralysis in Orange county, it was reported today by Dr. K. H. Sutherland, head of the county health department.

Of the two cases, however, one was from outside the county, as Miss Imogene Stone, 22, a visitor in Laguna Beach only a few days, came down with the malady yesterday. Miss Stone came to Laguna Beach recently to have contracted the disease there, it was stated by Dr. Sutherland. She is now in the county hospital. The other case reported today was Harry Purcell, 7, 1314 East Chapman avenue, Orange.

Frederick Stearns, 12, of Paulina, was released from quarantine today, bringing the total of cases from eight to seven. Although the health department has been asking for blood donations to prepare serum for the prevention of the disease, no persons who have had infantile paralysis since 1920 have reported. Anyone wishing to help stamp out the affliction who has had the disease is urged to get in touch with Dr. Sutherland.

Salvation Army Camp For Boys To Open Monday

Twenty-five underprivileged boys will leave Santa Ana next Monday to attend the annual summer camp conducted by the Salvation Army at Pacific Palisades. There will be approximately 150 boys between the ages of 11 and 18 at the camp this year, according to Captain Joe Morton, who has charge of the local work. These boys will come from all over Southern California.

"We are looking forward to one of the biggest and best camps we have had for several years," said Captain Morton today. "These boys are of that class that would have no summer outing unless we gave it to them. The cost to the boys is $5 for 10 days. However, many, in fact the majority, are not able to pay even this amount. The boys are given 10 days at the beautiful Palisades camp, including all meals and a big program of swimming, hiking, woodcraft, leathercraft, camp games and many other interesting features. We are still open for applications from any boys who would like to go to camp with us."

The local boys will be taken to camp by Captain Morton and will be under his supervision during the entire camp.

CHAPMAN FAMILY BUYS ALEXANDRIA

C. C. Chapman and his family at Fullerton, operating under the name of the Santa Isabel Land company, have become the owners of the Alexandria hotel, Fifth and Spring streets, Los Angeles, it became known today. The consideration is reported at $3,000,000.

The Alexandria Realty company, owners of the hotel property, accepted as part of the consideration a 600 foot frontage in Chapman Park tract, the tract being located near the Ambassador hotel and in the possession of the family for 35 years; 387 acres of Victoria Farms, a tract of 1100 acres lying between Redlands and San Bernardino, and residence property at 520 North Los Angeles street, Anaheim.

The Alexandria is operated by Gene C. Eppley. The Chapmans will not assume personal direction of the hotel.

NEWS FROM THE AUTOMOBILE WORLD

CAR DEATHS ON BIG INCREASE. REPORT SHOWS

The 1930 outdoor season, though barely under way, already is witnessing the customary increasing toll of deaths from automobile accidents, according to the statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, whose 19,000,000 industrial policyholders in the United States and Canada constitute a reliable cross-section of the populations of those two countries. The insurance company's figures show that 339 deaths occurred among the company's industrial policyholders from this cause during the five-week period ended June 7th, a figure that exceeds by 90 the total number of deaths resulting during the same period from measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria, the four principal communicable diseases of childhood.

Since the beginning of the year, the death rate from automobile accidents per 100,000 policyholders was 18.3, which was nearly five per cent higher than the combined rate for the diseases named.

In each of the five weeks preceding June 7th, the automobile death rate shows an increase over the corresponding weeks of 1929 and 1928, while the number of deaths this year increased from 64 in the first week period to 75 in the last week, the rate mounting from 20.3 to 23.5 during that time. In each of the five weeks the automobile death rate exceeded the combined death rate for the four childhood diseases.

The significance of this comparison of the increasing automobile death rate with the declining rates for measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria was pointed out by Dr. Donald B. Armstrong, fourth vice president of the Metropolitan. He explained that during 1929, children under 15 years of age comprised 30 per cent of the policyholders who died as a result of automobile accidents. If the same percentages held good for 1930, which is approximately the case, Dr. Armstrong said, 102 children under 15 years of age were killed in automobile accidents during the five weeks ended June 7th.

In contrast with that situation, Dr. Armstrong called attention to the fact that the diphtheria death rate per 100,000 policyholders for the year 1911 was nearly twelve times the automobile death rate for that year, and that the death rates for scarlet fever, whooping cough and measles were also greatly in excess of the automobile mortality rate.

From 1911, up to the present time, Dr. Armstrong said, the four principal communicable diseases of childhood have shown a general tendency to decline. In 1929, however, the death rates from these diseases were either at or very close to the record low points of the entire nineteen-year period. In contrast, the death rate for automobile accidents has advanced steadily from 2.3 per 100,000 policyholders in 1911 to 20.3 in 1929.

"While we have been conquering the former great scourges of childhood," Dr. Armstrong said, "another menace has insidiously, yet persistently taken first place. Our diphtheria death rate is now running approximately 7 per 100,000 among the industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan, or about one-third the rate from automobile accidents. If suddenly this diphtheria death rate should jump to 20, the whole nation would be aroused, yet we are more or less complacent concerning automobile fatalities because we do not seem to realize their relative significance, and also because methods of prevention are not clearly demonstrated. Toxin-antitoxin prevents diphtheria but how can we immunize our children against the automobile?"

"We must educate them in the schools as to the danger of street and automobile accidents, and the need of continuous caution. The dangers of playing in streets open to traffic can be pointed out. There are also the dangers of hooking rides on moving vehicles, and of dashing into the street after balls. Youngsters can be taught to watch for traffic signals, to cross only at crossings, and to look to the left and right before they cross the street. They can gradually, and in increasing numbers, be given the privileges of playing in a yard or playground, or in a street set aside for play."

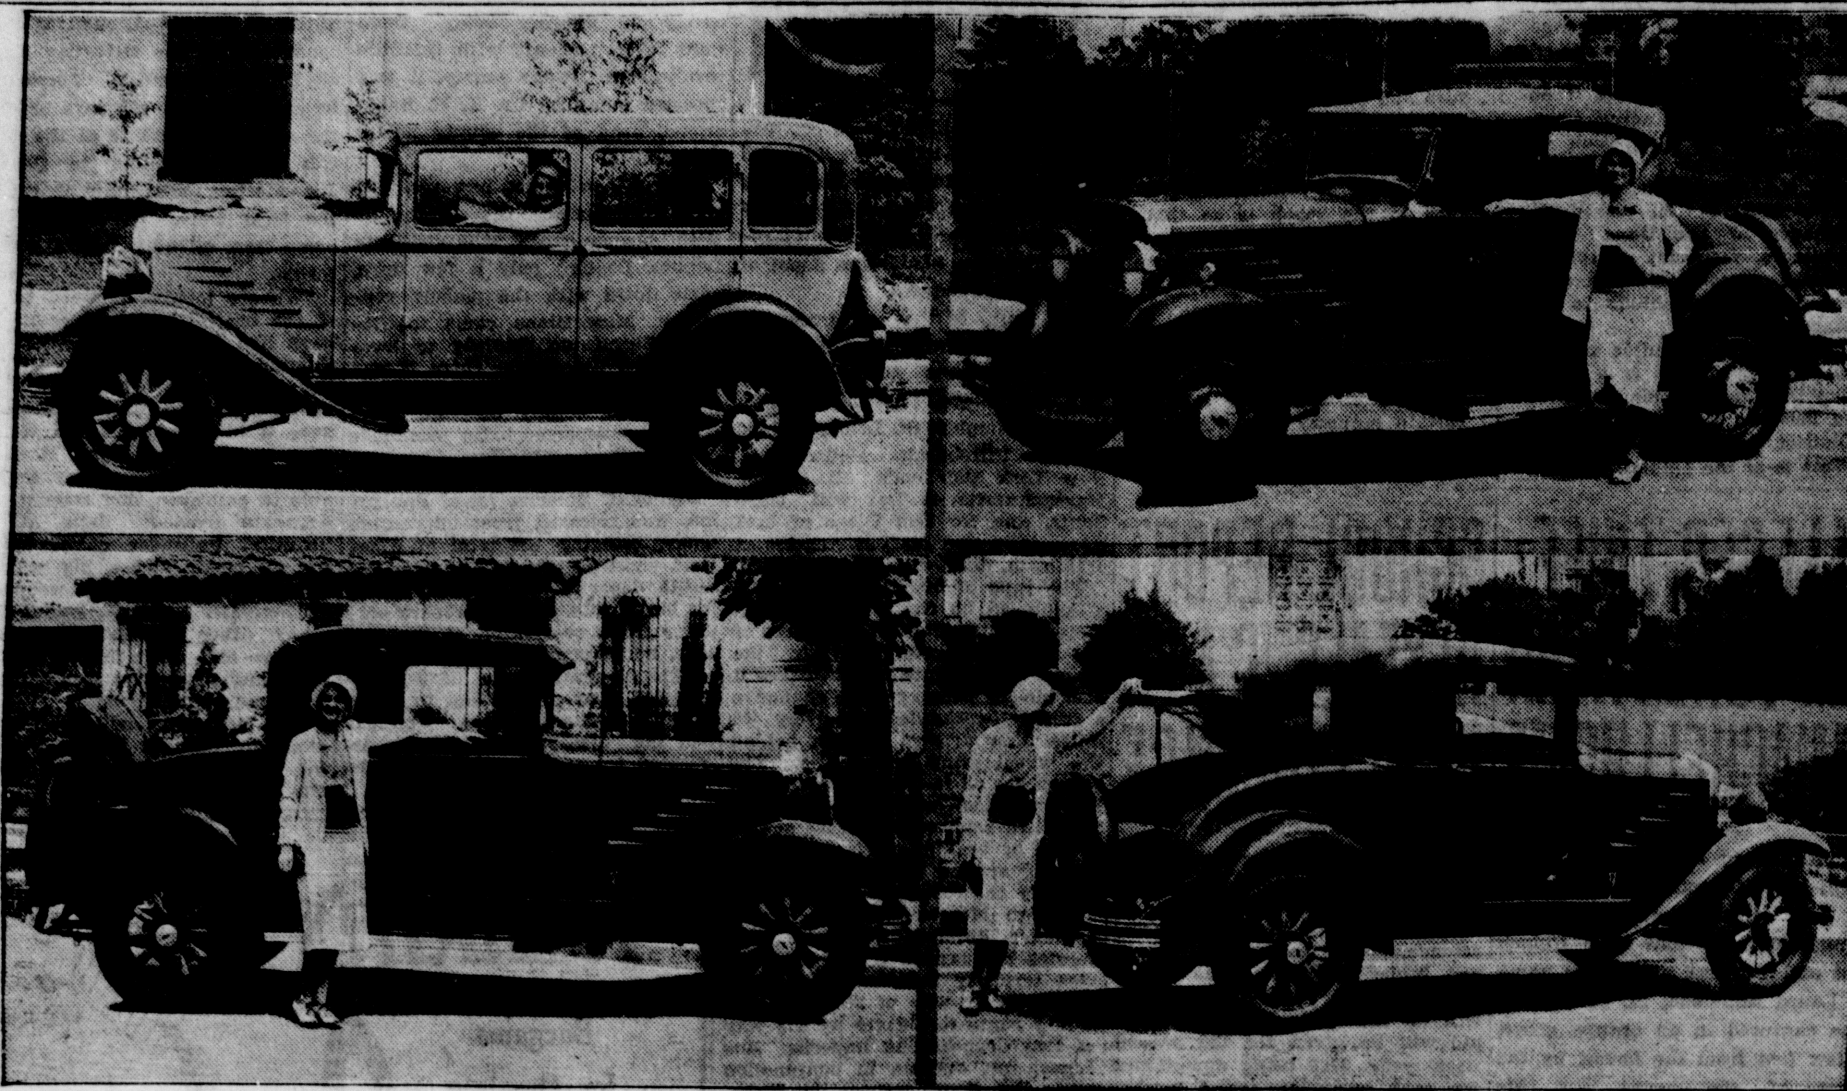

"All successful measures for general traffic control and for the education of the automobile operator contribute also to the safety of children. Such organizations and movements as the national conference on street and highway safety have the child prominently in mind, as was indicated by the words of President Hoover before this conference at its first meeting:

"If we save the life of one child, all the money, all the time, and all the effort in the past and in the future, will be worth the effort and expense," said the then secretary of commerce on that occasion."

DISPLAY NEW DURANT STANDARD MODELS HERE

Built to sell under $900 delivered here, and priced lower than any other six on the market but one, a new line of Durant cars, known as the Durant Standard 6-14, was announced here today by B. E. Morland, of Durant Motor Sales company. Powered by a 199-cubic-inch 58 horsepower Red Seal Continental motor, all models are mounted on a 112-inch wheelbase. The body types include: Upper left, 5-passenger sedan, which seats six comfortably; upper right, the sport roadster; lower left, the coupe with rumble seat; lower right, the business coupe with its roomy rear deck. The local agency is showing only the sedan and coupe.

NEW DURANT IS BUILT TO MEET DEFINITE NEED

The Durant Motor Sales company here today was showing the sedan and coupe models of a new Durant line just announced by the company. The new models are priced to sell at $900 delivered here, lower than any other six on the market but one.

Known as the Durant Standard 6-14, the new line has been created to fill a very definite need in the low price field, according to officials of the manufacturing company.

"There are four models in the new line," said B. E. Morland, manager of the local agency. "They include the 5-passenger sedan which seats six comfortably, sport roadster, coupe with rumble seat and business coupe. All body types are mounted on a 112-inch chassis."

"With the addition of the Standard 6-14, the Durant line now comprises a series of motor cars covering classes in which 80 per cent of all the automobiles in the United States were sold last year. The buying public now has its choice of the recently introduced Durant 407, or four cylinder type, one model of which sells for only $25 more than the corresponding model of the lowest priced four-cylinder manufacturer in the country; the Durant Standard 6-14, the Durant Special 6-14, the Durant De Luxe 6-14 and the Durant 6-66 with four forward speeds."

"We feel that then Durant Standard 6-14 offer the greatest value for the money on the market today. Imagine a six-cylinder automobile with a wheelbase of 112 inches, powered by a 199 cubic inch 58 horsepower motor, delivered under $900. Yet this is precisely what Durant is offering today."

"The bodies of this line, as a result of the accentuated horizontal and subdued vertical lines, together with sweeping curves, suggest fleetness and speed. Wide doors insure easy access to the roomy interiors and when seated the passenger finds ample head and leg room. Seat cushions and backs are so molded and placed as to give a feeling of restfulness and insure comfort. Proper location of the seats and the slenderness of the steel pillars provides exceptional visibility."

STANDARD ROAD MARKERS USED IN SOUTHLAND
Southern California is among those sections of the country which have completed the erection of standard markers for numbered routes in the United States system of highways, according to the Automobile Club of Southern California, which conducted the placing of these signs along the numbered highways in this section.

Reports of the bureau of public roads, U. S. department of agriculture, indicate that the work of erecting the numbered markers will be practically complete throughout the country at the end of the construction period of 1930. The system was adopted less than five years ago by state highway departments, and comprises ap-

COYOTE KILLER USES DE SOTO AUTO ON HUNT

Paul Wright, wealthy rancher and champion coyote hunter of the Oklahoma panhandle, has more than 400 pelts to his credit and he attributes much of his success as a coyote hunter to the splendid performance of his De Soto coupe, says E. J. London, manager of Wm. E. Bush company, De Soto dealer.

"Wright owns two prize-winning Greyhounds, with which he captures the wolf-like animals," London said. "He carries the dogs across the prairies in his coupe. When a coyote is sighted, he turns them loose after the prey, follows the chase across prairies, ditches, canyons and rocks in the De Soto until the coyote is captured, Wright states that any number of times he has followed the chase up rocky canyons that seemed impossible to traverse in a car without turning turtle."

"The De Soto coupe is fitted with a special cage on the rear deck. Specially constructed doors in the back are controlled by a string in the drivers compartment. By pulling a string a bolt is slipped which permits the heavy springs to fling open the doors and release the greyhounds to take up the chase."

"While more than 400,000 persons are injured every year in accidents resulting from tire failure, thousands of others are courted similar accidents by driving on unsafe tires," says Jess Goodman, distributors here for General tires.

"A driver may get by for a few weeks, or even months, on tires that he knows are badly worn or poorly constructed in the first place," says Goodman. "He may think that he is saving money and getting every last bit of mileage out of his faulty tires."

"As a matter of fact, he is daily flirting with death or disaster. When the emergency comes and his tires do not hold or when they blow out when he is driving at high speed, probably hurting him off the highway, he well knows that he alone is to blame for the consequences."

"Without peace of mind while driving, motoring is an ordeal, not a pleasure. When one is constantly fearful that the next bump in the road, struck at high speed, may be the one that blows out the tire and probably wrecks the car. It is hard for a driver to think of anything except the danger that he is facing."

Approximately 37,000 miles of the most important highways of the nation. Practically all of these are also in the federal-aid highway system.

The signs bearing the numbers are of standard size in the shape of a shield. They have a white background on which appears, in black, the name of the state, the initials "U. S." and the route number. Generally the markers are erected on mile apart.

RECALL DEBATE ON PURCHASE OF AUTO

Believing that $3,150 was too much to pay for an automobile, police commissioners of a large Southland city were knitting their brows over the automobile situation at this time 25 years ago.

A newspaper's "25 Years Ago" column reports that in June, 1905, the commissioners were discussing the possible purchase of an electric patrol wagon, guaranteed to make 20 miles an hour, and a 40-horsepower flying touring car, for the use of the chief. The first was to cost $2400, the second $2150.

RACER RECALLS TRAIL BLAZING IN STUDEBAKER

The recent publication of a book, "Heart and Will Power," by Jose Mario Barone, recalls the dangers and hardships counted by the intrepid Italian war ace and racing driver in blazing the first intercontinental motor trail between Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and New York City in a veteran Studebaker touring car, according to H. D. Riley, Studebaker dealer here.

"The trip ended in New York City a year ago, bringing success to an attempt which had been tried unsuccessfully time and time again," Riley said. "It was the first time that a motor car had negotiated the trackless jungles, swamps and mountain ranges which separate the two Americas. The untold difficulties of the 20,000-mile trip are emphasized by the tragic deaths of three of Barone's companions en route."

"Barone's veteran Studebaker had more than 100,000 miles on the speedometer even before the start of the trip. This mileage was piled up in dirt track races and stunt features climaxed in an oft repeated 'leap of death' in which Barone would charge his car up a ramp at top speed, leap off into space, and with luck and good judgment land on a ramp some distance away."

"The intercontinental trip started from Rio de Janeiro in January, 1927, and ended 25 months and 18 days later in New York City. During this period, Barone traversed 14 countries, constantly braving danger, disease and death over the unknown trails and mountain fastnesses of South and Central America."

MOTORISTS FAIL TO UNDERSTAND POWER OF CAR

The man who doesn't know his own strength now has a counterpart in the motorist who doesn't realize the power of his automobile, claims the state division of motor vehicles.

The man driving a car weighing one and one-half tons at a speed of 40 miles an hour is riding on a projectile which travels 58 2-3 feet a second. It is a power that spells almost certain death in a head-on collision, it is stated, and also one which cannot be controlled instantly, even by the most alert driver, with the car's brakes in perfect order.

The power necessary to propel a passenger car at 40 miles an hour on the highway would be sufficient to move 205,310 pounds, or ten thousand tons, one foot a second. It would require 274 horsepower pulling in the opposite direction to stop such a vehicle within one foot.

Plant Trees To Honor Departed Parks Director

A forest of 10,000 young trees recently was planted near Bolton, New York, in honor of the late Stephen T. Mather, former director of the National Parks Service, states a report reaching the Automobile Club of Southern California. The trees, white pines, were furnished by the New York Conservation department.

ADJUSTING OF BRAKES AID TO LIFE OF TIRES

Keep the brakes of your car properly adjusted and your tires will last much longer.

This is the advice of Charles Hilton, who has been for a long time connected with the tire business as manager of the Pagenkopp Super Service station, which handles United States tires in this section. Is in a position to speak authoritatively on this subject.

"Surveys have shown that 90 per cent of the cars on the roads are being operated with improperly adjusted brakes," said Hilton. "Improper brake adjustments will throw more wear on one wheel than on another and cause that respective tire to do more work than its share. Consequently it will wear out before the others. In addition to this, where brakes may bind, the pull on the tires causes a slipping effect which wears the tread away in spots."

"Brakes should be equalized by specialists in that line of work in order to be accurate. The ordinary means of adjusting brakes by jacking up the car and running the wheels, then stopping them, is not perfect, as the eye alone is the gauge and may not catch the exactness of stopping. Driving the car over a garage floor and locking the wheels to see which one slides first is not a good test, either, for the wheels may be locked instantaneously by quick depression of the foot pedal. When on the road under slighter depression one wheel may take hold more than another."

"In order to insure full mileage on a tire, brakes should be adjusted perfectly, and if this is done the average motor car owner would be much surprised to see how much longer his tires will last."

FOREST FIRES HIT TOURIST BUSINESS
Business suffers from loss of tourist trade when forest fires occur in certain districts, results of a survey by the state department of natural resources showed.

When fires were so prevalent in Mendocino, Lake and Humboldt counties last year trade dropped off as much as 50 per cent. The department attributes much of this

OBSERVANCE OF RAIL CROSSING SIGNALS URGED

Hazards of railway grade crossings and the necessity of strict observance of signals at such points will be featured this month by the California Committee on Public Safety in its state-wide traffic safety educational campaign conducted in cooperation with state and local traffic law enforcement agencies. As part of its all-year educational and enforcement program, stressing one common traffic hazard each month, the committee will emphasize during July the importance of watching for grade crossing signals and the law covering stops for common carrier buses, school buses and trucks carrying explosives or inflammable liquids.

During the first part of the month, motorists throughout the state will be educated to the necessity of caution at grade crossings through news articles, radio talks, theater slides and talks before service clubs. State traffic police of the California highway patrol and police departments of principal cities, who are cooperating with the committee in this continuous safety campaign, will begin strict enforcement of the law in respect to grade crossings as soon as the educational period is ended about the middle of July.

It is considered that this campaign is most timely for July in view of the great increase in traffic during the summer vacation period. Officials express the hope that stressing the hazards of grade crossings may result in the prevention of accidents during the height of the summer touring season.

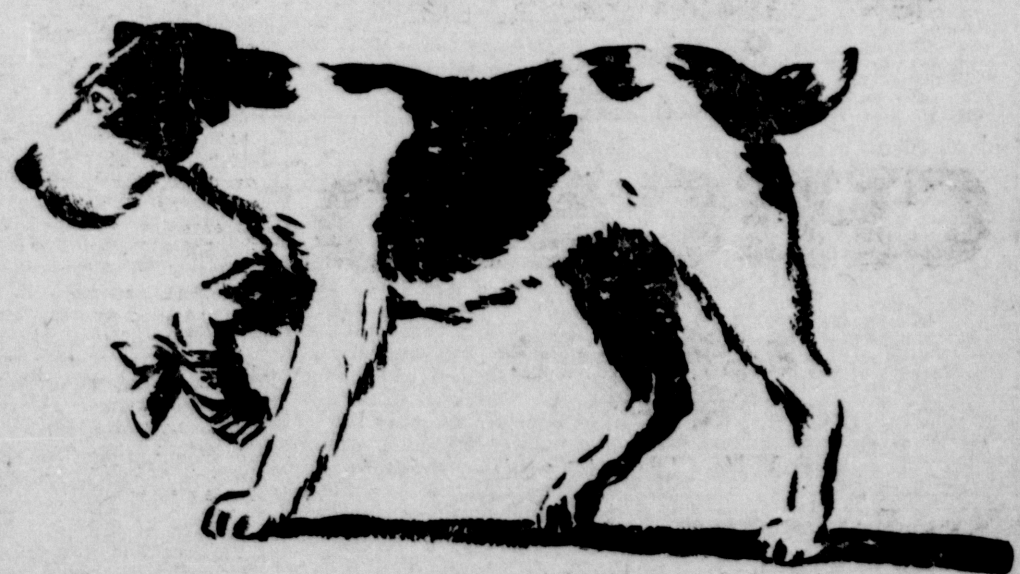

"Obey grade crossing signals for your protection" is the slogan for July which will be broadcast throughout the state by the committee and its cooperating agencies, the street car companies, bus lines and other groups.

Cooperating in the campaign, the Automobile Club of Southern California legal department summarizes the provisions of the state law on observance of railway warning signals as follows:

Where a signal is given by a flagman or automatic signals of approach of a train, the driver must stop the motor vehicle between ten and fifty feet of the train tracks. Violation of this section is a misdemeanor.

Operators of motor vehicles carrying passengers for hire, school buses, or motor trucks carrying explosives or inflammable liquids as a cargo or part of a cargo shall stop before crossing the tracks at a grade or a steam railroad, or interurban or suburban electric railway. The stop must be made between ten and fifty feet of the tracks and the driver must look and listen in both directions. This does not apply to crossings protected by flagmen on duty or gates or automatic signals. Violation of this section is a misdemeanor.

Hotels, garages, restaurants, drug stores, service stations and grocery stores in Ukiah, Willits, Laytonville, Hopland, Fortuna, Lakeport, St. Helena, Healdsburg and Fort Bragg were interviewed.

Three and one to carry

ONE of the four is unfit. And the unfit one makes it difficult for the other three to function.

So it is with motor oil. A gallon of ordinary motor oil contains only three quarts of lubrication. The fourth is light ends, with little or no value as a lubricant. The efficiency of the three quarts is lessened by the fourth worthless quart that is left in by ordinary refining.

By the special Quaker State super-refining process the non-lubricating matter is completely eliminated from Quaker State Oil. You get four quarts of superior lubrication in every gallon when you buy Quaker State Oil.

CREED PRINTED IN 1892 STAYS WITH MEADOWS

ORANGE, July 5.—Carrying an interesting bit of philosophy, which carried into practice would save the lives of mankind and make this old world a better place to live and do business, is a framed card with the heading, "My Creed," located in the front of the office of Charles W. Meadows, printer, of 1229 South Orange street, which has an interesting story behind it.

The creed, which emphasizes the importance of speaking the fine things about people while they are alive and able to hear and appreciate them, was first put into type by Meadows, who has been located in Orange for some 27 years, when he was a printer in the shop of Grant, the printer in Buffalo, N. Y., in the fall of 1892.

"Grant got out a business card each month with some original paragraphs on the back of each," Meadows stated in commenting on the history of the creed, "and shortly after I entered his employ he brought in the copy for this card, which made such a hit with me that I carried a card with it on for over 15 years. It was written in long-hand and I set it up in nonpareil type, or six point as it is now known."

"I finally lost the card, but about six years ago while in a postcard shop at Long Beach I found two cards with that very creed on it and I bought them both. The dealer did not know where he got them and I have never seen another. The philosophy of it appeals to me strongly."

The creed reads as follows: "Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. Fill their lives with sweetness. Speak approving, cheering words while their ears can hear them and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them."

"The kind things you mean to say when they are gone, say before they go—the flowers you mean to send for their coffins, send to brighten and sweeten their houses before they leave them."

"If my friends have alabaster boxes laid away, full of fragrant perfumes of sympathy and affection which they intend to break over my dead body, I would rather they would bring them out to my weary and troubled hours and open them, that I may be refreshed and cheered by them while I need them."

"I would rather have a plain coffin without a flower, a funeral without an eulogy, than a life without the sweetness of love and sympathy."

"Let us learn to annoint our friends beforehand for their burial. Post mortem kindness does not cheer the troubled spirit. Flowers on the coffin cast no fragrance backward over life's weary way."

5 Orange Girls Remain At Camp Under Quarantine

ORANGE, July 5.—Development of a case of infantile paralysis in the camp of girls attending the Girl Reserves conference at Allammar is responsible for the fact that only three of the eight Orange girls in attendance at the conference were able to start home when their 10-day camp period officially closed. The others are held in quarantine, according to word received from Miss Fern Sumner, secretary of the Orange Y. W. C. A., who was in charge of the Orange girls.

The three girls who were permitted to leave the camp for home, Theodora Mueller, Catherine Gorath and Mildred Stutholt, were in a different group from the one in which the case was discovered, and consequently were not affected by the quarantine regulations. The five girls who are kept at camp by the development are Dorothy Piney, Doris Flippin, Dorothy Belle Huscroft, Martha Huscroft and Dorene Simpson. Miss Sumner and Miss Hannah Neerer are remaining in charge of this group. Reports from the camp state that the Orange girls are all well and receiving good attention and are in no danger. The quarantine is expected to continue for possibly two weeks.

Riverside Youth Goes To Jail On Charge Of Theft

ORANGE, July 5.—Alleged theft of a bathing suit led to the arrest yesterday afternoon of a 17-year-old Riverside student at the home of relatives in this city. He was taken into custody for investigation by Officer Al Wunderlich following an accusation, which was made by Melvin C. Moore, of Santa Ana, from whom the suit is alleged to have been purloined, according to Chief of Police B. F. Richards.

The accused stoutly maintains his innocence and declares he knows nothing about the suit. It was discovered, however, in the room the student was occupying at the home of his uncle, Chief Richards stated. He is being held in custody at the city jail pending appearance before Justice of the Peace G. W. Ingle, which is scheduled for today. The trouble followed a trip to Newport Beach yesterday when the youth is reported to have accompanied Moore and his family to the beach.

ORANGE GOLD LEAF CONCERN IS PURCHASED

ORANGE, July 5.—Retirement of William Grecht from the gold leaf beating business, taking over of the business he has developed by Sam Harding and Charles F. Bauman, and removal of the shop from the rear of the Grecht home at 1040 East Walnut avenue to a new shop just constructed at the rear of the Harding home, 132 North Tustin street, was announced here today by Harding and Bauman. The firm will now be known as the Grecht Gold Leaf company.

The new shop structure to house the business, which is a craft requiring skilled hand labor, consists of a building 12 by 14 feet and an annex giving total space of about 20 by 16 feet, Harding said. It is planned to make the shift over the week end and move into the new quarters for the start of operations there Monday morning.

The Grecht Gold Leaf company is one of two in Orange county, both of which are located in Orange, and there is no such plant in Los Angeles, Harding revealed.

The gold beating process, whereby the exceedingly fine gold leaf is formed, consists of various operations of beating thin pieces of gold between parchment leaves until it is expanded so that 150 pieces of inch square ribbons of the precious metal are changed into some 3000 pieces of the leaf, which is approximately one two hundred and eighty thousandth of an inch thick. Gold to the value of $5 is beaten out by skillful yet laborious process so that it will cover 5000 square inches.

Various weights of cast iron hammers are used during the different steps of the process, starting with a 16-pound hammer and graduating down to a six to 10-pound hammer at the finish. The workers are required to use utmost skill, care and caution in the process as they pound the packages which lay on huge marble slabs, to prevent holes from appearing in the leaf and to keep it of uniform thickness.

Guests were Dwight Gates and daughter, Genella, of Berkeley, Mrs. G. A. Gates, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Windolph, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moody, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Ess, Mrs. Grace Cleveland, Mrs. Angeline Courtney and daughter, Helena, Le Roy Rhodes, of Los Angeles, Mrs. Gena Morgan and daughter, Lubertha.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Richards, of 144 South Olive street, spent the Fourth at Newport Beach as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Manis Dick, of Corona.

A group from Orange motored to Huntington Beach for the fireworks the evening of the Fourth. Those going were Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Bivens and daughter, Marie, Dwight Gates, Mrs. G. A. Gates, Mrs. Angeline Courtney, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Kilgore and son, Junior, and Gladys Wagers.

REPORTS GIVEN AT SESSION OF CHURCH GROUP

ORANGE, July 5.—"Sharing in the Power of Christ" is the subject for the new missionary year of the Women's Missionary society of the Christian church, with "Investments in God's Company" the topic taken up at the meeting held Thursday in the church parlor.

Mrs. Rebecca Pope opened the meeting and led in prayer. Miss Anna Granger gave a report of the missionary library and made a request for new books for the new year, mentioning the late books by E. Stanley Jones and "The Meaning of Church Membership."

The new year begins with a balance in the treasury. The girls the missionary societies have been educating at Phillips university have sailed for Japan.

Miss Emma Granher was the program chairman. Mrs. M. E. Bivens read the scripture, Second Corinthians 8:15 and Acts 5:32-35, commenting on the fact that the secret of service in God's kingdom is the giving of oneself. "Keeping the Fires Burning in Our Home Church" was discussed by Mrs. A. R. Smith, who stressed personal evangelism and commented on the growth of the Christian church, which had come to the position of fifth in membership of the Protestant churches of America with a membership of 1,750,000, closing with the poem, "What Christ Said."

"He Will Hold Me Fast" was a solo rendered by Mrs. Leon Des Larzes, accompanied by Miss Loraine Ingle. Mrs. Des Larzes and Mrs. F. L. Finley favored with a duet, accompanied by Miss Loraine Ingle. Hostesses by Miss Loraine Ingle, Adda Dufford, Rebecca Pope, M. E. Bivens, C. C. Bonbrake and Frances Conner.

Mrs. McClure gave a reading by Henry Van Dyke, "Mansions." The afternoon closed with refreshments served by the hostesses.

Yachting News

By S. H. LUCAS

The first race of the Independence day series for star boats was sailed over the Newport Harbor Star boat association course on July 4. It was won by Walton Hubbard Jr. in his new boat, Tempe IV. Billy Lyons in another new one, the Vega, was second and Tom Webster in Tom Robin secured the show position.

The breeze was from the southwest, light and a trifle fluky. Hubbard and Beardslee beat the gun and had to go back and recross the starting line.

Tommy Webster got away first, closely followed by Jack Keith. Webster lead all the way around the first time, completing the round with 11 seconds advantage over Hubbard, who was 31 seconds ahead of Temple Murphy. This boat is also new and showed that she is fast as well as handsome.

On approaching the home marker at the close of the first round, Hook Beardslee made one of his characteristic finishes for he had kept well down to leeward with the wind following and had kept clear of blanketing. When about three hundred yards from the line Hook hauled the Moira up for the mark and started footling, with the result that he passed four boats in the last minutes sail before rounding.

At the same mark Billy Lyons came about as soon as clear and had a big opening clear to windward to start the second round with. This gained him several positions, but he oversteered the second mark by a few hundred feet and thus lost a good chance to win.

Webster after leading for more than a complete round, got in a soft spot, and was compelled to see Hubbard pass him to port while Lyons slid by him to starboard, for by these little things are races won and lost.

Kel after apparently being in second place when nearing the first mark on the second lap, broke tacks with Beardslee and T. Murphy when he had them under his lee, and took off after Lyons. This lost him two places and probably three.

$219,364 PAID FRUIT GROWERS ON FIRST POOL

ORANGE, July 5.—Members of the Villa Park Orchards association had the assistance of checks, representing returns from the shipments of the first pool, in celebrating the holiday yesterday. Checks returning to the growers a total of $219,364.94 were mailed Thursday.

The citrus association, which is now handling its third pool, shipped 85 cars of fruit during the first period, which started April 21 and closed May 23. The manager of the association, H. D. Nichols, is reported to be anticipating the best season in the history of the packing house so far as net returns to growers are concerned.

The total of the first pool is said to be one of the highest early pool returns in the history of the citrus house. The shipments of this pool included 39,386 packed boxes of fruit for which slightly more than $250,000, or approximately $6.35 per box average, was received for the first shipments of Valencia oranges from the Villa Park house this year.

The higher prices are a reflection of the short crop this year, Nichols has indicated, and he believes that the crop will command very satisfactory prices as a whole, in spite of the recent sag in the citrus market.

MUSIC-LITERATURE-ART

JOHN KNOWLES PAINE

BY RUTH ANDREWS

John Knowles Paine is noted as one of America's first composers of real significance, as well as the most classic in temperament, and the first to produce music of importance in the higher forms. Paine also achieved noteworthy distinction as a teacher and organist, and his influence on musical progress here in America has been far-reaching.

Born at Portland, Maine, January 9, 1839, Paine's early musical training was received in his home city, followed by his departing for Berlin at the age of 19, for further study in the German center, where he remained three years. While in Berlin, Paine studied counterpoint with Haupt, singing with Fischer and instrumentation with Weyrich, also specializing in organ, in which he became especially proficient, so that he presented numerous organ concerts in various German cities.

At 22 Paine decided to return to America. Settling in Boston, he acted for a time as organist in West Church there, and at 23 received an important appointment as musical instructor at Harvard University. In this post he was destined to meet with much success, rapidly achieving great popularity with his pupils, many of whom later became famous. He also acted as organist of Harvard University, and at Appleton Chapel, Cambridge, during this period.

Honors continued to come to Paine at Harvard, and as a result of the excellent results achieved through his influence, at 36 he was made a full professor of music in the famous educational institution, and a regular department of music was established there, of which Paine was given charge. He continued to hold the post for 30 years more, making 43 years in all in which he served in the capacity of professor of music. He taught up until a brief year before his death, which occurred during his 66th year, at Cambridge, Massachusetts, on April 25, 1906.

Critics divide Paine's creative work into two periods, the classic and the romantic. During the earlier, more classic period, Paine was quite formal and conservative, not especially in favor of the innovations and reform which Wagner had brought to the attention of the musical world. But as he continued in his chosen work, he began to admire Wagner more and more, coming under the spell of the great king of opera, his work in turn evidence-ing an increased feeling for dramatic climax, as well as an increasing fondness for a programmatic style of creative expression. As a composer, Paine's work shows a keen respect for the rules which govern harmony and counterpoint, an adherence to traditions of conservative form. Upton, prominent musical authority, says of him, "Paine's music is thoroughly original, clear in style, marked by scholarly thought and deep feeling, fine harmony and appropriate orchestral color."

Paine's more important compositions include his oratorio, "St. Peter," composed in 1873, and often performed with great success despite its extreme difficulty. Within a period of several years which followed, he produced a Centennial Hymn to open the Philadelphia Exposition of 1876, a symphonic poem "The Tempest," and an overture, to a musical setting of Shakespeare's "As You Like It."

His masterpiece, "Edipus Tyrannus," composed in 1881, consisted of an overture and seven numbers, for male voices and orchestra, its musical score marked by a dignity and sublimity very appropriate to the ancient Greek tragedy. The work was first performed at Harvard following its completion.

Four cantatas, "Phoebus Arise," "Realm of Fancy," "The Nativity," and "Song of Primrose," followed in rapid succession during the next six years, also a symphonic poem entitled "Island Fantasy." In 1893 he produced a choral hymn in honor of the Chicago Exposition, followed three years later by a hymn written for the Columbian Exposition. An opera "Araza," not especially successful, followed in 1901. Nineteen hundred four brought a choral hymn, composed for the St. Louis Exposition. Additional works included two symphonies, many sacred works, works for stringed instruments, and many songs and piano pieces.

Many of Paine's works have continued popular in Germany, even perhaps to a greater degree, than here in America. Paine's chief accomplishments were achieved through the inspirational influence of his personality in furthering this country's musical progress at a time when America was still comparatively barren of musical creative art. His work among youth at Harvard was of vast importance, while his influence in stimulating greater interest in the field of organ music was equally vital.

Indian tenor, will also take part in the pageant.

WITH THE ARTISTS

Films Lure Gershwin

George Gershwin, composer of "The Rhapsody in Blue" and other well-known compositions, including the scores of many Broadway musical shows, recently signed a contract to write the music and collaborate on the book for an original screen musical production which the Fox Film corporation will produce in October. He will receive $125,000 for his work on the picture, it is reported.

Paderewski's Fall Plans

Ignace Paderewski, whose illness forced him to cancel his American tour last season, has now completely recovered and plans to return to the United States this fall. He will arrive in New York early in October, and expects to fill the 75 engagements for which he was booked last year.

Schumann Heink in Sound Film
Mme. Ernestine Schumann Heink is reported to be considering an appearance in a musical film, under the direction of Elsie Janis. The latter has signed an agreement with Paramount to supervise the making of films with her own producing unit. The Schumann Heink vehicle, it is said, would be a "mother story," providing numerous opportunities for the singer to be heard in the songs for which she is beloved.

Announce Elman's Plans

Mischa Elman, world-famous violinist, is planning to spend the summer in retirement here in California. In September he will return to New York to take passage for Europe, where he will give concerts until January. He will then return to this country for another American tour.

Tibbett in New Sound Film

Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, star of "The Rogue Song," and Grace Moore, soprano, both of the Metropolitan Opera, are to be featured in a sound film version of the opera, "The New Moon," the score of which is by Sigmund Romberg and the book by Frank Mandel and Lawrence Schwab. Jack Conway will direct the production.

CRUISER ENDS ITS CAREER AT SAN FRANCISCO

What with the disarmament conference—and the activity of Father Time, the old ships of Uncle Sam's navy are having a hard time. The old steel vessels that proudly sailed the seven seas, that saw action in the Spanish war, others that did their part in the World war—are now feeling the sting of the torch—and will soon be melted into little pigs again, to start a new career, possibly in the frame of some skyscraper or in the chassis of some motor car.

The Cruiser Maryland (the vessel once bore that proud name) later named the Frederick, is now approaching the melting pot. Her "innards" have been removed and the steel hull is being cut into pieces that fit the melting pot. Soon there will be nothing but the shell left and then the ship will have passed into the great beyond where all ships end.

"The cruiser is being cut apart in San Francisco bay, tied to a wharf at Oakland. Crews with torches that cut the steel with astonishing speed are at work on the old vessel," stated J. E. Headley, Oldsmobile and Viking distributor, recently.

"The Frederick was a 14,000 ton cruiser, built in 1905 and was the pride of the navy then. She sailed into San Francisco bay in 1908 after having made the trip from the Atlantic around Cape Horn, under the command of Fighting Bob Evans, one of the most famous commanders in the history of our navy. She was the Maryland then, and carried a proud crew."

COSTA MESA

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Armstrong and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Young were Los Angeles visitors Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Finney, of Elden avenue, entertained the following guests on the Fourth: Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Dolan and daughter, of Beverly Hills, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Luard and son, Lawrence, of Los Angeles.

BOOK REVIEWS

By MARY BURKE KING

A Flock of Birds, by Kathleen Coyle, published by E. P. Dutton & Co.

Hugh Walpole, Sheila Kaye-Smith and Frank Swinnerton selected "A Flock of Birds" from six hundred entries in a prize competition as one of the four best manuscripts received. Those who have read Mrs. Coyle's previous works, "Liv" and "It Is Better to Tell" say that the book needs no such recommendation to be sought out and read by them.

Catherine Munster, a sensitive, intelligent woman, mother of three children of whom Christy is the youngest, is the principal character of the story which is set in Dublin. The action of the story covers only three or four days, days of tense emotional strain and anguish. When the story opens Christy has been convicted of murder. Shortly following the decision he is lodged in the death cell from which he will be led to the gallows in only two days.

The period of the story is during the Black and Tan occupation of Ireland. Christy has revolutionary views, had been part of the organization of the revolutionaries and when a man is killed during a demonstration he was arrested and tried for the murder. Christy pleads guilty and is determined upon a martyr's death.

Valentine, his brother who had been estranged from Christy because the crisis persistently maintained that he was innocent. He and Kathleen, a sister, seek signatures on a petition in behalf of Christy, among their own circle of friends and acquaintances. Complications arise, however. The revolutionary press, because of the character of the signature, declare that Christy has been a spy in their midst. Then the authorities seem to pardon him lest they seem to verify the contention of the press. Christy might not have been freed but there is irony in the activities of his loved ones frustrating their own efforts. But to Christy it mattered little, he wanted to be a martyr.

To Catherine Munster, the mother, it was all-important that Christy was yet ready to die. Cicely, fiancée of Christy, appears and calls upon Catherine to share Christy with her. The story is very well written and with a remarkable depth of understanding of the situation brought out particularly through the sensitive mother, Catherine.

The situation is not entirely unlike the climax in "Mothers Cry" when the mother's yardward son is electrocuted.

The New Education in Austria, by Robert Dottrens, edited by P. L. Dengler.

"It is to Vienna, the pedagogical Mecca, as some like to call it, that the new pilgrims of the modern school must go to find the realization of their dreams and hopes. In those old school buildings with their old-fashioned furniture, in the kindergartens where the little tots disport themselves so happily, in the primary school, the middle school, or the state boarding schools, everywhere one feels that animating spirit which is stimulating wills, opening hearts, unloosing enthusiasms, and enlisting the zeal and the faith of the teachers who day after day are giving all their energies so that these happy children may become the men of tomorrow—better, happier, and of greater service than their fathers"—the quotation serves to expose the importance of this book which pictures development of education in Vienna.

Dr. Robert Dottrens is inspector of schools at Geneva. Dr. Paul L. Dengler is director of the Austro-American Institute of education. Dr. Dengler addressed the National Educators Conference in Cleveland just recently. Those who heard him there or a few years ago when he lectured in the United States will be especially interested in the book for Dr. Dengler magnetically draws one's interest in these new methods of education. Dr. Dottrens describes an interesting community class conducted by Dr. Dengler in this book.

It covers the transition from the old educational system of Austria to the new methods in operation in Vienna which involved the winning of the people to the new methods, the training of the teachers, and new laws. Schedules of studies are given and a description of classroom methods and aims, and emphasis upon co-operation between the parents and teachers.

Incidentally, Dr. Dengler calls attention to the fact, which many already know, that in Vienna boys and girls under sixteen years of age are not permitted to go to the moving picture shows, even if the parents are with them.

Speaking of observing one of the classes Dr. Dottrens says: "In visiting the classes, what is most striking is not the great eagerness for work, but the liberty of speech and movement granted the pupils, to such a point that the superficial observer cries anarchy and disorder. But such a conclusion is absolutely wrong. It is enough to pass from the lower to the higher grades to witness the results of this liberal education, whose principal tribute is respect for the child's personality."

doing the work," says Dr. Dottrens. "The New Education in Austria" deserves much attention for its subject matter is very important and we are only becoming aware of the influence of childhood over adult life.

Years of Grace, by Margaret Ayer Barnes, published by Houghton Mifflin Co.

"Years of Grace" covers the better part of the life of Jane Ward, from her girlhood in Chicago of the 1890's through her youth, her marriage with Stephen Carver and middle life, with several emotional climaxes.

The forepart of the book reminds one of Susan Ertz' "The Galaxy," with the descriptions of the gowns and the customs and parties and the family life in the 1890's in Chicago. Jane Ward wanted to go to Bryn Mawr. In those days such an idea was revolutionary. Her sister Isabel was a debutante and the mother, of course, expected Jane to be brought out in the same way. It was a complete frustration to the mother's activities when Jane announced that she wanted to go to Bryn Mawr. But her father stood by her as far as he could, which made possible two years at Bryn Mawr.

But before Jane departed from the beaten path and went to Bryn Mawr she had had a love affair with Andre Duroy, son of the French consul in Chicago. Andre was particularly attractive and interesting. His departure with his family to Europe where he is to continue his studies and become a sculptor bring their romance to a climax, when Jane is only seventeen and Andre twenty-one. Of course the respective parents deny the children their engagement. Mr. Ward and the Duroys very sympathetically, but Mrs. Ward exacts the promise that there shall be no corresponding between them for four years.

Jane has her years at Bryn Mawr and then returns to Chicago for her debut and later, precipitated particularly by the Spanish-American war, her marriage to Stephen. Stephen is the son of typical Bostonians and Jane spends long summers of married life at their summer home on the Atlantic sea coast.

Jane is still young, though she has been married ten years when Jimmy comes into her life. Jimmy is gifted, charming, impractical and attentive. He urges Jane to depart with him, that they may enjoy the happiness they have found in each other. Jane decides according to the code of her generation. Later her daughter confronts the same situation and decides according to the code of the younger generation. That is the unsolved problem of the book. Jane had a tranquil, peaceful middle age and cherished the memory of Jimmy which was sweeter since the situation held no disillusion.

Jane makes one mistake, the mistake everyone would make probably, she sees Andre when they are both more than fifty, after not having seen him for twenty-five years. Jane is a bit disappointed in that interview; she seems not to at all appreciate Andre, and the experience that have inspired Andre's art. Jane and her activities and her children and her grandchildren and their affairs are very realistic despite the romance, and it is so comforting to have a heroine who lives in the book to be fifty.

When I Was a Harvester, by Robert L. Yates, published by the MacMillan Company.

Here is a book for the boy who is being bitten with the wanderlust. "Bob" Yates, the boy who writes this adventure story, adventured in work. One summer he joined a wheat-harvesting gang in the Canadian Northwest. From Toronto he went with the rough laborers who harvest the golden wheat to the northwest.

On his adventure was labor which was excellent football training. From four in the morning until six at night the men toiled in the sun, and when there was moonlight until the moon had gone down. At the same time it made the football team seem to diminish in importance.

It is a remarkable story for a boy, simple and direct in its style. There are tense, dangerous and exciting moments even in the life of a harvester whose chief goal is the mastery of hard work of the fields.

Ronno, "Bob" Yates' dog is no small character in the story. The author found him caught in a coyote trap.

There are two fist fights which are enthralling reading for the men. And one time the author is lost in a blizzard.

There is adventure for the restless boy among men, men who work and do important things, like bringing in the wheat, and it is fine for boys to realize it as they do from Robert Yates' book.

"There is food for the spirit in manual labor done in primitive surroundings," says this author. "It may exhaust the body, but it creates the soul."

"I have heard it said," he says, "that youth untired is strong and can stand almost anything. I do not think it is because of its untiredness, but rather because a sense of wonder about everything."

The philosophy and observations are normal and wholesome.

Here he expresses a thought which is in the mind, usually unexpressed, which every lover of dogs will appreciate:

"The heart of a dog is the heart of all the youth of the world, honeyed with devotion and fortified with strength; his is the impulsive defense of a principle until Death or Triumph is the prize of valor."

It is a safe book, even though an interesting adventure story. One harvester says to Bob, who doesn't particularly want to leave the harvester gang to go to school: "You know, kid, it's only the misfits, the fellows who made a mistake somewhere, that give just hands to life. You've got a head and a soul—those count more than muscle."

There is much praise for the book from those who have read it, and it is deserved. A boy's magazine, editor says: "It has atmosphere and vividness. The setting and detail he has given about the industry are well selected and have the virtue of freshness. It is something that hasn't been written about as so many of the other picturesque places and phases of life have."

Book Notes....

Dorothy Canfield has just finished reading proofs of The Deepening Stream, her first new novel in four years, and with her family is sailing this week for a summer in England and Germany. Harcourt, Brace will publish the new novel in early October.

The Book League of America will publish Giovanni Papini's "St. Augustine" as its July selection. "St. Augustine" is the first biography that Papini has given us since the publication of his famous "Life of Christ." Since the book is appearing on the fifteenth century of the death of St. Augustine, it will no doubt attract the world wide attention of everyone interested in the life of this saint who was in many ways the first "modern man."

Bob Davis, widely known editor, author, traveler, raconteur and epicure, whose books, "Bob Davis Recalls," "Bob Davis Abroad," etc., bear the imprint of Appleton, is being confined at present to the quiet of the New York Polytechnic hospital. And while he is recovering there from a severe injury sustained some weeks ago, his column in the New York Sun, Bob Davis Recalls, is being run by the numerous friends who have requested that they be allowed to "pinch-hit" for Davis. As it is thus conducted, the column is a daily increasing revelation of the wide scope of Davis's acquaintanceships. Fannie Hurst, Irvin S. Cobb, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Ben Ames Williams, Montague Glass, Rex Beach, Frank Condon and Booth Tarkington already have done a column each. And columns are following by George Ade, Wallace Irwin, William Lyon Phelps, Ring Lardner, Sam Hell-man, Dorothy Canfield Fisher, Sophie Kerr, Charles Francis Cox, Nabro Bartley, William C. Davis, Henry Mencken and others. Appleton is to publish a new Bob Davis book this fall, "On Home Soil With Bob Davis."

A new merit badge in "Reading" has now been made available for the eager Boy Scout to win, one which requires the completion of a book a month for a year's period. The official announcement states that books to do with Scouting are preferred.

Columbia University conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on Sir Josiah Stamp, the British economist, author of "Fundamental Principles of Taxation," etc.

In a History of Europe from 800 to 1789, by the well known historian, Professor H. W. C. Davis, the student, as well as the educated general reader, will find a brief, handy, narrative of events, heretofore difficult of access except in scattered sources. This book is announced by the Dial Press.

The English Book Guild—new book club of England—has chosen for its June selection "Arm's Length," by John Metcalf. It is an amusing and sinister novel of the results of a young Englishman's inability to make up his mind. It was published in this country this spring by Charles Scribner's.

STRESSES VALUE OF 4-H CLUBS IN U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—The incorporation of boys and girls into a great movement to produce a perfected type of agriculture and of rural life was emphasized as the fundamental objective of 4-H club work by Dr. C. J. Galpin, agricultural sociologist of the Bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture, addressing the leaders of the movement at the opening of the national encampment of 4-H clubs at Washington, D. C., recently.

This objective is being attained, Dr. Galpin said, by developing within the clubs production and marketing projects adapted to actual economic conditions under which the boys and girls live, and by developing a high standard of social organization. Such activities such as games, sports, camp life, musical fetes, club songs, plays, pageants and the like, he declared, are a part of ordinary rural life, and as such, should be encouraged in the club work.

Lon Chaney At Broadway In His First Talkie

CHANNEY USES 5 VOICES IN NEW 'UNHOLY THREE'

Lon Chaney will make his first speaking appearance on the screen Monday at the Fox Broadway theater in "The Unholy Three," all-talking version of his former silent success but said to be vastly different from the earlier film in that he assumes not only two disguises but five vocal characterizations and also makes a dummy sing by the art of ventriloquism.

The picture will show here four days.

The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production was directed by Jack Conway with continuity by J. C. Nugent and Elliott Nugent. The younger Nugent is also in the supporting cast which includes Lila Lee, Harry Earles, John Miljan, Ivan Linow, Clarence Burton and Crawford Kent.

Film Has Mysterious Plot

The picture is based on C. A. Robb's story of a side-show ventriloquist who becomes involved together with a circus giant and midget in an amazing criminal plot. The ventriloquist fools the police by running a pet shop in the disguise of an old woman while the midget impersonates a baby. The clerk in the store, knowing nothing of the activities, is "framed" after a murder, but the ventriloquist's love for a girl who pleads for the boy's vindication finally prevails in a dramatic courtroom scene climax.

REGINALD DENNY AT THE FOX-BROADWAY

In Reginald Denny's latest starring talkie, "What A Man," now playing at the Broadway Theater, the leading feminine role is played by Miriam Seegar, a lovely blonde actress whose rise in Hollywood has been spectacular. She made her stage debut at the age of 13, and, deciding to come to New York, obtained small bits in musical productions until her big chance came. Learning that A. H. Woods, the Broadway producer, was casting for two companies of a stage play, "Crime," Miss Seegar sought work with him. He promised her a role in the Chicago production, but she was intent on going abroad with the London company. So great was her eagerness that Mr. Woods finally consented to grant her wish; and Miss Seegar remained in England almost three years, playing stage and picture roles.

In "What A Man!" Miss Seegar plays the part of Eileen Kilbourne, haughty heiress whose resentment at Denny's presence in the household as chauffeur and ex-tramp, changes to a more romantic feeling in the course of the unusual story. E. J. Rath wrote the popular novel, "The Dark Chapter," on which this amusing talkie is based. George J. Crone directed.

FANCHON MARCO GIRLS HERE AGAIN

Here are Fanchon Marco girls at play. They are seen and heard on the stage of the Fox West Coast Theater Saturday and Sunday.

NEWEST MARCO VARIETY HERE FOR 2 DAYS

The Fanchon and Marco Varieties, which come here again this week to the Fox-West Coast theater, Saturday and Sunday will include the Eight Fanchonette Girls, in a number of songs and dances, according to the program announced today by Norman Sprowl, of the Fox theaters.

The show as a whole is particularly good this week, and includes Marie Sweeney, in a Spanish web novelty act, Curry and Brown in a big dancing number and Warren and Inman, in a comedy act.

The band will be on the stage and the program has been arranged so that it is regarded as the best of the varieties yet to be brought to Santa Ana.

On the screen will be seen Dorothy Mackall in her latest all-talking picture, "Strictly Modern." Although she is English by birth, she speaks "American" in this film.

Motion picture players who affect an English accent unless their roles call for it are losing realism in their portrayals, according to Miss Mackall.

"To speak with an English accent when you are portraying an American girl, even though she is of high social standing, is as out of place as portraying a French character with an Irish brogue," said Miss Mackall. "It is un-American and not in keeping with the best traditions of the screen."

In "Strictly Modern," her current First National production, she plays a noted authoress who specializes in sexy novels.

Sidney Blackmer, Julianne Johnston, Warner Richmond, Mickey Bennett and Katherine Claire Ward are in the cast. William Selter directed.

EX-MOROSCO STAR

Edward Sutherland, Paramount director, quit the vaudeville stage a few years ago to join Oliver Morosco's "So Long Letty" musical comedy production.

MAUDE WAS PRODUCER

Cyril Maude, who plays the title role of "Grumpy" in Paramount's talking picture of that name, at one time produced his own plays at the Haymarket theater in London.

Charles Mack, lazy-voiced member of the Moran and Mack team of Two Black Crows starred in Paramount's "Anybody's War," is growing an acre of potatoes at his Newhall, California, ranch.

Rin-Tin-Tin In Film At State

Rin-Tin-Tin is one picture star whose popularity never seems to wane and his latest picture, "The Man Hunter," which Warner Brothers offer as the current attraction at Walker's State theater will add new fans to his already impressive list.

"The Man Hunter" is a whirlwind melodrama, packed with action and suspense and giving Rinty another glorious opportunity to prove himself a hero. The supporting cast is exceptionally fine and the story moves swiftly and surely to a tremendous climax.

The locale is the African Ivory coast, that little known region where the jungle touches the ocean front and where the precious tusks are gathered for shipment to the rest of the world. With such a setting Rinty's new melodrama has a sure-fire interest and universal appeal.

'GOLDEN DAWN' OPENS RUN AT WALKER HOUSE

All the riot of mad color and mysterious sound of the African jungle has been captured by Vitaphone in the Technicolor version of "Golden Dawn." Warner Brothers feature picture, which comes to Walker's State theater Sunday for a run of three days.

For the first time a highly successful stage production with a cast that no stage production could afford to offer, has been transferred to the screen in full color and musical accompaniment. The great advantages of the camera over the theater have been used to give additional dramatic force and spectacular grandeur to the original production.

"Golden Dawn," which is the story of a white girl held captive in savage Africa, was admirably suited for adaptation. Walter Woolf, famous New York stage star, heads a cast that includes Vivienne Segal, Noah Beery, Alice Gentile, Lupino Lane, Marion Byron, Lee Moran, Nigel de Bruiler, Otto Matieson, Dick Henderson, Nina Quartaro, Solja, Julianne Johnston, Nick de Ruiz and Edward Martin-del.

CHEVALIER'S DEBUT

Maurice Chevalier, continental idol now starring in Paramount pictures, made his theatrical debut at the Casino des Tourelles in Paris.

SHELLEY' TEMPLE THEATRE 3rd AND BUSH STREETS

SHELLEY HOUSE CONTINUES ITS VODVIL SHOWS

Carrying on with the summer policy of five acts of first class vaudeville every Saturday night at Shelley's Temple theater, tonight will mark the second program of the season.

Mr. Shelley seems to have been right in his statement last week, that Santa Ana theater-goers were ready and hungry for some real good, in person, vaudeville of the American style for last Saturday night's program went over with a "wow" to a nearly packed house.

Tonight's vaudeville program promises to be even better than last week's and consists of the following five acts: The California Adagio Trio, a sensational dancing act, Chas. Leeland in Something Different; Tom and Kathryn Cochran in a comedy dancing act; Bozo Fox and Ferris in The Two American Beauties and Walter Nins, the accordion player de luxe.

The feature screen offering tonight is the daredevil automobile racing story, "Speed Crazy" with Billy Sullivan behind the wheel of action.

"Speed Crazy" is beyond a doubt one of the very fastest and most thrilling stories of its kind ever produced and should more than satisfy anyone's yen for action, as well as give them a story long to be remembered.

Also on tonight's program is the comedy, "Beatitudes Beware," a serial and a Felix cartoon, making a strong and well balanced show.

COMPANY AT SEA

Several sequences of Paramount's "The Sea God" which features Richard Arlen and Fay Wray are being filmed aboard a sailing schooner on the high seas.

Dorothy Arzner, Paramount's only woman director, is an expert driver. During the war, she was enrolled in the ambulance corps.

"GOLDEN DAWN"

Vitaphone achieves a new triumph in screen entertainment with this epochal production. The conflict of fierce passions—the romance of young love—and glorious voices of famous singers in an amazing symphony of golden song.

Brilliantly told, this exciting love story of the jungle has mystery—melodrama—comedy—and an atmosphere of unfailingly compelling interest.

Ted Newcomb	17,800
Jack Hutton	6,700
Jack Lindlaw	6,350
Maxson Stull	5,000
John Stanacker	5,000

The above list shows the standings of the candidates in the big Santa Ana Register-Fox West Coast theaters popularity contest up to and including Thursday night. The figures were announced at the theaters here yesterday afternoon.

The scores show Miss Dorothy Loyd and Mario Mercurio in the leading positions. Mercurio far out in front of his nearest competitor, and also shows that a number of the candidates have been doing excellent work in the way of getting votes in the first five days of the contest.

The contest will run until August 24, and the first count of the votes will have little to do with the final reckoning. It was pointed out today. Many of the candidates have not started to work in earnest yet and there are expected to be at least 10 or 15 more candidates in the field before the contest gets much further along.

More Prizes Offered

Announcement was made today by Norman Sprowl, manager of the Fox theaters here and also of the contest, that three new prizes had been offered the winners of the contest.

The new prizes are 12 cabinet photographs, worth $50, offered by Cochem's Photography Shop; a ladies' wrist watch, worth $50, offered by the William Lorenz Jewelry store, and a Roper cooking range, worth $113.50, sold by the Southern Counties Gas company and offered by them as a prize.

Prizes previously offered were a 10-day trip to Catalina Island, with all expenses paid, offered by J. Frank Burke, publisher of The Register; a round trip to San Diego via airplane, offered by the Eddie Martin airport; down payment of $300 on a Willys-Knight sport model roadster; a ladies' evening gown, worth $50, offered by the Sample Shop, and a suit of men's clothes, offered by the Brooks Clothing store.

Votes can be obtained through purchase of subscriptions to the Santa Ana Register; through the purchase of tickets to either the Fox West Coast or the Fox Broadway theaters here, and through purchase of merchandise offered by any of the stores which have offered prizes in the contest. Each cent spent entitles the purchaser to one vote.

The first prize in the big popularity contest will be the leading parts in a motion picture which will be made in Santa Ana by the Fox West Coast theaters.

One new candidate entered yesterday. She is Miss Dorothy Reynolds, of the Valencia Tavern, on North Main street.

FAMOUS AS DETECTIVE

Thomas E. Jackson, playing a detective in "For The Defense," William Powell's new Paramount starring picture, created the role of the detective in the stage play, "Broadway."

ENTIRE POLAR DASH RECORDED WITH CAMERAS

Commander Richard Byrd's great dash to the south pole is wonderfully told in the Paramount all-talking descriptive picture which comes to the Fox West Coast theater Monday for a five-day run, bringing what is believed to be the biggest entertainment and educational "scoop" a local house has had in more than a year.

The picture will play through next Friday night.

Actual scenes of the South Pole, of the valiant Americans as they drop the American flag on the pole, and wonderful scenes of the antarctic country as it has never been seen before are some of the highlights of the production, just released to the public.

The picture shows Byrd's trip from the time he leaves New York until his return. His voice is recorded throughout and each step of the dangerous route taken to the pole is graphically told in the big picture.

The unpacking of the precious plane, the warming up processes, the final dash that meant death or victory, all are told in the picture, while the long ocean trip and many other startling shots of the frozen wastelands are seen.

The picture shows strange animals, seen by Byrd and his men, while the entire photographs of the snow laden country is something that should entertain here more than any picture of its kind that has ever been made.

OAKLAND SEDAN FIRST IN RACE WITH AIRPLANE

"I'll bet your this Oakland V-8 will outrun your plane before the plane can take the air."

That's the way the race started and the Oakland V-8 sedan won without trouble, according to A. L. Woods, Oakland-Pontiac dealer here. The race was staged at Mills field, San Francisco's airport, and the man who drove the car is a newly licensed pilot of planes, Victor Ruben, and he was waging with his flying instructor, Ernest Voss, who operates an air school at Mills field.

Ruben, besides being a licensed pilot is an Oakland V-8 salesman. Since he had tested his car over many miles of California highways, he believed that he could defeat his instructor, Voss, in a speed test.

The car was driven to Mills field and Voss had his plane rolled to the starting line. At the drop of a flag, both plane and car were "given the gun" and roared down the field. Ruben kept the Oakland in second gear until it was doing forty, then snapped it into high gear. He still was gaining speed at 55 miles per hour when Voss' plane left the ground, but the car was ahead of the plane to the point where the plane's wheels left the ground.

"It was a wonderful demonstration of the Oakland V-8 and proved to many of the fliers on the field that the Oakland can be made to travel at high speed and accelerates quickly," Ruben said.

Voss is a veteran of the World war and was in the German aviation service. He fought as a member of the famous Richthofen Circus, which caused the British and French so much trouble on the Western front. Voss has several Allied planes to his credit.

HORACE O. LEWIS DIES HERE TODAY

Horace O. Lewis, 75, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Sternke, 202 Wright street, this morning. Mr. Lewis had been here for the last two weeks convalescing from a long illness, when death called.

He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Sternke, Mrs. V. V. Scott, of Santa Ana; Mrs. J. K. Keck, of Long Beach; Mrs. G. A. Llewellyn, of Compton, and one son, Warren J. Lewis, of Long Beach.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock from the Colton Undertaking parlors in Long Beach. The body will be placed in the Long Beach mausoleum.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

A Man Who Found Friendship With God

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 6. A Man Who Found Friendship With God. Gen. 12:1-3; 13:7-12; Heb. 11:8-10.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

The general title of this lesson is "Abraham, a Pioneer of Faith." Abraham was a pioneer in more senses than one. Even apart from the matter of religious faith, he stands as the great prototype of those who have felt the urge to leave their old established home environment to go forth seeking new adventures and new opportunities in the building of new civilizations.

It is interesting to note how much of that pioneer urge and activity have been associated with religious aspiration and motive.

America was settled to a large extent by those who came seeking liberty of conscience and of worship; and the movement out from older communities has always had the inspiration of faith-inspired people seeking a larger field of freedom and expression. Many of these interesting pioneer movements have been associated with forms of religion that have been outside the range of regular movements of church life. The Mormon movement is a conspicuous example of the association of certain forms of religious belief with the pioneer spirit.

Getting Away From Idolatry

The distinction of Abraham religiously, however, was a pioneer of faith. Whatever may have urged him to leave his home in Ur, seeking new opportunities in Palestine, it is religion that in our Biblical record of Abraham's life is the dominant motive and interest.

Many believe that this movement was occasioned on Abraham's part by the sensing of a nobler and clearer conception of God than he found in the idolatrous environment of Ur. If the records suggest what was actually present in Abraham's mind rather than what was read in by a later writer, there was in him a sense of empire building, a consciousness that he was to be the head of a great people.

But one of the most noble things concerning Abraham is the foundation upon which this empire was to be built. He was not a military conqueror, a man of ruthless ambition. He appears, rather, in one of the most enlightening and beautiful passages of the whole Bible as a man whose peaceful spirit and purposes rebuke the plans and purposes of nations still unduly occupied with war and bloodshed.

The moral living of the man matched his vision and his common sense, and when one thinks of the greed and selfishness of individuals and nations that have brought about all manner of conflict and tragedy and that have been at the very foundation of world tyrannies, one has profound respect and admiration for this man who, when his herdsmen were in strife with the herdsmen of Lot, his kinsman, said, "Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdsmen and thy herdsmen; for we are brethren."

Nor did Abraham merely express the ideals of peace. He put his ideals magnanimously into practice by allowing Lot the first choice of the country that they were to divide. In that recognition of brotherhood Abraham defined the true foundation of peace and good will. Let us pause and consider how far this world with all its supposed advancement, its scientific enlightenment, and its proud consciousness of its progress is actually in matters of faith and spirit far behind a pioneer of faith like Abraham. If we could be saved from something of our pharisaic sense of superiority, and could really appreciate in humble and prayerful spirit the ideal of goodness and greatness of the spiritual leaders of the past, we should be much more truly in the way of progress.

Still Need Pioneers
The great truth is that the world today still stands in need of pioneers. So far as geographical tracts are concerned, the world is fairly well filled up; there is no unexplored and unsettled territory westward where the ambitious man of today can go or where the course of an empire can longer take its way; but the larger field that none the less opens up to this world of knowledge and enlightenment, is the pioneer field of social, moral, and spiritual enterprise.

There are great new triumphs to achieve in the attainment of human welfare and in the progress that is registered not merely in material prosperity but in the goodness and happiness of a people.

EAT MORE BUTTER CAMPAIGN LAUNCHED

Spurred on by the huge accumulated surplus of butter, the American Farm Bureau federation, in co-operation with dairy leaders, has instituted an "eat more butter" campaign.

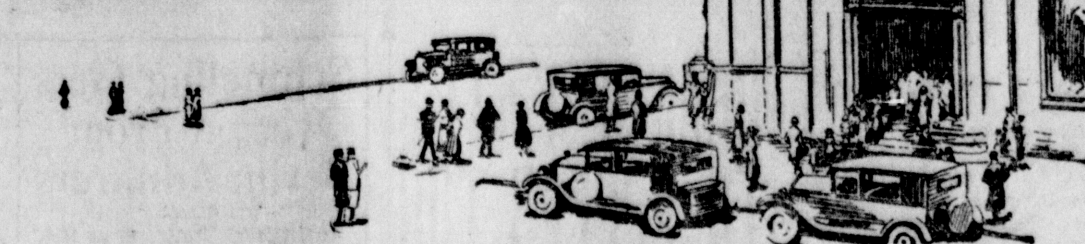

Half a pound per week and a quart of milk per day for every member of the farm bureau will solve the situation with which dairy farmers are faced, say farm bureau officials, and will soon place the nation's largest agricultural industry, dairying, on a profitable basis.

"The condition of the dairy industry," M. S. Winder, executive secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation states in a statement calling attention to the campaign, "largely affects and determines the prosperity of other branches of agriculture. Just as the price of steel is the determining factor in the industrial world, so is the price of butter fat in the agricultural world. Grain, live stock and other farm commodities are directly affected by the price of butter fat."

The solution of the problem, Mr. Winder says, is simply a question of the utilization of dairy products as they should be utilized from an economic and a health standpoint.

"After most careful consideration," he concluded, "the American Farm Bureau Federation recommends that the county farm bureaus conduct energetic educational campaigns to stimulate the consumption of butter and dairy products, thereby promoting not only the prosperity of the community but the health of individuals as well."

The Church Invites You

THE VALUE OF MEDITATION

John R. Mott says, "The absence of religious meditations accounts for some things which ought to cause us real alarm. Too much professionalism among Christian workers; too much formalism among the rank and file of Christians; too much superficiality in the religious life of multitudes of church members—these are the outcome of such a situation."

The church public service of worship is the special hour for meditation—a special privilege to correct the heart life against professionalism, to purify the religious motive and eliminate superficiality.

Cromwell said, "He who stops becoming better, stops being good." Why not accept the invitation and JOIN US AT CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Duty Done Regardless

Much is said today of flaming youth. As in the past much can be said of flaming parents. Just because the boys and girls are young, there is a tendency to underestimate them and disregard the work they are doing. The following is a good example:

Some time ago a boy in an eastern city was appointed junior police officer. He was given the responsibility of regulating traffic at a certain street corner which school children had to cross on their way to and from school. As a symbol of his authority, he wore a white belt and shoulder strap as well as a badge. He felt the dignity of his office and the responsibility that was his in guarding the safety of the boys and girls.

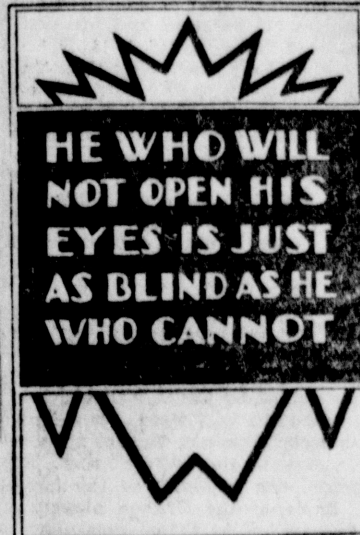

The boy's father happened to be driving his automobile past that particular corner just as the stop signal was given. One glance revealed it was only a boy who was in charge, so he crashed the signal, though without injuring any of the children who were crossing. After a moment of astonishment, the boy took down the number of his father's car, reported the facts to police magistrates, and had his father brought to court and fined. He had his mind set to detect violators of the law and did his duty regardless of the embarrassment involved by such action.

The Tangle of Traffic

A commencement speaker once made the following remarks before a group of several hundred high school graduates: "Life is a one-way street and all the traffic moves in one direction. You will find that some of the crowd will insist upon disregarding rules, some will make wrong turns, some ignore the rights of others and become obstructionists. Everyone of us should be a policeman to help keep the traffic flowing in the right direction. In my opinion you can't do much by bawling men out for disobeying the rules of the game but by standing at your place of duty, directing by word, example and act, you will be doing your bit in the most practical way."

Church Forum

(Send church and Sunday school problems in question form to the church editor; question with answer will appear in later issue.)

HOW CAN A CLOSER RELATIONSHIP BE ESTABLISHED BETWEEN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL AND THE CHURCH?

This problem ought to be considered in a conference by the official board and by the Sunday school board and such plans worked out as will be helpful in getting the desired results. The following suggestions are collected from various churches and schools—one pastor conducts a Holy Communion service in the church school session, teaching the meaning of it and encouraging all members to attend the church Communion service. Some teachers give special credit for pupils' notes on the pastor's sermon; one school makes church attendance the previous Sunday a part of the Sunday school report every Sunday; several churches provide for special programs in which the school participants; one Sunday school has as its objective for the year a definite number of church accessions from the school, such additions to be made every month. Church leaders active in the school should see to it that such a welcome and such a type of service be provided as to create an interest in the church. Due recognition should be given the fact that there are two outstanding services—the teaching and the preaching service and when he attends only the Sunday school session he has been in attendance at only half the church service. Church leaders should express their appreciation for increasing interest on the part of the church school pupils, producing a conviction that true worship of God is fundamental in the building of Christian character.

Reasoning against prejudice is like fighting a shadow—it exhausts the reasoner without visibly affecting the prejudice. How little of God's great plan can be enjoyed by those who will not open their eyes to view it—how narrow and confined are the thoughts of those who choose to look at life through glasses colored by prejudice.

Abraham, a Pioneer of Faith, Genesis 12:1-3, 13:7-12 Hebrews 11:8-10 for Sunday, July 6.

1—Why was it necessary that Abraham be called out of Haran?

2—What was the price that Abraham had to pay to obey God's call?

3—What was the purpose of this call to Abraham?

4—What are the dangers of wealth and prosperity as taught in this lesson?

5—What magnanimous attitudes are seen in Abraham in his dealing with Lot?

6—What are some of the reactions that cause men to emigrate today?

7—Why is immigration in America restricted and by what Christian principles is such restriction justified?

Clergians says, "Progress always costs sacrifice and spiritual progress has ever called for the bravest service and the fullest devotion of heroic leaders and prophets and apostles."

Lesson prayer, "Help us to make thee, O God, our one and only God and to trust thee for the blessings of life, willing to pursue peace with all men at any cost."

NUMBER OF CHICKS IN U. S. SHOWS GAIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—

The number of chicks and young chickens of this year's hatch on hand June 1 in the farm flocks of crop reporters was about 6 per cent greater than the number on June 1, 1929, the crop reporting board of the bureau of agricultural economics, U. S. department of agriculture, has announced. The number of May 1 was more than 20 per cent greater and on April 1 it was almost 60 per cent greater than on the same dates a year ago.

The season was unusually early and favorable for laying and hatching this spring, and production of chicks by commercial hatcheries was extremely heavy, says the board. Judging from the June returns of crop reporters for their own flocks, the final increase in numbers this year is likely to be moderate.

The number of commercial flocks reported is not sufficient to permit an accurate estimate of changes in numbers for that group, but commercial flocks have apparently been increased more rapidly than farm flocks, the board adds.

Numbers in farm flocks on June 1 in the United States were about 12 per cent greater than on that date in 1928, but only 3 or 4 per cent greater than in 1927. Increases in flocks are reported at about 11 per cent in the north Atlantic, about 5 per cent in the north central, 3 per cent in the south Atlantic, 2 per cent in the south central and 20 per cent in the western group of states.

Fly Larvae Found In Ship Shipment

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—The familiar story of the gun that "wasn't loaded" had its parallel today in the basket of Hawaii grown figs which were not Medfly-infested.

Twelve fly larvae were found in figs which a San Joaquin valley rancher's daughter failed to declare on arrival at San Francisco from Honolulu, Director G. H. Hecke announced.

"Why, of course I wouldn't want to bring in any fruit flies," the possessor of the figs declared. "My father's in the business of raising fruit in the San Joaquin valley."

Two 60-pound hampers of helix maculata, large edible snails from Italy, also were numbered in recent seizures of agricultural contraband at San Francisco. These snails, like helix pisana, which were eradicated in coastal regions with considerable difficulty several years ago, are destructive to crops, according to A. C. Fleury, in charge of plant quarantine service, who reported the seizure. It is the practice of importers of these snails to turn them loose for fattening, prior to consumption, thus giving the snails a chance to escape and spread to adjacent territory.

Stars Face La Habra Tuesday

ORANGE FALLS TO APPEAR FOR BOWL CONTEST

A decimal a day keeps the others away, theme-songed the Santa Ana Stars today as they counted Orange as their sixth straight victim of the current National Night league baseball race and turned their attention toward Tuesday and what will happen when they meet Chico Sabella, et al at La Habra.

The Stars were to have played Orange in the Bowl last night but the affair was forfeited, 9 to 0, a few minutes after 8 o'clock when Umpires "Rube" Hall and Bill Jenkins said "Play Ball!"

Santa Ana players took their usual positions, with Joe Cornelius on the knoll. The umpires also went to their posts. Cornelius very officially threw a ball across the plate to Catcher "Eeny" Wilcox. Umpire Hall then even more officially announced to the well populated stands that Santa Ana won the "game" by forfeit, 9 to 0.

Deny Game Called Off
Published statements that the game had been postponed or an agreement reached whereby the clubs would meet later were vigorously denied by Santa Ana officials who said the last word they had with Lyle Richards, Orange's manager, was to the effect that he would bring his club to the bowl.

Some of the Orange players appeared but there was not enough to make a team. Richards himself was not present.

Santa Anans said there would be no further negotiations with the Orangemen. The forfeit will be accepted and incident forgotten.

Muir Impresses Fans
Manager Herb Salverson divided his squad and ran off a snappy exhibition game, Russell Muir, the Stars' kid rookie from Long Beach, hurled for one side and Mearl Youel, one of the Orange gunners, slinging for the other. Muir looked very impressive in this, his first workout with the club. He fooled all the Stars regulars except Randolph Bell who tapped him for a long home run. Muir works too fast but otherwise shapes up as a good prospect.

The Stars face three tough contests in the next 10 days, the first two away from home, but hit the trail one full game ahead of La Habra and three to the good over Whittier and Anaheim. After the La Habra tussle Tuesday, which the Stars regularly except Randolph Bell who tapped him for a long home run. Muir works too fast but otherwise shapes up as a good prospect.

Friday's Results
Santa Ana 9, Orange 0 (forfeited to Santa Ana).
Whittier 5, Anaheim 0.
La Habra 3, Olive 0.
Fullerton-Huntington Beach (postponed).

Schmeling Gets Ovation From Berlin Admirers

BERLIN, July 5.—Max Schmeling was given an enthusiastic greeting by more than 5000 fans when he arrived here by airplane last night. The German boxer arrived in Bremerhaven on the steamer Bremen and flew to Berlin, accompanied by his mother and his trainer, Max Buchon.

Schmeling said he had not yet recovered from the effects of the foul punch through which he won the world heavyweight championship, but that he hoped to meet Sharkey in a return bout in September.

S. A. TRACKMEN WIN BIG MEET AT LONG BEACH

Chalking up 29 points for an overwhelming victory over the Los Angeles Athletic club, four members of Santa Ana high school's mighty track team ran away with the open A. A. U. track meet held yesterday at Recreation park, Long Beach, in conjunction with the fourth annual Highland games of the Order of Scottish Clans.

Captain Norman Paul, Alvin Rebol, Paul Jacques and Doyle Gilbert were the ones who came home with the track.

More than twice as much as the L.A.A.C. total. He won the 220-yard dash in 24.5 seconds, the 120-yard low hurdles in 15.5 seconds, and the 16-pound shot put at 37 feet 3 1/2 inches. He was second in the 100-yard dash which was won by Rowe of L.A.A.C. in 9.9 seconds, second in the broad jump at 22 feet, 8 inches, and second in the high jump behind Paul Jacques, of Santa Ana, who leaped six feet.

The Saints made a clean sweep in the high jump with Jacques, Paul and Gilbert finishing in that order. Paul and Rebol ran one-two in the hurdles and Paul and Gilbert were first and third in the shot.

In the regular track season, Coach "Tex" Oliver's Saints had a great year, winning the Southern California title, tying for the state crown with San Diego and Sacramento and capturing the Huntington Beach Invitational and the Chaffey Invitational meets.

Norman Paul
The track meet was a triumph for Santa Ana. The team's performance was a testament to their hard work and dedication. The victory was a source of pride for the school and the community.

VAN METER AND MEANS WIN AT COUNTRY CLUB

E. B. Van Meter and J. W. Means today placed handsome, engraved silver trophies on their cupboards, emblematic of their conquests on the Santa Ana Country club golf links in the annual Fourth of July medal play tournament.

Stroking the sporty Newport boulevard course in 81-14-67, Van Meter finished well ahead of a field of 25 Class A golfers, while Means' 94-24-70 earned him the decision by one stroke among a total of 31 Class B players.

J. K. McDonald, past president of the club, was second to Van Meter. He had a net 72 although his 79 was the best gross score of the day. H. B. Rapp, J. L. Almsworth and A. B. Watson tied for third.

Dr. M. A. Patton was closest in pursuit of Means. Dr. Patton had net 71. Jess Goodman, Walter Vandermaast, L. M. Forney and O. Pixley, all with 73, tied for third. McDonald won the regular sweepstakes with Almsworth, Rapp and Watson next. Means won "B" stakes followed by Patton, Goodman, Vandermaast and Forney.

Mrs. J. K. McDonald won the women's flag tournament. She was 350 yards down No. 1 fairway at the finish. Mrs. F. C. Drumm, 50 yards from No. 18 green, was second. Mrs. R. W. Townsend was 150 yards down No. 18 fairway while Mrs. J. L. McFadden was in the wash on No. 18.

SHE DRIVES FAST

Because of her recent success in outdoor motorboat racing activities, Miss Hilda Mueller, of Bay City, Mich., is planning an extensive campaign in mid-western rivers and lakes this summer.

Miss Mueller drove her first speed boat last August and won an 18-mile race. She abandoned the racing game from that time until a few weeks ago when she went east to Worcester, Mass., to establish a world's outdoor racing record of nearly 39 miles an hour.

AMERICAN VET TRIUMPHS IN STRAIGHT SETS

BY WALLACE C. CARROLL (United Press Staff Correspondent)

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 5.—Big Bill Tilden of Philadelphia added the 1930 British singles title to his long list of conquests today when he defeated Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., in the final round by scores of 6-3, 9-7, 6-4.

Tilden's victory came through his service which was in excellent order.

This was Tilden's third Wimbledon championship. He won the title in 1920 and 1921.

This was the third American triumph in the Wimbledon finals which is an almost exclusively United States affair.

Out of 16 names in the finals of the five divisions, only three were those of others than Americans.

Mrs. Moody Wins

Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California was the only American in the mixed doubles final. She played with Jack Crawford, Australia, against Dr. Daniel Prenn and Fraulien H. Krahwinkel, Germany.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, California, won the women's singles over Miss Elizabeth Ryan, also of California, in the finals played yesterday. Scores were 6-2, 6-2.

Mrs. Moody and Miss Ryan today won the women's doubles finals, defeating Miss Edith Cross of San Francisco and Miss Sarah Palfrey of Boston, 6-2, 9-7.

The men's doubles, an All-American affair, will be played Monday. Allison and John Van Ryn of East Orange, N. J., will play George Lott of Chicago and John Doeg of Santa Monica, Calif.

Crawford and Miss Ryan won the mixed doubles championship by defeating Dr. Prenn and Fraulien H. Krahwinkel by scores of 6-1, 6-3.

Royalty Watches Match

King George, Queen Mary and Prince George were spectators at the Tilden-Allison match. Other occupants of the royal box were Princess Helen Victoria, Princess Louise, the former king and queen of Portugal, Marquess De Merry Del Val, Miss Regis Oliveria and Lord and Lady D'Abernon.

Allison has the first serve in the first set and Tilden in the second and third sets. The point score:

First set—1-4, 3-5, 5-3, 4-0, 4-0, 0-4, 2-0, 0-4, 7-9.
Second set—5-3, 2-4, 4-0, 2-4, 4-1, 3-5, 4-0, 2-4, 4-0, 1-4, 4-0, 1-4, 4-0, 8-6.
Third set—4-2, 1-4, 4-2, 2-4, 5-3, 4-2, 1-4, 1-4, 4-1.

Tilden Given Credit
Tennis experts were quick to give all credit to Tilden for his splendid return to form. One of the oldest players in the tournament he played craftily throughout to win in the tournament which is generally regarded as the world's championship event.

Tilden's victory in 1920 was over the defending champion of that year, Gerald Patterson of Australia. Tilden was successful in the defense of his title in 1921 against the thrust of Brian I. C. Norton of South Africa.

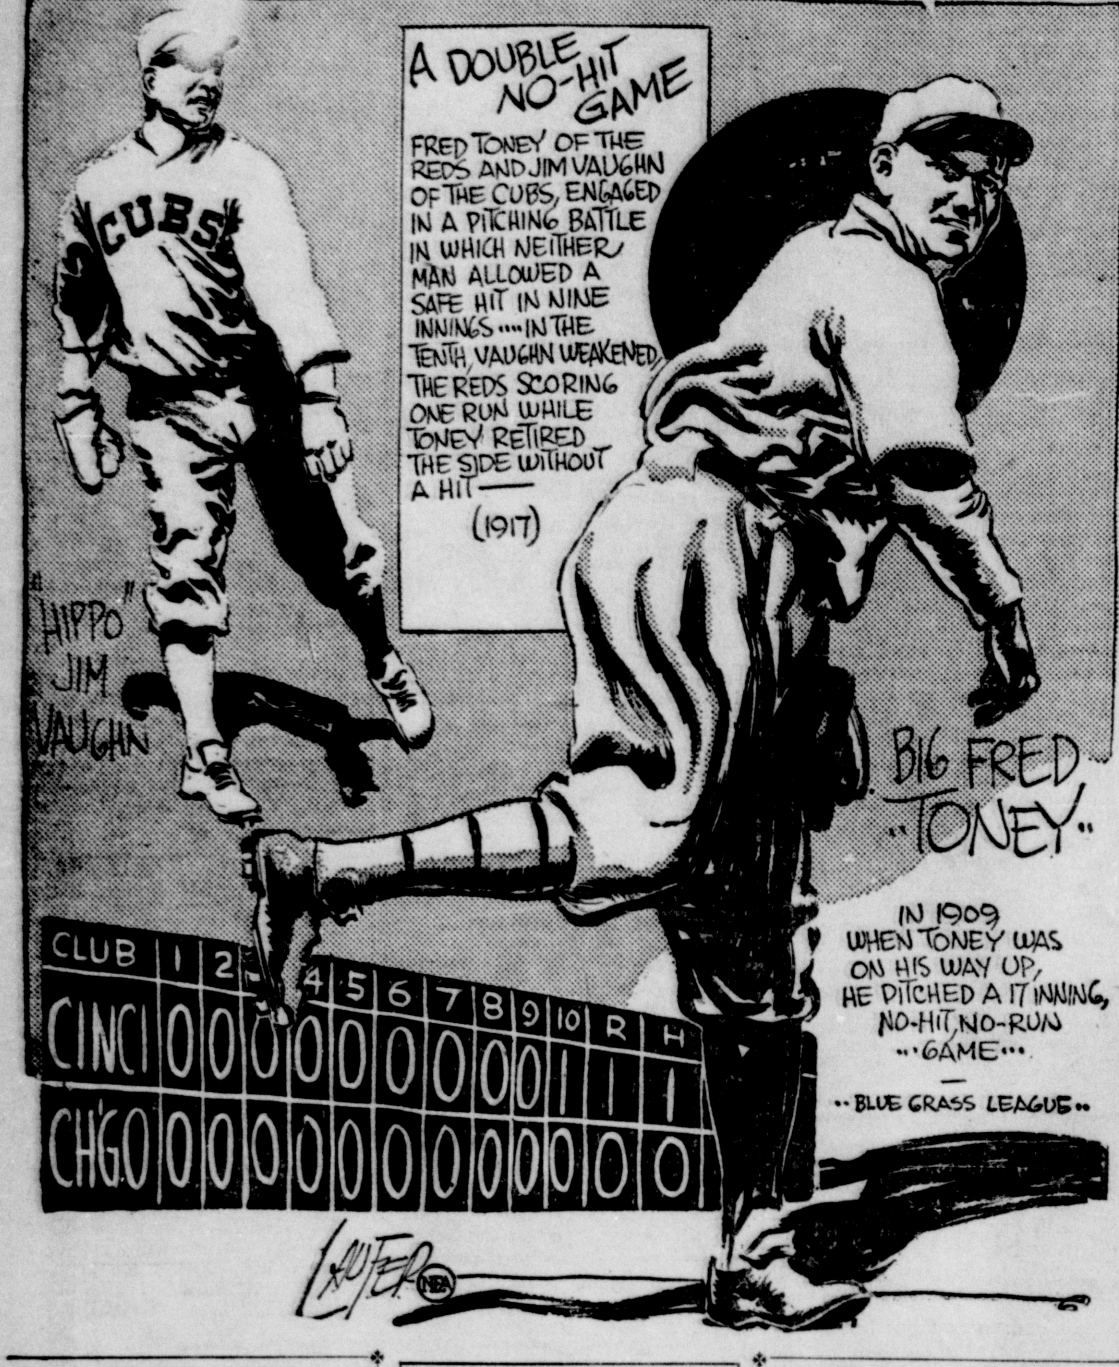

Ironically Tilden won this year over his fellow countryman Allison after Wilmer had removed from the competition the player who was regarded as Tilden's only stumbling block in the meet. This player is Henri Cochet, the great French player, who won the title in 1929.

If he did nothing else, Tilden demonstrated that he is still master of a great and varied attack and of a worthy defense. His speed in crossing the court was amazing.

Allison Wins Applause
Allison, however, showed himself to be the logical successor to Tilden as America's leader. The young American was greeted with wholehearted applause when he made an occasional spurt in which he completely outplayed Tilden.

The Crawford-Ryan victory marked the sixth time in which Miss Ryan shared the mixed doubles title. Her doubles victory with Mrs. Moody was the tenth in that competition.

Miss Ryan's work at the net in the mixed doubles final out short several rallies of the German team, while Crawford plied up with superb volleys.
Dr. Prenn fought valiantly at the net, but he was unable to compensate for the frequent errors of his partner, and his own ragged volleying.

RECORDS FALL IN SWIMMING CHAMPIONSHIP

LONG BEACH, July 5.—The third day events of the national swimming championships were scheduled here today, climaxing Fourth of July races which saw two new world records established.

Helene Madison of Seattle, sensational high school girl who broke two world marks in the opening day's events, came back yesterday to set a new record for the 400-yard free style in 5:34.4-10, lowering the 5:47.4-10 record held by Josephine McKim of Los Angeles, who was second. Lisa Lindstrom, New York A. C., was third and Jennie Kramer, Los Angeles, fourth.

George Kojac, the New York A. C. star, set a new world mark by negotiating the 220-yard backstroke in 2:35.4-10. The old record was 2:37.8-10, Maiola Kallil of Hawaii was second, Frank Walton, Hollywood A. C., third and George Fissler, New York A. C., fourth.

Kallil took the 440-yard free style race from the fast field, nosing out "Buster" Crabbe, Los Angeles, who set a new world record for the mile on opening day. Ray Ruddy, New York A. C., was third and Alfredo Zorilla, the Argentine performer for New York, fourth.

SMITH IS FIRST IN 'B' TENNIS TOURNAMENT

G. G. Smith today was leading the Class B division of the Santa Ana playground tennis tournament with four victories and no defeats following the completion of fourth round matches. F. W. Bettis has three wins and no losses to his credit.

Thursday's "B" results follow:
Dr. Kenneth C. Coulson won from C. B. Hardesty, 6-0, 6-0.
F. W. Bettis defeated Harold Smith, 6-4, 6-3.
Faris Edgar beat Robert Horne, 6-3, 6-2.
Ward Bettis defeated C. B. Hardesty, 6-2, 6-1.

S. A. Skeet Club Plans Match With Pasadena

Crack shots of the Santa Ana Skeet club will meet the Eaton Canyon club riflemen of Pasadena in a team match on the West Fifth street range of the Santa Ana organization tomorrow morning.

Firing will begin at 9 o'clock, according to Secretary Herb Carter.

The Santa Anans who will shoot are A. L. Steward, W. W. Berry, Arnold Peak, Cal Gregg, Rex Rogers, Carl Kumpke, Bart DeVoll and Herb Carter.

ANAPAUMAS TO PLAY FIREMEN: DEFEAT HEMET

With the scalp of the Hemet Reds already in his knapsack, Anapauma Rancho goes after a second straight baseball victory for the week at the Orange County Fair grounds tomorrow.

D. Eymann Huff's athletes will play the Los Angeles Fire department, one of the strongest independent aggregations in the city, at 2:15.

The Anapaumas played good ball to beat Hemet, 6 to 4, yesterday. Al Encinas was nipped for 11 base-hits but kept them elegantly scattered until a five-run advantage given him a five-run advantage.

Joe Mene hit two home runs over the fence for Anapauma. Danny Velasquez will pitch for Anapauma tomorrow.

Nationalista Is Defeated By Hill

HONOLULU, July 5.—Johnny Hill, mainland Filipino, defeated Young Nationalista, crack Filipino boxer, here last night in a fast and furious 10-round bout. The aggressor during most of the fight, Hill did heavy damage to Nationalista with a series of mean left hooks.

YOUNG CORBETT AGAIN DEFEATS JACK THOMPSON

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—"A champion without a crown."

That was how fans today were acclaiming Young Corbett III, who has twice defeated a world's welterweight champion, although he himself does not now and never has held the title.

Yesterday before a crowd of 15,000 the Fresno southpaw gave a sound and convincing thrashing to Young Jack Thompson, Oakland Negro, and holder of the present welterweight championship.

The Negro, like Jackie Fields, whom Corbett defeated last Washington's birthday, saved his title by the simple process of insisting that the southpaw enter the ring overweight, thus making it a non-titular affair.

Corbett was an aggressive master throughout the 10 rounds that ended in his victory by a decision. He landed clean, hard blows that had a telling effect on the somewhat bewildered Thompson.

Experience alone helped the Negro to avoid a possible knockout in the ninth round, when he was driven in a dazed condition to the resin for the count of nine.

Unless Thompson has the grace to fight Corbett again, and this time give the tricky Fresno a chance at the title, he will go down in history as a sorry sort of a champion. He seemed dead on his feet, stogy in his defense and incapable of effectual attack.

Corbett weighed in at 148 1/2 and Thompson at 145.
"I was stale and overtrained," Thompson said today. "I knew I wasn't right before I entered the ring."

STELLA WALSH SETS THREE NEW RECORDS

DALLAS, Tex., July 5.—Six new world's records were written on the books of the National Athletic association today as a result of flashing performances in the annual women's track and field meet here.

Team honors for the meet went to the Illinois Athletic club, which scored 30 points. The Dallas Employers' Casualty company team was second with 19.

SWEETNESS AND LIGHT

Evidently the burglars who infest the racketeering called boxing in this country are up on their Bible. There is a deal afoot to let the Ambling Alp fight in New York state for a charity fund. It must be that the plug-uglies of cauliflowerdom have been brushing up on their Bible. For it is written that charity shall cover the multitude of sins.

Somberly and indignantly, they suspended Carnera for the Battle of the Dirty Towel. The Battle of the Dirty Towel took place in Oakland, Calif., which is a long way from New York, but for reasons best known to themselves, New York concurred in the action of the California commission, suspending the bulky boy.

FUNNY BUSINESS

The Battle of the Dirty Towel was like this, you see. One of the seconds of Bombo Chevalier, growing suddenly and unexplainably faint of heart when he saw Chevalier slip to the damp canvas and take a count of nine while resting on one knee, hauled away and flung a towel into the arena, terminating the showing and hauling. It was all very strange, as Chevalier seemed healthy enough at the time.

The California Boxing commission held one of those very convulsive investigations and Primo was suspended, given his money and bade Goodspeed. So New York followed California's action, which New York does when it sees fit.

SYLVESTER PAYS

People however, represented in the person of Sylvester U. Sapp, the guy who encourages burglary by paying to see it done, continued to patronize the Carnera caravan. The Primo went his way in Michigan and Pennsylvania, piling up nice figures at the box office.

Now, New York has several charities it likes to give a great big hand to. One of them is the milk fund. In order to buy milk for the kiddies, Max Schmeling, who had been suspended for his failure to carry out the commission's order that he fight Phil Scott, was reinstated to meet a Bostonian of Lithuanian extraction named Jack Sharkey.

The milk fund drew a gate of nearly $500,000 and charity reported by something like $135,000. Pretty soon New York is going to stage a boxing show for the cancer fund. Another charity show. So it is necessary, not to say imperative, that another suspended boxer be reinstated in order to help sweet charity. In other words, Carnera is the only boxer in America right now who could do the cancer fund any good whatever. For charity they lifted the suspension from Schmeling. For charity they would beckon Carnera with open arms?

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

A ton of money from the east poured into Los Angeles and San Francisco on Carnera to win over Godfrey, according to Tom Laird, San Francisco sports editor. . . . The Italian was a 2 1/2 to 1 favorite to win. . . . and a lot of San Francisco gamblers, who had seen the Carnera-Chevalier fiasco, bet on Godfrey. . . . A Philadelphia newspaper is running a column called, "The Fool Bag," in which it rates citizens air their bruises. . . . Baron Jimmy Dougherty, manager of Godfrey, says "that big bound qu on me," referring to Godfrey's touting of Carnera. . . . Knute Rockne saw the Poughkeepsie regatta but refused to talk football because it was so hot. . . . Babe Herman made his first error of the season on his birthday recently. . . . Victorio Campolo wishes to have it announced that his brudder, Felipe, is only manager. . . . evidently he's not doing piece-work.

REAL ESTATE

WARNS BUYERS TO SCRUTINIZE ALL CONTRACTS

The state real estate department scrutinizes contracts of purchase and sale, leases and conveyances, used by land subdividers, and frequently persuades changes in their terms, but unscrupulous sellers sometimes employ vicious, unfair and loosely worded contracts, according to a statement by Commissioner Stephen Barnson. Prospective purchasers are advised to carefully study all contracts before signing.

Among examples of detrimental clauses found by the department are:

Seller reserved right to interplant the trees with truck garden for three years to his own profit. Several paragraphs further on it was set forth that purchaser should pay for all water applied to the land.

Another declares purchaser automatically forfeits any and all claim to the property or to any equity therein should he record the agreement prior to his having paid in full for the property.

Another resorts to selling lots with promise of customary street improvements and water mains, but omits dates of commencement of completion of such installations.

Realtors Named By 5 Counties On Planning Bodies

Eight California counties have appointed planning commissions in accordance with a law adopted at the last session of the legislature, and eight realtors have been appointed on these commissions, according to the California Real Estate association, which for some time past has advocated the naming of realtors to these positions.

Zent Appointed Acting President Of State Realtors

George W. Zent, Hollywood realtor, regional vice president and chairman of the educational council of the California Real Estate association, has been designated by President W. H. Daum as acting president during the latter's absence from the state during the month of July.

President Daum heads the California delegation now enroute to the annual convention of the national association at Toronto, and on his return will stop over July 19 at Ogden, where he will address the state convention of the Utah State Realty association.

LAGUNA BEACH CAR BUILDING IS UNDER WAY

LAGUNA BEACH, July 5.—Excavation work has started this week for a building to be erected on Coset boulevard on the ocean side between Broadway and Aster streets for El Capistrano Motors of San Juan Capistrano. It is to be used as a sales room and for servicing cars.

The building will be of Spanish style of architecture of a similar design to that of the new one opposite the mission in Capistrano, which has been widely admired because of the novel features and its faithfulness to genuine mission style. The structure will be 68 feet in length along the boulevard and is promised as one of which will be attractive and a credit to the district in which it is being erected. Smith Brothers started excavation work. The property is owned by Howard G. Heisler and the deal with W. H. Griswold of the motor company was made through Peterson and Planalp.

LUXURY TAX IS URGED BY REAL ESTATE LEADER

"Real property pays a large percentage of all taxes collected by state and local governments," declares Hayden F. Jones, Fresno, chairman of the taxation committee of the California Real Estate association. "Federal income tax figures for California gave individual and corporation incomes amounting to four times that from real estate."

"We believe in placing a limitation on the amount of taxes to be levied against property, which would prohibit the taxing of real property in any one year for more than 25 per cent of the cost of government until such time as it could be shown that the income from property was greater than 25 per cent of the total income and that at all times, real property's share of the cost of government would be confined to its proportion of the total income."

"We believe that the ways and means of establishing such a limitation and maintaining it, are amply available. In studying the structure of government, we have found that the chief contributing factors in the increase of cost of government come from the social functions of government, chiefly education, public welfare and public health."

"To find additional revenue from sources not already taxed, we consider that a luxury consumers' tax is possible without creating an unfair burden on anyone, and very greatly reducing the present unfair tax burden."

21 WELLS SLATED FOR STATE FIELDS

Oil field operations reported to State Oil and Gas Supervisor R. D. Bush during the week show 21 new wells started, as compared with 29 during the previous week. Of the 21 notices to drill filed, three were for wells in the Long Beach field, two in the Potrero field, one each in the Brea-Olinda field, Inglewood field, Playa del Rey field, four in the Rincon field, two in the Elwood field, six in the fields of Kern county and one in the Kettleman Hills field. The total new wells this year is 413, as compared with 709 at the same date last year.

The Union Oil company has a permit to drill Naranjal No. 15 in the Brea-Olinda field. The General Petroleum corporation has a permit to abandon Rimpau No. 1 in Orange county.

Abandonment numbered 11, as compared with eight during the previous week. The total to date this year is 216, total to same date last year 242.

Newport, Laguna Properties Sold

LAGUNA BEACH, July 5.—Among recent sales of property in this community is that of the Frampton ocean front property located between Anita and Thalia streets to O. H. McKee in an exchange for Newport bay frontage. The deal was made by the Arch Beach Realty company, reported by C. Hartwell Smith, which concern also sold Mrs. Blanche Dean Hall, of New York, the Lienau home on Victoria drive. Mrs. Hall came through the town on a tour, liked its appearance, and returned to purchase property.

STATE FIRST IN PRODUCTION OF PEACHES, PEARS

California ranks first of the states in the production of peaches, pears and grapes, second in the production of rice and tame hay, and fourth in the production of apples and barley, according to the California Real Estate Magazine.

"As long as the world must have food, must be clothed and must be sheltered, so long will agriculture remain a basic field for the investment of capital, the use of machinery and the employment of man," writes G. H. Hecke, director, state department of agriculture, in the same issue.

"California's agriculture, catering much to a rapidly expanding appetite for products largely indigenous to California and foreign to other sections of the United States and other countries, occupies a distinct position of its own. That position is being strengthened constantly through greater agricultural industrialization, more scientific marketing, better standardization, larger capitalization, more skillful merchandising and the protective, regulatory and service work of the California department of agriculture."

"In order to obtain a vivid mental photograph of California's agriculture one should visualize a 7,000,000 acre farm producing 180 or more different crops, both staples and specialties, for which the consuming world pays annually nearly $800,000,000 plus the cost of getting these crops to the consumer."

MOVE MADE TO HELP WESTERN ROAD BUILDING

With the western states intensively interested in highways, congress has moved to lend federal assistance through the passage of the Colton-Oddie bill authorizing appropriations for the construction and maintenance of main roads through unappropriated or unreserved public lands and non-taxable Indian lands, the Automobile Club of Southern California has been advised.

This measure, which has been consistently supported by organized motorists, is of far-reaching importance to the eleven far-western states where the bulk of the land is non-taxable.

The Colton-Oddie bill, sponsored by Senator Tasker L. Oddie, of Nevada, and Representative Don B. Colton, of Utah, has the same purpose as the measure vetoed by President Coolidge in 1928, except that it leaves to Congress the actual amount to be appropriated. Therefore, it is believed that President Hoover will sign the revised bill.

The automobile club says that in effect, the measure passed by the senate on June 16, on the heels of favorable action in the house, amends the act providing for the United States to aid in road-building. As a result, congress is enabled by law to consider the large federal owned and non-taxable areas of the west.

"This money," says the statement, "could only be used in a state having in excess of five percent of the total area of all of its lands in unappropriated public lands and non-taxable lands, and will be apportioned to those states in the proportion that said public lands, is to the total area."

"It means the speeding up of construction on highways through 100,000 square miles of unappropriated and unreserved public lands and the building of important links in transcontinental roads."

"Due to the fact that the country is so sparsely settled and the amount of taxable property is so small, it was impossible to raise funds for this much-needed construction by local taxation."

Laguna Property Bought After Five Minute Inspection

LAGUNA BEACH, July 5.—When Charles J. Coll decided that he would sell his home here, he contemplated entertaining a number of offers, showing the house many times, but remaining in it during the summer.

But the very first persons to come to see the house, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hardin, of Chicago and Pasadena, decided within five minutes that they wanted the attractive place on Victoria drive, close to the ocean. Now Mr. and Mrs. Coll are occupying a rented place.

Moreover, the sale was made through the odd circumstance of having been casually mentioned by Mrs. Roy Williams at a card party in Pasadena on Saturday evening. On the following Monday Mr. and Mrs. Hardin drove down to this city to see the place, making the purchase in record time. Mr. and Mrs. Coll expect to go to North Carolina in the fall.

DODGE ENGAGED IN LONG RACE AT RAPID PACE

Traveling at a fast average touring speed, anticipated at 500 miles a day—the pace it is destined to maintain for hundreds of thousands of miles—a Dodge Brothers stock model eight-in-line sedan is today crossing the continent on the first lap of what is probably the greatest individual automobile mileage feat ever attempted in the history of the industry, according to L. D. Coffing, Dodge Brothers agent.

During July, the first 31 days of this sensational mileage marathon, Dodge dealers throughout the United States will observe Dodge national demonstration month, Coffing said. Dealers everywhere will make a special effort to have as many persons as possible ride in and drive Dodge Brothers automobiles. In many cities local endurance runs, hill-climbing contests and various other events intended to place emphasis on the traditional dependability of Dodge Brothers products are being staged during July.

For 10 or 12 hours every day, including Sundays, the Dodge Eight Mileage Marathon car will be driven back and forth across the continent, around the rim of the United States and up and down the country from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico in the longest, hardest and most unusual demonstration of automobile stamina, durability, performance and long life of all time.

"The astounding total mileage, it is expected, will furnish dramatic and conclusive proof that in the present Dodge six and eight cylinder models, the stamina and durability inherited from a long line of ancestors, famous for their outstanding dependability, has kept pace with the improvements in appearance and performance."

COMMUNION RITES FOR MESA CHURCH

COSTA MESA, July 5.—Communion service will be conducted for the first time by the new Four-square minister, the Rev. D. W. Beverly, Sunday at the 11 o'clock service. The subject of the sermon at this hour will be "In the Upper Room." The "Second Coming" will be the general theme in the evangelistic service at 7:30 p. m.

Special music has been arranged for the evening service. Sunday school will be at 9:45 a. m. with the Crusaders meeting at 6:45 p. m.

WAGE CAMPAIGN
Mississippi has waged an extensive and successful campaign against the cattle-fever ticks and it is now probable that 17 counties of the state will be withdrawn from a quarantine placed on them. When this happens it will be the eleventh state to get rid of the tick embargo.

REALTY DEALS IN CALIFORNIA OVER BILLION

BY HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Special to The Register)

SACRAMENTO, July 5.—More than a billion dollars in real estate deals were transacted in California last year.

Setting a new high record for the state, 430,000 transfers of property were recorded in the 58 counties of the state involving real estate with a value of $1,078,777,500.

The facts were disclosed in the 1930 Growth and Progress number of the California Real Estate Magazine, edited by Glenn Willaman, secretary of the California Real Estate association.

Orange county ranked sixth among the counties of California in the value of its real estate transactions, with a total for the year of $34,612,500.

"No better index of a state's business prosperity can be found than in its real estate business," commented Willaman. "When business is bad, property doesn't sell. But last year, in the face of the great stock market collapse, it is significant that California real estate transfers exceeded a billion dollars."

Los Angeles county contributed 40 per cent of the volume of transfers in the state, with a grand total of 173,000 deals, involving land worth $432,562,500.

Nineteen counties showed property transfers with a valuation of more than $10,000,000, while 10 counties had totals in excess of $20,000.

In the nine counties immediately contiguous to the San Francisco bay, there were 288 filings during the year with an aggregate value of $250,782,500, giving Los Angeles a lead of two to one in number of deals and $185,730,000 in value.

Water Levels In Wells Take Drop

ORANGE, July 5.—Although water levels are lower in the wells of the Santa Ana Valley Irrigation company than they were a year ago, O. E. Mansur, secretary of the water company, has indicated that there is no cause for alarm as a result of the existing condition. Measurements of the levels in four wells of the company show that drops of from 19 to 18 feet have occurred since the same time last year.

School Budget At Costa Mesa Fixed

COSTA MESA, July 5.—The grammar school budget for Costa Mesa for the ensuing term has been placed at $48,100. The kindergarten budget is $4000 and the union high school, $69,045.

School expenses have increased as the growth in population increased.

HESSIAN FLY
Wheat farmers can benefit from instructions on combating the Hessian fly, contained in the U. S. department of agriculture's recent pamphlet on that insect. That insect pest causes more than $100,000,000 damage in one year to wheat.

REALTY MEN ASKED TO AID INDUSTRIES

Feeling that statewide industrial and commercial growth will build the communities of the state in a substantial way, W. H. Daum, president, and George Matulis, chairman of the industrial division, of the California Real Estate association, have urged the local real estate boards to assist their local industries in a constructive manner to solve their problems and to show the realtors appreciation of their value to the community.

Recommendation has therefore been made that when an industry locates in a community, the real estate board president write a letter of appreciation to the industry officials, stating that the realtors are grateful for the payroll that is being disbursed in the community, and that they would appreciate advice from the management if at any time conditions in the community are not congenial, and extend to the industry the aid and assistance of the citizens in correcting any undesirable condition.

The boards have also been asked to request that the management of the industry advise the president of the local board of any suggestions whereby the realtors can be of assistance in establishing ideal industrial and commercial life within the respective districts.

Work Progressing On Gymnasium

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, July 5.—Work of finishing the Williams gymnasium of the new Capistrano high school is under full swing, with an $11,000 expenditure planned. Orange county firms which have been awarded contracts include the H. O. Ehlen Plumbing company, of Orange, which will handle the plumbing; the Schmid company of Santa Ana, interior finishing of the building, and the W. DeWolfe company, of San Clemente, gas heaters.

John Malcom, superintendent of the high school, will establish a complete new system of keeping records next fall, having made an exhaustive study of forms and systems now in use in the schools of California. From the best of the systems he has studied, Mr. Malcom will originate one of his own to meet the demands of the Capistrano union high school.

Mental Hazards of the Open

All the bogiemen and banshees that scared the babes in the woods will be functioning 100% when pro and amateur golf stars meet at Minneapolis to do battle on the tricky Interlachen course

By DENNY SHUTE

Spacious and attractive . . . is the clubhouse of the Interlachen Country Club. . . . Its English windows look from timbered walls out over the south half of the difficult course.

JIMMY JOHNSTON, who won the amateur championship last year at Pebble Beach, says the course at the Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis, where the U. S. National Open golf championship is being played July 10, 11 and 12, is "as tough as any course I ever played on."

"I'll be surprised," Jimmy told me, "if the golfer who wins the Open averages par for the four rounds. Interlachen is a stroke tougher than Pebble Beach at Del Monte, and I think that Scioto, at Columbus; Inverness, at Toledo; Skokie, at Glencoe, Ill., and Olympia Fields, at Chicago, are all easier."

My friend, George Sargent, professional at the Scioto Country Club in Columbus, O., verifies Johnston's declaration about the physical hazards at Interlachen. Before coming to Scioto about 10 years ago, Sargent was located at Interlachen, so he knows. Sargent's favorite story, in relating Interlachen's difficulties, is about Allen Loop, a Toledo boy, who is captain of the Ohio State University golf team this year.

"Loop had to jot down 36 penalty strokes at Interlachen last year in the Western Conference tournament," said Sargent. "And this is a 72-hole medal play event, making an average of half a stroke penalty for every hole played. This in spite of the fact Loop plays 75 on almost any course."

Sargent tells me there are lakes or streams adjacent to 11 of the 18 holes on the course, and they are placed where they will do the most harm to a good score. These water holes become not only physical obstacles, but mental hazards.

"Of course," said Sargent, "these are classed as physical hazards, but after a creek bobs up out of nowhere and swallows your ball, a sensitive golfer is very apt to entertain the fear that the same thing is likely to happen again—and the fear preys on his game."

SPEAKING of mental hazards, it seems to me there is some sort of awful psychology connected with the National Open championship. Ordinary hazards become, in the Open, veritable ogres that harass your game. I had some little experience with mental hazards in the National Open last year, and came off second best.

If I had shot par for the last few holes at Winged Foot, I would have won last year's Open. I don't know whether it was mental hazard or bad luck—but I flopped on the last two holes and finished two strokes behind Bobby Jones and Al Espinosa, who were tied for first. It is quite a strain to play with the knowledge that par golf over the last few holes will win for you.

In a crisis like that on the baseball field, where a hit will win a ball game, or in football when a 10-yard rush will bring victory, there is more chance for physical effort than in golf. Mere physical exertion isn't going to help your golf. You have to keep on playing in the same way, with the bulk of the tension going to your nerves.

During the recent British Amateur championship, Bobby Jones made a bad shot that almost cost him the title. He beat his club on the ground after making the shot, I hear, something that Jones has not done for several years. It serves to show what a nerve strain he was playing under. Jones' effort to win an event that he never had been able to take constituted a mental hazard for him. It showed plainly when he lost his temper and gave way to his feelings.

I know a dozen pros and amateurs who are not ashamed to admit that they couldn't sleep during a championship golf tournament and took a long walk into the country.

Knowledge of a course upon which you are to play is supposed to be an advantage. Thus Jimmy Johnston, who is well acquainted with the dangers of Interlachen, might be figured to have an advantage over the rest of us in the Open tournament. Johnston lives nearby and often plays at Interlachen.

But what seems to be an advantage may actually turn out to be a mental hazard. Johnston will play with full knowledge of many things that can happen to his ball, while many of the others in the tournament will be unaware of countless evils that await them.

WORD of this and that hazard, however, and how tough they are, rapidly travels from player to player as the clans gather for a championship event. Thus, here is an imaginary conversation that might take place between two golfers on the way to Minneapolis to compete in the Open:

"Ever played this Interlachen course?" one of the golfers, whom we will call Biegel, asks his companion.

"No," responds the other, whom we will call Ragen.

"What's the layout, do you know?"

"Do I know!" replies Biegel. "I'll say I know! It's plenty tough, Walter, plenty tough."

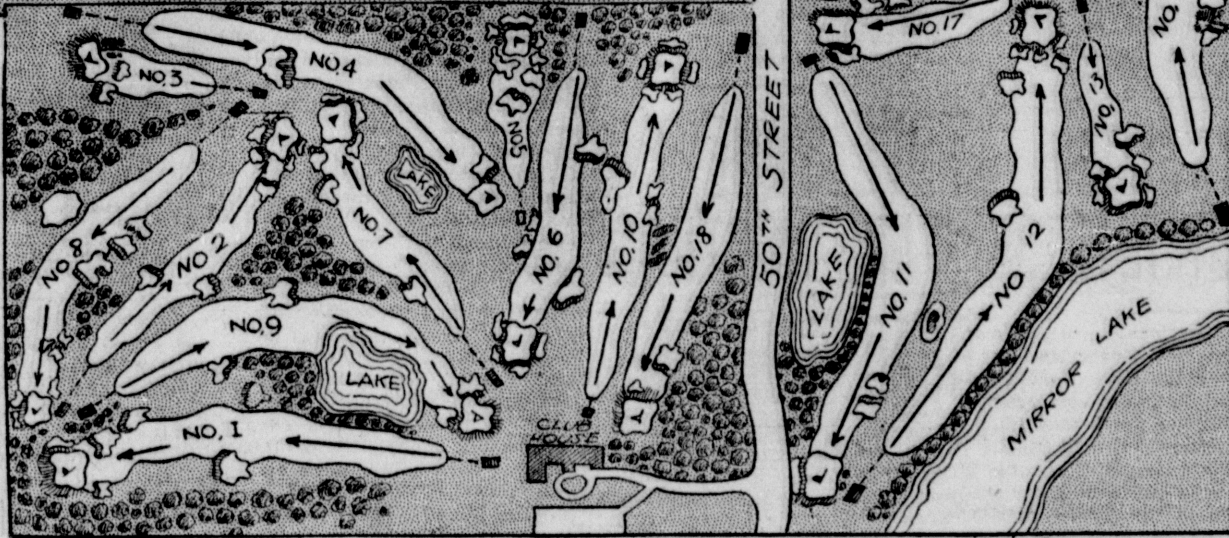

"What are the big difficulties?" asks Ragen.

"Well, it's a long story," Biegel begins. "In the first place you have to have a tremendous variety of shots in your bag to get around in par at Interlachen. And accuracy. Interlachen is a layout where inches either way will break you. Your long iron shots have to be talking for you. You have to lay 'em up there to greens that are narrow and small."

"There won't be a golfer in this tournament, mark my

Just an 180-yard tee shot with a number three iron . . . but the immense bunker in the foreground catches a dribbled tee shot. . . . Traps and woods surround the green . . . of the fifth hole at Interlachen.

Close study of this carefully-drawn map of the Interlachen course . . . will break your heart. . . . There is plenty to prey on the players' minds before the Open.

Hermon Densmore Shute . . . "flopped on the last two holes" when he only needed pars . . . lost to Bobby Jones by two strokes.

words, who will get more distance than he earns off the tees. That's because the fairways aren't baked. They have a pretty good watering system. I understand, and this keeps 'em from getting too hard. But when you get to the greens, it's something different. Boy, those greens at Interlachen are fast!"

Golfer Ragen is eagerly soaking all this in, and the ogre of mental hazards already is beginning to grab him by the mental ears.

"I hear they went over the course last spring and stiffened it up a little more," says Ragen.

"Just lengthened it a little," replies Biegel. "It's 6699 yards long now and they haven't increased par. About the same yardage as Winged Foot."

"Oh, yes, they narrowed the fairways, too. Average about 10 yards wide now, they tell me, and you know that means you've got to be pretty straight all the way."

(Copyright, 1930, By EveryWeek Magazine—Printed in U. S. A.)

"Lots of traps?" asks Ragen with hidden anxiety.

"Yeah, just lots of 'em," replies Biegel. "As if they didn't have enough before, they added 11 more this spring. Got 100 traps there now. And every one of the bunkers is in just the wrong place."

"I heard something about that No. 11 hole," says Ragen, "pretty sporty sort."

"Pretty sporty?" replies Biegel, with elevated eyebrows. "Well, yes! Nothing but a dog leg with a lake in the bend. You just have to cut the corner right, or else. The wood shots to the green on that hole would be a miracle. There's heavy rough on the right, and back of the green, and a great big trap on the right. If you can't shoot straight, pick up on No. 11 and go home. It's murder."

ANY one-shotters?" Ragen asks, rubbing his chin reflectively.

"There are four they call one-shotters," Biegel replies. "But they're fourflushing when they call 'em that."

"Seventeen is a 'one-shooter.' I took a six there and would have taken a seven if I hadn't holed a 10-foot putt."

ABOUT 250 yards, and you need a full drive or brassie to reach the green. Fairway falls away to the right to catch a slice. Keep to the left and you're trapped sure as you're born. Nice steep bank on the right, with some very brutal rough."

"What's the longest hole?" asks Ragen.

"As I remember it, No. 12," responds Biegel. "It's 540 yards. Five bunkers around the green. The green's on a hill the natives call Pike's Peak. Mirror Lake on the right. Just go a little wild on that one!"

Ragen thinks it over. In half an hour's conversation he has managed to pick up more than 100 mental hazards, if he is the sort that goes in for mental hazards. And there are few golfers who don't. It seems that each player has some pet aversion on any given course, just as there is something he likes about it, depending upon his style in shooting.

Roland Hancock and Joe Turnesa each had the Open championship in his hip pocket once, but the little old jinx reached in and pulled it right out before their very eyes. Turnesa came very close to winning at Scioto in 1926. In the following year Roland Hancock was coming along in great style with only a few holes left to play. The crowd heard about the wonderful brand of golf Hancock was playing and rushed back to accompany him on his homeward march. They pestered the life out of him, some offering advice, others waving and shouting to him. He went to pieces. Neither Hancock nor Turnesa has done anything at all since. They play good golf, and even win a minor title or two, but they crack wide open when they tee up for the big title.

THE history of the Open is full of chapters devoted to the pranks of little Johnnie Jinx. At Inwood in 1923 Bobby Cruickshank tied with Bobby Jones at the end of 72 holes. In the playoff he slipped to a 78. It marked his finish.

Away back in 1919 at Brae Burn, at West Newton, Mass., Mike Brady tied with Walter Hagen at 301 for the regulation 72 holes. He, too, had a 78 in the playoff and has since been known as a very good player and teacher, but not a champion.

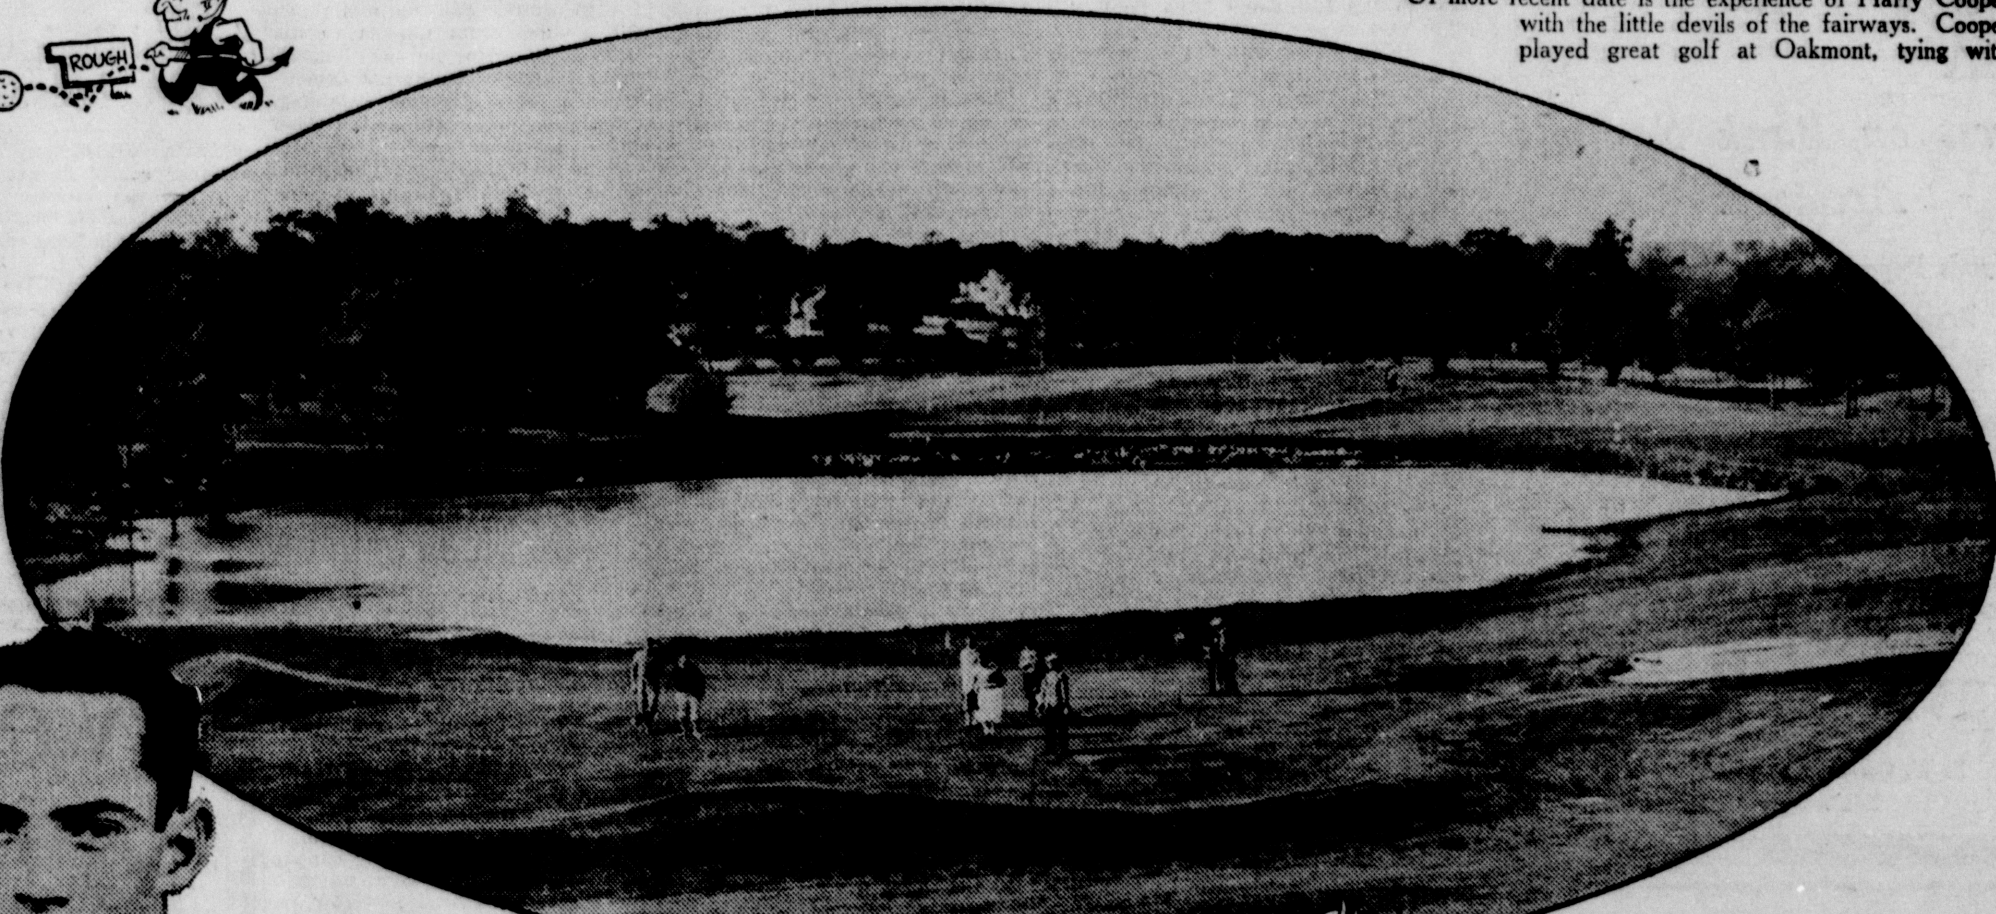

Of more recent date is the experience of Harry Cooper with the little devils of the fairways. Cooper played great golf at Oakmont, tying with Johnny Farrell in the final. He lost the playoff and, though still a young fellow, he hasn't been able to control his nerves when the pressure gets heavy.

One of the most striking illustrations of the power of Johnnie Jinx is shown in the case of Al Espinosa, a fine fellow and a great golf player. In 1921 at the Columbia Country Club, Chevy Chase, Md., Espinosa came within a stroke of tying Jim Barnes, who won with 289. Like all others it apparently meant the end of Espinosa as a championship possibility.

But last year, as everybody remembers, Al almost made a great comeback. He tied Bobby Jones at the end of 72 holes. Then the old "Open psychology" got him and he went down in the playoff in the greatest collapse in the history of the tournament. Espinosa is still a great golfer. But it seems that once the jinx gets onto you, down you go.

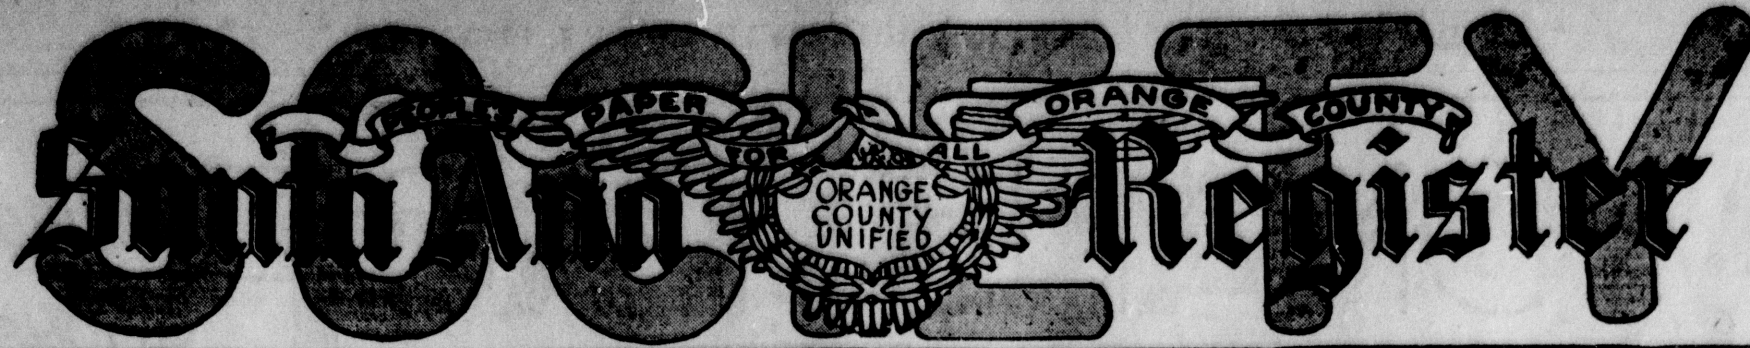

Leo Diegel, picturesque and likeable, is one of the greatest golfers that ever waved a mashie, and one of the funniest-looking human beings in the world when he stands up to putt. Diegel was a youngster when he tied for second place in the Open at Inverness, Toledo, in 1920. He was even with Jack Hutchison, Harry Vardon and Jack Burke, a stroke behind Ted Ray, the winner. Since then he has won the Canadian Open title four times, and the Pro Golfers' championship twice, in addition to many lesser victories. He is universally recognized, I think, as one of the four best players in the game. But he gets nowhere in the Open. He hasn't threatened since 1920.

The ninth at Interlachen . . . taken from an elevation behind the green, looking toward fairway and tee, which is out of sight around the dog-leg to the left. . . . The lake must be carried on the second shot to have a chance at par, which is five for the 478-yard hole.

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1930

June Bridal Events Give Way to July Vacations

With a suddenness that was almost breath-taking, the solemn strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March which signaled the long procession of June brides, were silenced by the roar of giant firecrackers heralding the great national holiday. The final week of June had its full share of brides in misty white, and of showers and parties in their honor, and indications are that the parties will continue, although July is not a favorite wedding month in California. Most of the engaged young people who do not choose to wed in June, seem to like to postpone their nuptials until August, a favorite vacation month in the southland, and combine their wedding trip with the annual vacation.

Safe and Sane
"Safe and Sane Fourth" propaganda is very evidently taking effect in the public mind, and while yesterday was a gala day with virtually every Orange county family, especially those with young people who enjoy ocean sports, yet the shooting of firecrackers seemed to be sporadic, and there was a marked lack of the usual noisy celebration.

Practically everyone in the city sought the beaches, there to enjoy swimming and sand sports, to say nothing of picnic lunches. The scene along the water front was colorful and charming, with big umbrellas, bright-hued bathing suits, and the popular beach pajamas in an amazing variety of color and design, all adding to the brilliant display.

Week's Parties
The week preceding the Fourth, had its full share of enjoyable social functions, most of the parties having some happy young bride as their incentive. Of these, Mrs. Dana Lamb was very popular, the recent announcement of the December wedding of Miss Ethel Stuart and Dana Lamb, adding a romantic light to affairs given in her honor.

In Hays Home
Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hays, themselves a more recently wedded young couple than the Lambs, were hosts at an unusually charming evening party, given in their home at 508 Eastside avenue. Mrs. Hays was Miss Mae Sexton, and at the time of their wedding in early May, the young people deferred an extended honeymoon until June when they spent a delightful interval amidst the historic scenes of New Orleans. This trip gave them their decorative theme for the unusual party with which they complimented Mr. and Mrs. Lamb.

Gift Shower
A second event of the week honoring Mrs. Lamb, was a miscellaneous shower at which two popular young matrons entertained, Mrs. Dee Cook and Mrs. Robert Stewart. Their hospitality was extended at the Cook home, completed at 1016 North Olive street, and guests were keenly interested in an inspection of the pretty place. Bridge during the evening, was secondary in interest to the shower of gifts bestowed on the young honoree.

Post-Nuptial Event
Mrs. Leonard Coffman, who was Miss Marjorie Crawford, of Tustin, was another of the summer brides to be made honoree at a post-nuptial party which she and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Millard Foster on Mountain View drive, Tustin. Mrs. Coffman received a collection of pretty and useful articles to be used and enjoyed in her new home.

Gives Luncheon
Members of the Day Nursery board of Ebell society, bound their luncheon given by their leader, Mrs. Clyde Bach, a delightful departure from their usual business sessions, and thoroughly enjoyed the hospitality of her home at 832 Garfield street. Pleasant too was the little visit they were privileged to have with Mrs. Bach's mother, Mrs. G. B. Lammie, whose invalidism for the past few years, has in no wise dimmed her cheerful spirit and her interest in what is going on in the world.

For Mrs. Keeler
That regret which Santa Anans feel at losing Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Keeler as residents, is being expressed in many ways before the departure of this interesting family for their new home in Los Angeles. Mrs. Frank Lansdown was the most recent hostess at an eventful luncheon given by Mrs. Keeler, when members of the congregation of the Church of the Messiah were invited to the Lansdown home on Grant avenue. A handsome hand-bag was presented to the honoree as an expression of the regard in which she is held by her friends here, and she has also been complimented at handkerchief showers.

For Eastern Guest
Mrs. Jennie Crawford, who arrived recently from Washington, D. C., for an extended visit in the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Nalle, of South Birch street, was honor guest at a pretty luncheon given by Mrs. R. E. Coulter in her home, 424 South Birch street.

Patio Party
Another eastern guest, Mrs. Earl Lippincott, of Oakland, Ill., who is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Blanche Brown, of South Main street, was incentive for a party of much charm, given by Mrs. Brown and

MRS. WALTER MILBRAT

Mrs. Walter Milbrat, who was Miss LaVerne Harrell, is one of Santa Ana's most talented young singers, and has a contralto voice of singular richness and power. She renounced all plans for a professional career when she married, as she was receiving much success in light opera work, having sung in "The Student Prince" and in "Bambino," both in the Southland and in San Francisco.

Nuptials Are Staged In Most Unusual Setting

"Some place in California," is the indefinite manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Walter Milbrat announced their honeymoon destination following the charming but informal wedding of late June. Mrs. Milbrat was Miss LaVerne Harrell, one of the talented and lovely daughters of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Harrell, 116 West Seventeenth street.

The young people had arranged for a formal home wedding, but learning in time of plans for an unromantic interruption of their contemplated honeymoon, decided to forestall those plans. So when they went to the Edward W. Cochems studio for bridal pictures, they quietly summoned their pastor, the Rev. J. G. Hurst, of Huntington Beach, and had the solemn rites performed in the studio, where all details were completed with the exception of the bridal attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Milbrat will make their home in Huntington Beach temporarily, upon returning from their northern honeymoon, but will eventually come to Santa Ana where a host of warm friends will welcome them. At present they are motoring through the north, intending to go to Seattle and other Washington points.

World Travelers Will Sail This Month

Mr. and Mrs. Mark B. Lacy and their little daughter, Billie, who are leaving some time this month for an extended sea voyage which will keep them away from the shores of their native land for an indefinite length of time, are staying with their friends of long standing, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clayton, 808 South Garvey street, until their sailing date.

Mr. and Mrs. Lacy had expected to leave Santa Ana early in June, and made their plans accordingly, vacating their attractive home at 706 South Broadway, that it might be turned over to Robert Fernandez and his bride, just home from an eastern honeymoon trip. In the meantime the sailing date was advanced, so the Lacs resigned their home to the newlyweds, planning to seek temporary quarters here in the city until such time as they should leave to board the ship sailing for foreign parts. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton were happy at the opportunity of having an intimate visit from these close friends, and asked them to be their guests for the interval.

Many of the past month's most delightful social affairs have been planned as compliments to this popular little family group, and Mrs. Lacy will carry with her on her travels many happy thoughts and remembrances of a host of home friends.

Buckingham's Are Dinner Incentives

A final farewell party was given to Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Buckingham, who left yesterday to make their home in Oregon, when Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ryan entertained in their home at 806 South Ross street, Thursday evening with their charmingly appointed dinner in their honor.

The table was centered with a colorful bouquet of red, white and blue flowers, flanked by gleaming red tapers. Favors were candy firecrackers. Following the dinner hour, the little group of intimate friends made the most of the few hours they had left to enjoy the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham. The Buckinghams have been residents of this city for some time, and have made their home at 929 West Chestnut street.

Colorful Luncheon Was Given for Klean Kut Members Recently

Mrs. R. E. Couch was hostess at a colorful 1 o'clock luncheon Thursday, when she entertained members of the Klean Kut club in her home on Pomona street. The appetizing repast was served at the card tables, covered with white cloths and centered with slender red candles. Little candies in patriotic colors filled the red nut cups at each place. The motif was further expressed in the gay bouquets combining red, white, and blue blossoms which were placed at attractive intervals throughout the rooms.

In the bridge games which followed the luncheon hour, Mrs. E. C. Read scored high, Mrs. H. W. Turner, second, and Mrs. Eugene Reif, low. Sharing in the lovely prizes which were awarded the winners, was Mrs. Howard McIlvain, who received a special guest gift. Other guests were Mrs. Nat Neff and Mrs. R. B. Hill.

Members present other than the hostess, Mrs. R. E. Couch, were Mesdames E. C. Read, A. W. Stanford, L. D. Sargent, Eugene Reif, R. C. Edwards, Lee Boyles, H. W. Turner, and John Turton.

Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated in Buena Park

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Stones, of Artesia, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Trapp, of Western avenue, Buena Park, Friday, when over 50 relatives and close friends joined in the gala event.

The myriads of flowers and shrubs in the Trapp gardens formed a lovely setting for the wedding ceremony, which was performed under the canopy of a pink bell. The bride of 60 years ago wore the wedding veil of her granddaughter, Mrs. Fred Winters of Buena Park, and carried a shower bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses, orange blossoms and delphinium. She was given in marriage in this charming ceremony by her brother, Henry Bingham, of Morenci, Ariz., and was attended by her two sisters, Mrs. Byrd Schooley and Mrs. Geo. Vaughan, of Los Angeles. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Moroni Stones, of Simi. Their great-grandchildren, Mildred and Howard Stewart, of Buena Park, served as flower girl and ring bearer. The wedding ring was engraved July 4, 1870, and was the present of Mr. and Mrs. George Trapp.

Music during the ceremony was furnished by Miss Roselyn Reese of San Bernardino, grandniece of the bridegroom, John Keir, of Hueneme Beach, and Moroni Stones, Robert Quinnell of Los Angeles, read the service, which was followed by the Lord's prayer in unison.

A banquet was served on long tables under an arbor of graceful pepper hedges, decorations being bowls of pink and yellow dahlias and pink tapers.

The afternoon was spent in music, old time dances, and interesting accounts of the early life of Mr. Stones. He spent many years among the Digger Indians, and gave Indian folk songs and dances, and counted in Chinese. He and his brother, Moroni Stones, entertained with singing "Sweet Betsy From Pike," and the brother showed exceptional talent in playing the violin, although he is over 80 years of age.

Many beautiful and useful gifts were presented to the honored couple.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Garrison and daughter, April, of Palms; Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Reese and daughter, Roselyn, of San Bernardino; George Stones and son, Irvin; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Stones, and Herbert W. Stones, of Artesia; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lynn and Moroni Stones, of Simi; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilson, of Bakersfield, Henry Bingham and son, Clifford, of Morenci, Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. G. H. ### Happy Family Gathering Is Surprise Event Of Holiday Surprising in happy manner Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Forney and their daughters and son, the Misses Virginia and June Forney and David Forney, members of their family circle and close friends assembled yesterday at their home on Mountain View Drive, Tustin, with well-filled luncheon baskets in readiness to spend a happy day. Mr. and Mrs. Forney and family returned on Thursday from a three weeks' vacation trip up the Pacific coast as far as Vancouver, and the event was a "welcome home" gesture on the part of their friends.

Following a delectable dinner, with chicken as the main course, served at tables bearing French bouquets, the older members of the group enjoyed bridge and 500, while the younger people adjourned to a nearby beach.

Those present included Mr. and Mrs. H. Rassmussen of Santa Ana, and daughter, Mrs. T. E. ### Borchards Are Hosts At Al Fresco Dinner

The spacious grounds of the Charles E. Borchard home on Williams street provided a lovely setting for an al fresco dinner last evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Borchard were hosts at a wondrous baka held near the big fireplace at the rear of the home.

Following a most enjoyable dinner hour, and when dusk had begun to become evident, the program for the evening was begun, and a beautiful display of fireworks took place. Joining the little group to take part in the entertainment were Mrs. James Columblini and daughters, Nellie, Rosa and Allen.

Those present for the merry evening with the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Borchard, were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Hald and daughter, Betty, of Los Angeles, and the Misses Anne and Gretchen Lieberman, their nephews, Don and Jack Lieberman, and Miss Betty DeWard.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

Baptist Women's Society
Mrs. E. A. Bell, as president of the Women's society of the First Baptist church directed the members in their usual all day meeting Wednesday. Garments and hospital supplies were made ready to fill stations in India and China.

Contributions were made to the relief equipment of Miss Viola Hill who sails for China August 1.

Mrs. David Meyer and her committee had decorated the tables for the covered dish luncheon with red, white and blue flowers.

Messages of thanks were read from local and foreign recipients of the society's giving. The topic of the day was "A Vision of Citizenship," with devotionals led by Mrs. Minnie Holmes. The selected scripture reading was "Righteousness exalted a nation." Mrs. Albert Hill reviewed Lauch's book "Seven Thousand Emeralds."

A giant stalked about with a great globe on his head; letting it fall it broke into many pieces, and was the Philippines. From this myth she built up their history. Each wave of immigration that came inhabited another island and accounts for the races and languages. After years of oppression, their freedom in United States occupation, and now the dangers in commercial exploitation were discussed. Mrs. Linna Davis reviewed the Baptist denomination's work on the islands for Christianizing of the people.

Mrs. Minnie Holmes presented a stereopticon lecture, revealing natural beauties of the islands, showing native and modern housing of the people, and striking contrasts of young people before and after Christianization. The singing of "America the Beautiful," with Harry Evan Owings at the piano, closed the program.

Spurgeon Memorial
The all-day meeting of the Women's Society of the Spurgeon Memorial church, was held in the home of Mrs. W. B. Blakeman, 825 North Ross street, Wednesday, July 2. Bible study was presented by Mrs. Thacker, following a delicious pot luck luncheon, served at noon. During the afternoon, several enjoyable readings were given by Miss Octavia Goldsworthy.

provement after a major operation was performed recently at Santa Ana Valley hospital. Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Blakeman and daughter, Mary, and son Toni, 825 North Ross street, will leave Monday for Forest Home, where they will remain for one week.

MRS. FRANK MCATEER

Mrs. McAtter, who was Miss Ruth Hough of Fullerton, will sail in September for Burma, India, where the young people will make their home for the next three years.

Mr. and Mrs. McAtter Will Sail Soon For India

One of the prettiest events of recent date in La Habra, was the reception given by Mrs. Burt Hough of North Hiatt street, as a compliment to her daughter, Mrs. Frank McAtter, who with Mr. McAtter just returned from a honeymoon spent in and near San Francisco.

Scores of relatives and friends of the popular young bride were present to greet her and express their interest in her plans. For Mr. and Mrs. McAtter will soon exchange the familiar rolling hills of La Habra, for the strangely exotic scenery of India, where Mr. McAtter is stationed at Burma with one of the big American oil companies operating there. They will sail in September and will make their home in Burma for the next three years.

Mrs. McAtter was Miss Ruth Hough, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Hough, and her wedding to the young oil man, home on his triennial vacation, was an event of June 25 in the First Baptist church of Long Beach. The ceremony crowned a romance beginning over three years ago, before Mr. McAtter left for his first trip to India.

Civil War Veterans Share Picnic With Shiloh Circle

An old-fashioned basket luncheon reminiscent of days long ago when a picnic in the woods was much anticipated, and the society of young maidens prepared a delectable and varied repast for their chivalrous swains, was that of yesterday, when Shiloh Circle, Ladies of the G. A. R., held a noon-day picnic in Birch Park. Guests of the day were members of Sedgewick Post, G. A. R.

The jolly group had chosen yesterday for their picnic because of the national holiday, and also because this was the date for the regular meeting of the Circle. When baskets had been emptied, and all the ladies of the G. A. R., and the veterans who were present, spent a happy afternoon full of interesting conversation. At 3 o'clock they disbanded, taking with them memories of a very happy and informal get-together.

Among the veterans who were present were Hiram Cleveland, Daniel Holbrook, M. Hungerford, G. W. Roos of Garden Grove, G. W. Spencer, P. J. Spencer and M. N. Fuller.

Birthday Breakfast Held In Anaheim For Mrs. Smith

Mrs. George Smith's birthday anniversary was the occasion for a most unique out-door breakfast yesterday morning, when a little group of friends gathered at Anaheim park, and thus began the holiday in a most refreshing manner. The early morning air, velvety and mysterious with fog, and the beauties and fragrances of the dewy blossoms more than encouraged the appetite of the happy group. As the odors of the cooking foods quickly became mingled with those pleasant ones of flowery borders, it was evident that the breakfast was to be a true success.

The honor guest was presented with an assortment of lovely birthday cards, and a colorful bouquet of pastel-toned flowers.

Those sharing in the delightful affair were Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, and Messrs. and Mesdames W. W. Anderson, Clyde Bach, E. L. Morrison, E. B. Sprague, Mrs. F. E. Coulter and Miss Mary Craig.

July 4 Natal Day Is Observed At Recent Bridge Luncheon

Complimenting Mrs. George S. Smith, whose birthday comes in the midst of today's national celebration, was a delightful 12:30 luncheon held yesterday, with Mrs. Clarence Skiles as hostess in her cozy cottage at Newport Beach. Tables were prettily appointed, each centered with a low bowl of large red and blue blooms interspersed with a delicate white flower.

Bridge, accompanied by the refreshing sound of the waves some distance away, was the diversion of the afternoon. In checking the tallies it was found that Mrs. George Smith, the honor guest, held high score, and Mrs. W. L. Bullard, second high, while Mrs. Ella Campau was consoled. When prizes were awarded, Mrs. Smith shared doubly, for aside from the lovely bridge gift she received, she was presented with an exquisite boudoir pillow. Earlier in the day she was given a most delectable birthday cake.

Those present other than the honoree and a special guest, Mrs. John Wehrly Jr., were Mesdames W. L. Bullard, Hugh C. Wiley, John Wehrly Sr., Ella Campau, Clarence Skiles, the Misses Lida Crookshank and Margaret Ore.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyon Are Home From Northern Honeymoon

Returning from an interesting automobile trip which took them far into Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lyon are now established in their home at 2025 North Broadway, where they are greeting a host of friends, and daily receiving congratulations and good wishes for their marriage, an event of June 3 in the Episcopal church at Riverside.

In motoring northward along the coast, Mr. and Mrs. Lyon took many side trips as they proceeded farther into the Canadian Rockies, especially enjoying their experiences on the Caribou Trail, the fine new highway just being completed in the Dominion. They also saw much of Vancouver, exploring the island pretty thoroughly, and later visiting the Olympic peninsula.

Garden Picnic Given In Kinyon Home

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Kinyon, of Yorba street, Tustin, were hosts yesterday at a Fourth of July luncheon, served at tables on the spacious lawns surrounding their home.

Those present were Mrs. L. W. Mansfield and daughter, Miss Louise Mansfield, of San Pedro; Mrs. Millis and son, Loren, of Santa Ana, and the Misses Jane and Betty Seeley, nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Kinyon, from Los Angeles.

Andrews; fourth, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Drake; fifth, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sinesco. Mr. and Mrs. Gothard's invited guests included Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Benning, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Severson, of Huntington Beach; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Drake, of Yorba Linda; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mason, of La Habra; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woodington, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kettler, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ruoff, of Springdale; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Kuhry, of Whittier; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sinesco, of Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Andrews, of Long Beach.

Miss Dalma Stinson

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson, is one of the marathoners at the dance which has been going on in Huntington Beach since June 25. John Hurdy arrived home Tuesday night from the north where the family went a few weeks ago. He purchased a new car, driving that home and bringing his small son, John. Mrs. Murdy and the girls will return later, driving their other car, and will be accompanied by a relative of Mrs. Murdy.

J. A. Murdy and daughter, Miss Ella Murdy, and their guest, A. C. Murdy, brother of J. A. Murdy, motored to Long Beach on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Murdy returned Tuesday from a honeymoon trip through the national parks and northern California, and are preparing to move to their home in Midway City.

The Rev. W. Archie Matson, newly appointed pastor of the Wintersburg Methodist church, and his family moved Wednesday from Coronado, where the Rev. Mr. Matson has been pastor, taking possession of the local parsonage, which was vacated the same day.

by the Rev. and Mrs. Harry I. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington DeLaverne and family are spending a week camping at Huntington Beach.

Mrs. J. H. Pryor, who is president of the H. E. O. of the First Christian church of Huntington Beach, will be in charge of the stand where the class is serving sandwiches, coffee and pie over the holiday. The stand is located in the room adjoining the Warner hardware store in Huntington Beach.

John Stinson, who has been at Florence, Ariz., since Easter, has returned home.

Mr. Peavey, who has been ill in the home of his brother at Huntington Beach for several weeks, is still confined to his bed. George Nichols is looking forward to a visit from his sister, Mrs. A. D. Barnes, who leaves Texas July 5 to come to visit her relatives. This is Mrs. Barnes' first trip to California.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ulrich and daughter, Miss Cleo Ulrich, left Thursday for Lake Elsinore to remain over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Theibaud are entertaining Mrs. Theibaud's son and family, who motored down from the north to spend a few days with them.

Misfortune has been the lot every week of members of the Henry Friend family, who have moved from the Winters place into one of the Don McMillen houses in Wintersburg. The day they moved their son, Roy Friend, who had not been feeling well for several days, was declared to have appendicitis, by the Huntington Beach physician. He was rushed to the hospital at once, and at that time another call came from Imperial valley for Mrs. Friend's daughter-in-law and daughter to go to the other two sons of Mrs. Friend, Vee and Melvin Woods, Melvin Woods having suffered a sunstroke. The temperature stood at 125 degrees in the shade. When the women reached Imperial they found he had wandered away and could not be found. A search was instituted by officers and friends and toward morning the sick man walked in almost exhausted. While searching for Melvin Woods, Leo Woods suffered a very severe burn

MRS. JOHN FESSMAN

Mrs. John Fessman of 616 1/2 South Van Ness avenue, was one of June's charming brides, and prior to her marriage on June 22, in the Orange First Methodist Episcopal church, was Miss Florence Danielson, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest W. Danielson, have a ranch home on North Main street. Photo by Thompson's studio.

The bride was girlishly lovely in her gown of sheer white net fashioned with a very long and very full skirt. Instead of a veil she wore a close-fitting lace braided hat, and a delicate touch of color was given her costume by her arm cluster of bride roses combined with shell tinted gladioluses. Miss Nellie Colombini as maid of honor, wore peach chiffon and carried pink roses, completed the bride's attendants, while Herbert Wayne Hill of Montebello Park, served Mr. Fessman as best man, and Ray Grist was usher.

Following the ceremony conducted by the Rev. Walter B. Cole, nearly half a hundred close friends and relatives were entertained at a reception in the home of the bride's parents, an attractive ranch house made doubly inviting by a wealth of summer flowers in every variety of color and form.

Mr. and Mrs. Fessman have now returned from their Catalina Island honeymoon, and are welcoming their friends to their pretty home at 616 1/2 South Van Ness avenue. Mr. Fessman, a graduate of Berkeley, is connected with the Union Oil company. His bride, has been assistant secretary for the Security Title Insurance and Guaranty company for the past two years.

CHAPTER XLVI

Bonnie Dundee had cheerfully endured a good deal of kidding from his uncle, Police Commissioner O'Brien, and from his chief, Captain Strawn, because of his use of a parrot as a "Watson," when he felt the need of an audience for his summing up of a case.

"I've tried talking aloud to myself, but I feel foolish," Cap'n is an ideal audience, for while he sometimes laughs at me, he can't waste my time by arguing or telling me I'm a fool," he answered them.

Now, after five hours of sleep, to clear his brain of all speculations and conclusions—worthless now, in the light of his new discoveries—he sat with the parrot's cage before him, his thick sheaf of typewritten notes ready for reference. He had been talking steadily for 10 minutes, telling the parrot just how and when Doris Matthews had died. And Cap'n had listened, head cocked inquiringly, beady eye bright with interest—or so Dundee chose to believe.

"Now, my dear Watson," that is the crime which you and I must try to solve," he summed up. "But behind that crime lies another, which did not come off. Our primary problem, therefore, is to find the person who plotted Mrs. Berkeley's death by wood alcohol poisoning, but who was forced, by fear, to murder Doris Matthews instead. Is that clear?"

"Perfect!" Cap'n croaked suddenly, proud of the new addition to his vocabulary.

"Exactly!" Dundee grinned. "Someone transferred more than two ounces of deadly wood alcohol from the lighter fountain in Mrs. Berkeley's sitting-room, to the flask of Fleur d'Amour which Seymour Crosby presented to his hostess Friday evening. And was caught in the act by Doris Matthews."

"Perfect!" Cap'n repeated and flapped his wings excitedly.

"Exactly—again!" his master applauded. "Where is the perfume which Mrs. Berkeley's would-be murderer had to remove before putting that amount of wood alcohol into the bottle."

"Now, it is not at all likely that the subtle perfume was poured down the drain pipe of Mrs. Berkeley's bathroom basin, for the very good reason that Mrs. Berkeley would have been almost sure to smell it when she came up to bed. Therefore it seems logical to suppose that the surplus perfume was poured into another bottle—and what more logical than a perfume bottle to hold perfume?"

"Mrs. Berkeley's would-be murderer probably counted on several days elapsing before the victim drank the Fleur d'Amour, since she had another new bottle of perfume on hand, as the plotter could have seen by glancing at her dressing table—or could have known already."

"Now—why the choice of Fleur d'Amour instead of the new bottle of department store perfume? To incriminate Crosby, provided the would-be murderer was not Crosby himself? Or because the Fleur d'Amour had come from abroad?"

gun."

Dundee reproached the bird. "Let's see now, where we stand. Noisless shoes... Bedroom slippers, or—tennis shoes? But I've stooped and snooped and sniffed in every closet in the house, and I've not caught a single whiff of Fleur d'Amour, except from Clorinda's gold slippers."

"Let's follow the murderer back to the house from the summer-house, after his ghastly work there had been done. It is almost certain that the perfume splashed upon his shoes when the bottle broke. Of course it splashed upon his clothes, too, but that didn't matter, since Gigi had helpfully anointed every cloth with perfume earlier in the evening. But perfume on soft shoes... Now, how could he remove it most successfully?... By washing the shoes? Not so good. Perfume is devilish persistent stuff."

Very earnestly he stared into the parrot's beady eye, then suddenly he smote the table with triumphant fist.

"Tennis shoes—white shoe polish!" he cried. "Easy and quick. Freshly polished tennis shoes would cause no comment... Well, that's that, unless I've been barking up the wrong tree... Now, let's see what we know about this would-be poisoner."

"First: He knows that Mrs. Berkeley is a perfume addict."

"Second: He knows that Mrs. Berkeley has a lighter fountain filled with wood alcohol in her sitting room."

"Third: He has what seems to him good cause to wish Mrs. Berkeley dead."

"Fourth: He knew Arnold could not meet Doris in the summer-house; therefore he must have been present when Mrs. Berkeley ordered the car."

"Fifth: He was someone to whose appeal for mercy Doris Matthews, a kind-hearted girl, must have turned a deaf ear. Otherwise her murder would not have been necessary."

He was silent again, passing all possible suspects in review, putting them, one by one, to the test of his fifth conclusion. Finally he spoke aloud again, very solemnly:

"So far as we know, Cap'n, there were only two people in this house whom Doris could possibly have hated—judging from her letter to her sister and from all the evidence we have in hand. Those two people were Mrs. Berkeley and Seymour Crosby—provided it was Seymour Crosby whom Doris knew or suspected to be responsible, directly or indirectly, for Phyllis Crosby's death. Let us say she only suspected, until she saw him plotting the death of another woman. Her suspicion would have become a certainty then. She would have shown no mercy, if she had come upon anyone else than her beloved 'Miss Phyllis' killer, preparing to poison a woman she disliked, would she not have been easy to move with protestations of repentance and promises not to repeat the attempt?... I think so. I do not indeed think so, if I am any judge at all of Doris Matthews' character!"

Disconcertingly, the parrot

chuckled throatily.

"Oh, I shan't go half-cocked, that's what you mean by your riddle laughter," Dundee retorted. "I'm going to consider every single possibility... But before I forget! Doris's murderer returned to his room and polished his tennis shoes, to cover up the perfume. But there was another problem confronting him: What to do with his bottle of Fleur d'Amour?"

He brooded for several minutes, while the parrot drooped sleepily on his perch. What would he do? When at last the answer came he uttered so sharp a cry of triumph that the bird protested with one of the oaths he had learned from his mischievous old mistress, Mrs. Emma Hogarth.

It was nearly one o'clock when Dundee concluded his long monologue to the parrot and covered

Corsets at Forty

The flaming youth urge should never be indulged in by the woman over 40 when it comes to the corset question.

I do not mean that it is necessary to wear the cast-iron monstrosities formerly known as corsets, but a soft, well cut garment of cloth with insets of surgical rubber to hold it firmly in place should be worn. These foundation garments must be as carefully fitted as a walking suit, two of them should be bought at the same time to afford frequent change, and the corset should be worn all day, not just when one dresses for the street.

It is regrettable that bodies must grow old, but they do, and no provision has been made for "spare parts," nor for taking up the slack in flabby muscles. Flabby muscles aren't confined just to face and neck. Abdominal muscles lose their elasticity, tummies show up, and aches and pains make their appearance where they were never before.

If women could just see a surgeon open up an abdominal cavity and note what part the muscled walls of the abdomen play in confining, uplifting and regulating the great abdominal organs and intestines, they would readily see why the gentle support afforded flabby abdominal muscles by the cloth corset or corselette is so important after maturity has been reached.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Steamed Chicken

1 young roasting chicken
1 cup seasoned flour
Fat for frying
1 cup thin cream
Salt, pepper, celery salt
Thickening for gravy
Allow at least 1½ hours for the cooking of chicken this way.

Unjoint and prepare the chicken for frying. Wash, wipe and dip each piece in seasoned flour and brown quickly in hot fat. Transfer the pieces to a steamer large enough to let the pieces lie separate. Steam an hour, longer if necessary, then transfer the pieces to the oven to dry out just a tiny bit.

As the chicken steams the water in the bottom part of the steamer should be allowed to evaporate and this water and the juices from the steaming chicken serve to make the base of the gravy. Strain off most of the fat in which the chicken was fried, add flour to thicken, then make a gravy with the steamer liquid and thin cream. Season with chopped parsley and celery salt.

Gravy and chicken will total 3300 calories, allowing for a three-pound chicken. There should be six moderate portions in this amount.

Church Society Meets

A meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of Yorba Linda was called at the parsonage of the Friends church Monday and leaders in the membership drive gave their reports.

The side captain by Mrs. Clinton Marshburn was loser and will entertain the others. India was chosen for the study work of the coming year and a book reading contest is being planned.

Re-Elect Officers
Election of officers was held at the meeting of the Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church which met at the parsonage Tuesday. All officers were re-elected, as follows: president, Mrs. M. E. Martin; vice president, Mrs. Pearl Day; recording secretary, Mrs. Lena Jacobs; corresponding secretary and treasurer, Mrs. A. C. Pickering.

Girls of the Standard Bearers Foreign Missionary society gave a short play under the direction of Mrs. Laurence Baker. Parts were taken by Ethel Jacobs, Phyllis Ralston, Josephine and Captola Neely, Doris Smothers and Doris Thing. Mrs. Grover C. Ralston led in devotions and reported on woman's day at the recent conference at Whittier.

Miss Alberta Louise Rotharmel became the bride of Robert Vance, of San Francisco at a quiet wedding which took place Monday morning at 7 o'clock in the parish home of the Rev. Father Mortimer Murphy in Fullerton. Only immediate members of the families and a few close friends of the bride were present for the wedding.

Miss Elizabeth Rotharmel, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and William Vance, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The bride was dressed in an ensemble of dark blue georgette with a hat to match and a corsage of white roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Rotharmel, of East Commonwealth, Fullerton, and for the past four years has been teaching at St. Catherine's school in this city. She is a graduate of the Ramona convent.

Mr. Vance was graduated from Fullerton Union high school and from the University of California at Berkeley.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and groom left by Western Air express for San Francisco, where they will make their home.

Mrs. Vance was honored with several pre-nuptial social affairs by her friends.

Celebrate Birthday

A charming birthday party was given by Mrs. Kate B. Francisco and Mrs. Florence Townsend at the former's home, Keepsake Cottage, on Cliff drive, for little Georgette Elterman, celebrating her sixth birthday last week.

Tables were set on the lawn under three large colorful beach umbrellas. The color scheme of pink and green in the gay decorations delighted the little guests. A birthday cake arrived from Los Angeles marked "to Georgette from Joan" her little playmate, and was served with other dainties.

Games were played with prize awards given and London bridge and other sports dear to the childish heart were enjoyed by the children and their elders. Those present were Katherine Durand, Betty MacBird, Cora Bethea, Betty Smith, Barbara and Daisy Martin, Gene Townsend, Junior Elterman, Billy Bethea, Charlie Bethea, Mrs. Mary K. Elterman, Georgette's grandmother, Mrs. W. D. Brotherton, Mrs. George H. Taylor of San Francisco, Mrs. D. B. Durand, Mrs. Ted MacBird and the two hostesses, Mrs. Francisco and Mrs. Townsend.

Entertain Pianist

A delightful informal musical was one of the events of the week when Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Crosby had guests to meet Albert Grimes, visiting pianist from San Francisco, at their home "La Casa, Endantado" in Arch Beach. Mr. Grimes is a student of Kreuger and expects to leave soon for a six years' study trip abroad.

Those who enjoyed the musical evening were Mr. and Mrs. Perry E. McCullough, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Carrillo, Clarence Thomas, Roger Q. Denny, Mr. and Mrs. Grimes, and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby.

Musical Held

Mrs. Fern Burford was hostess Sunday evening to a group of musical folk at her home in Osgood Court, Arch Beach, the occasion being a farewell to Miss Eleanor Mae Spencer, who leaves Monday on a concert tour of the middle west and southern states.

On the musical program which made up most of the evening's entertainment, were Annette Cadec Dyer, who sang two groups of songs, the first in English, the second in French; Fred J. Schwankovsky with modern songs; Leon Burford with violin selections; Mrs. Hortense Rawn with two songs, accompanied by Mrs. Schwankovsky and Mr. Burford; Holly Lash Visel of Orange, accompanied by Mrs. Schwankovsky; and Mrs. Van Houten Robertson, coloratura soprano, professionally known as Mme. Anita Caravana, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Martha Harvin, on the piano. Other singers present were Mrs. LaTure Mayer and Mrs. Louise Henshaw.

Those enjoying the occasion were Mrs. Ella Jute La Piere and daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Elliott, David Tausky, prominent painter; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mayer, Mrs. Louise Henshaw, Miss Ruth Elwell, of Los Angeles, Thomas Gilbert Nottage, Betty Dean Blakey, noted reader; E. W. Striker, Mrs. V. Robertson, Mrs. Martha Harvin, Mrs. Hortense Rawn, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Schwankovsky, Holly Lash Visel, Nelson Visel, Annette Cadec Dyer, Leon Burford and the hostess.

A GREAT STUNT

Two men in an airplane piloted their ship three weeks, two days, one hour, forty-one minutes and eighteen seconds, and they drove a mileage of approximately 41,475 miles.

Now that it has been done, we congratulate the participants and the builders of the plane, which had previously been flown some 70,000 miles. We agree that it is a wonderful thing, but we hope that this is the last of these endurance tests of men. If they want to try out machines, changing men and keeping the engine running, there is no reason why they can't settle to earth, put other men in and go on with their engine tests. However, the idea of limiting the number of men to two, huddled together in a little pit, with one necessarily flying while the other, during the latter part of the time, is forced to look after all needed repairs, getting but little sleep, and their quarters like a pigsty, does not lend itself to commendation of common sense.

There is value in testing out the material and mechanism of an engine, but there is no particular value in men going through such a performance. It was a stunt as far as they were concerned, and we are glad to note that one of them said, "never again for him."

The hours in the air and the previous record of the engine will go far to establish the elements of safety in airplaning. We believe during the war after 18 hours of flying the engines were taken out of the planes and thoroughly overhauled, being rebored, etc. This engine went more than thirty times the distance usually permitted by the army airplanes after being in operation for more than two years. At the same time we are not anxious to ride in a plane that has had no overhauling or reconditioning for a matter of three weeks steady running.

The Atlanta negro who was given 10 days for stealing a ham probably considered that the unkindest cut of all.

FURTHER STUDY OF CRIME

The action by Congress in the last few days of restoring the $250,000 to the appropriation bill, permitting the president's crime commission to continue its investigations not alone of the prohibition conditions, but those conditions relating to all crime, we believe will receive the approval of the people of the country generally.

If there is any subject that needs investigation, analysis and a complete understanding by the people of the United States, it is the general disrespect for law which characterizes our whole national life. It has been said, and said truly that if America has a single heritage to give to the world—a single reason for her existence—it is that her history and institutions are the exponents of liberty, but liberty under law. There is little doubt but what the "liberty" part of it prevails to the n-th degree, but the "under the law" part is being overlooked and forgotten. The facts themselves, the reason for the facts, and the calling of the nation to a realization of the facts is a prime duty.

The prophets of our country, whether they be in the pulpit, on the judge's bench, or in the chief executive's chair should, with a mighty voice, appeal to our people to address themselves to this terrible condition. The prophets of old would call for sackcloth and ashes, days of humiliation, fasting, and of prayer, and if ever a nation needed some heroic methods by which to rivet the mind of the people upon a condition which should be changed, that time is now.

CHANGING THEATER HOUR

Frank Gillmore, president of the Actor's Equity Association has suggested that on one evening a week plays in New York begin at seven or seven-fifteen to accommodate suburbanites who could reach their homes in time for a full night's rest if the plays were over by about 9:30. Several theater managers have pronounced the plan at least worth a trial in an effort to attract people back to the theater.

The seven o'clock moving picture performance is an attraction to many people over the eight-fifteen or eight-thirty theater performance. The American people are hard working and it is very probable have been much influenced in their choice of the movie over the theater by the fact that by attending a performance of the former they can still have a full night's rest and be ready for work in the morning.

In the agonies of competition between the two it is surprising that none have thought of this feature before.

MUSIC DURING VACATION

A Chicago music house is taking advantage of the long vacation to interest children in music. Of course, there is financial reward for the music house if it can interest hundreds of children in music, but it also would be a wonderful thing for the children to have their interest in music aroused at an early age. There is no easier way of doing it, either, than in attracting many of them at one time. They are naturally gregarious. Summertime is no particular reason for doing nothing, for when one is absorbed in an undertaking he forgets the heat.

The publishers keep us interested in books, and make particular appeal to the children. This plan to interest children in music of various kinds may meet with equal success and we may have a nation of musicians yet.

TWO CRIMINALS FOUND GUILTY

That there are some elements of justice in the courts in Los Angeles county is evidenced by the conviction of Morris Lavine and Miss Leontine Johnson for attempted extortion by threatening certain ones with exposure in matters relating to the Julian case.

Certain facts came into the hands of Miss Johnson as secretary to S. C. Lewis, and in partnership with Lavine she proceeded to attempt to "shake down" those upon whom these facts were alleged to reflect. They agreed to sell the whole bunch of evidence for a sum of $75,000, which the victims appeared to accept. The goods were delivered, the money paid, but after the reception of the money Lavine was arrested at the door of the office in which he had received the money. His trial and conviction followed.

There are probably few lower-down crimes in the category than that of blackmail. The attempt to use the fear of exposure of wrongdoing or connection with wrong doing on a victim, and thereby extorting money from him not only is the vilest practice imaginable, and regardless of what the victim has done, is condemned more roundly by society than almost anything of which the victim himself might have been guilty. The district attorney's office in Los Angeles had to try this case twice in order to obtain a conviction, one man holding out in the former trial. In following it up and pursuing it to the end, the district attorney's office performed a distinct service.

Dwight Morrow, we read, sipped a glass of milk at the end of a day's campaigning. From contented Jersey cows, undoubtedly.

FOR A PLACE OF PRIVILEGE

In New York it seems that there is quite a peachment for having one's name in the last in the telephone book. Many people submit bogus names hoping that theirs will be the last number in the book because that is so easy to look up. Some of the names were "Zzyzyvaras," "Zzyzn," and "Zzyz."

The telephone company investigated the various names and rejected the pseudonyms. The last name, which is genuine is: D. Zywoharta.

There is one step, however, which probably none will take. It is to actually change their name to "Zzyzyvaras," making it genuine, in order to have the last number in the book. If there were anyone so foolish the chances are there would be others just as foolish who would outdo them in getting the last combination of letters anyway. Can you imagine being burdened with the name "Zzyzyvaras," without the privilege of having the last name in the telephone book, or even with the privilege?

Let History Decide! All We Want Is Peace and Good Will

San Francisco Chronicle

Years and years ago, when most of us were in knee pants, Poulney Bigelow was an accepted writer in some of our best magazines. His subject being travel his writings were quite harmless and always interesting. The fact that he was a college mate of Kaiser Wilhelm II or something like that was, of course, pretty well advertised, and that helped along.

And then along came the World war. Mr. Bigelow, despite his lifelong friendship with the Kaiser, thought that Wilhelm was responsible for the great international bloodshed, and said so. That, for the time being, was the end of the friendship of the two men in theory—and doubtless in fact if the Kaiser ever learned what Mr. Bigelow thought about the matter.

Now comes Mr. Bigelow with a new idea about Wilhelm's guilt. He has visited the ex-Kaiser in his exile at Doorn and burned the midnight oil with Wilhelm studying documents dealing with the war and what preceded it. Mr. Bigelow says he is not nearly so sure that the Kaiser was responsible and he tells us about the ex-ruler's willingness to have an international court-martial decide just who was responsible.

May God forbid! Doubtless it would be entertaining, but it would be far from beneficial. This war-weary world wants to hear no more about who was guilty and who was not. After the court-martial had sat for a year or two and had rendered a decision probably it would not change anybody's mind anyway.

The war has been over for twelve years. Terrific as the struggle was a great deal of the bitterness between nations has already gone. The victors were chastened quite as severely as the losers and all are willing to forget and forgive. Two hundred years from now historians will decide to their own satisfaction who brought on the war of 1914. Let them. We will not be interested.

Meanwhile, let us have peace on earth and good will toward all men!

Please, Mr. Bigelow, just enjoy your remaining years on earth and let the rest of us do the same.

Music Is Needed In Every City In Country

San Bernardino Sun

John Erskine, who is a musician and educator before he is an author, makes a statement about American music which will please patriots and should give hope to many a struggling young musician.

As president of the Julliard School of Music in New York, says he is trying not only to "teach musicianship" but to "decentralize music." He wants to get good musicians "out of the east and the big centers back into their own sections of the country, where they can turn their talents and education to some use."

"There is more musical and perhaps more artistic ability in the United States than anywhere on earth," he declares. There are musicians all over the country, and they should remain at home or return there after their period of instruction.

He foresees in the future in America, as in Germany, every community of any size having its own modest little orchestra, with groups of excellent musicians gathered in by first-rate conservatories and choral groups, and with thriving opera groups.

Here is quite a different picture from the one often drawn, of a country content with mechanical music and radio. And it is not wholly imaginary. A pretty good start has been made already.

RENUNCIATION

Knocked down frame houses are now being sent to the Arctic.

I've given up my Arctic trip;
I never now shall go
To see the sun at midnight dip
Behind a frozen floe.
I'll never see a polar bear
His furtive form reveal,
Nor hear across the snappy air
The love call of the seal.

I yearned throughout my youthful dreams
To go to Baffin Land,
Where, ranged along the glacial seams,
Long rows of igloos stand.
I knew not what an igloo was,
But hungered just the same
To see a lot of them because
They had that funny name.

But now where roams the caribou
And where the bear carouses—
In fact the whole vast Arctic through,
They're building wooden houses.
And where the lemmings roved in bands
Across the gleaming snows,
Will presently be hot dog stands
And modern speakeasy shows.

What is a land of frozen brooks
Are banked with glacial scoria,
If in this day and age it looks Like Main street in Emporia.
No doubt the mayor would show to me
The band stand in the square;
So Baffin Land I'll never see;
There are no igloos there.

Dollar Sign And Counter Sign

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER and WADDILL CATCHINGS

In the United States women buy at least 80 per cent of all the goods that are bought. They spend over 50 billion dollars a year, reports the United States Bureau of Standards, for food, clothing, shelter and other services alone.

Men enjoy themselves most when they are earning; but women, according to foreign critics, enjoy themselves most when they are yearning, and acquiring the things for which they yearn. Without going into the question of where woman's place is, it must be admitted that she is thoroughly at home in the shop. She buys not only for herself and her children, but as well as for her husband, her father, her brothers, and her male cousins.

A research by Dr. H. L. Hollingsworth, Professor in Columbia University, reveals the fact that the only item that men buy entirely by themselves, without consultation with women, is their own collars. And now that men are wearing shirts with attached collars, even that frail hold on independence is slipping.

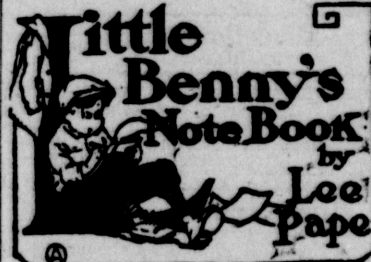

Men are glad of it. For man is not, either by training or inclination, a shopping animal. However competent he is an industrial purchasing agent, he is not competent as a family purchasing agent.

The result is that women largely determine what is bought, and thereby determine what is made. Thus they direct the labor of 80 per cent of the men and determine which producers are allowed to stay in business.

Women do less shopping merely as a pastime than they used to do. Bridge, golf, radios and automobiles have seen to that. The shopper of today is not "just looking." She expects the merchant to save her time by finding out in advance what goods she will want.

She is prepared to give the dollar-sign. She expects the merchant to be prepared to give the counter-sign.

ICE

When water gets cold and freezes
It swells up and turns into ice,
Being why ice takes up more room
Than what it did when it was water.
A very uncomfortable feeling
Would be to have a mouthful of Water turn into ice before you had
Time to open your mouth.

Ice is one of the hardest things
To lift, partly on account of being Heavy and partly on account of Having such slippery edges. A big piece of ice is much easier to lift after its been out in the sun a while. This would be a good bet to make with somebody that didn't know the answer.

There is more ice up around the North Pole than what there is anything else, but on the other hand there are no ice boxes to put it in and no food to put in them even if there was. This proves a lot of things would be useful if they only happened to be where they would do more good.

Ice men generally wear red sweaters and probably have better manners than what most men would have if they had to carry heavy pieces of other peoples ice around all day.

Eating too much ice is supposed to be bad for the inside of the stomach, and falling on too much of it is liable to be bad for the outside.

In the Long Ago

From the Register Files
14 Years Ago Today

JULY 5, 1916

At a meeting of the city trustees last night it was decided to put a fountain for humans in place of the drinking fountain for animals, at Fourth and French streets, which had been removed for repairs.

Among those who rushed to the gates of the Southern Pacific station at Los Angeles yesterday afternoon to see for a few minutes loved ones who were passing through the city as soldiers enroute from Camp Johnson to "somewhere on the border," were Col. S. H. Finley, and Mrs. J. L. McBride.

To celebrate the closing of the saloons and liquor houses at Newport Beach and Balboa, the "drys" will have a big picnic at Newport, July 11.

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

THE BIOLOGY OF WAR

The other day I suggested that the biologist is one of the invaluable friends of peace, although he may never figure in anti-war agitations.

I suggested that, as war demands the destruction of mineral resources as a faster and faster rate and on a larger and larger scale, we are fast approaching a time when war will be impractical from the point of view of mineral resources, and that it is the biologist who is compelling the men of the war colleges to see this.

Alongside the biologist stands the biologist as a friend of peace. Several important studies are now under way that should throw new light on the biological effects of war.

Only the biologist can finally tell us with authority whether in modern wars mankind loses its worst and preserves its best or loses its best and preserves its worst.

If investigation proves beyond question that war selects for death our best and selects for survival our worst, then society that declines to listen to the guesses of pacifist propagandists may listen to the sober biologist.

We know what war does to the armies engaged, or at least we think we do.

We do not know as accurately as we should what war does to the civil population of the belligerent nations.

And we do not know as accurately as we should what war does to the neutral populations in a gigantic conflict.

We know that big armaments mean high taxes.

We know that high taxes mean high living costs.

We do realize with equal clearness what these high living costs do to the marriage and birth rates of our superior stocks?

When expensive peace-time military establishments are maintained, do we know what effect is registered in delayed marriages among those who serve in the armies?

Do we know the ratio of births to deaths in the various biological levels, from mad stocks to good stocks, during war time?

Do we know whether or not injuries, disease, malnutrition, and nervous shocks that follow war affects the germ plasm and thus register their results in future generations?

Do we know whether or not people recover from whatever biological injury may do?

These are some of the questions the biologists are trying to answer, and they may have real effect on war and peace.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

CRUEL CHILDREN

Children are cruel without knowing it. They have not the slightest conception of what they mean to their mothers and fathers and so have not the least glimmer of an idea of how they pain them.

As the children grow the parents weave in all sorts of dreams about them. They delight in entering into the children's lives by means of their school work, their vacation plans, their life plans. "We will do this and this," says father, beaming kindly upon his son. "And when you are graduated we'll do this and this."

"Yes," agrees the lad, and the father and mother move along with the boy and the girl, never dreaming of the tragedy just ahead. One day son says, very casually, "I don't believe I'll go to Starry Towers after all. I hear they haven't a very good course there, the masters have changed and, anyway, I think I can do better abroad. I shan't need any help. Dad, you've helped me enough now. I'm going on my own. I've been offered a job over there and I can work and study at the same time. I hope you don't mind?"

Hope we don't mind, when they have smashed the beautiful world we had builded about them and ourselves. Don't need us any more and we so counted on being needed. Going abroad. All set and not a word to us of the plan until it was full-fledged and the ship was waiting at the pier. Don't mind?

With a great effort we clear our throats sufficiently to say, "Why, not at all, son. When do you say you start? So soon? Well, mother will have to know. She'll be wanting to get some things ready."

"I don't need a thing, Dad. I've arranged for all that I'll just hop off in the morning."

No. They don't mean to be cruel. They don't know they are cruel. They are all right. They are driving ahead to get a hold on life just as we did. They are totally unaware of the roots we have set in their lives. They would not understand how we came to set them there anyway. Not until they stand desolate, as we stand before them, not until their own children casually mention that they hop off tomorrow, will they know what they meant to us and what they did to us that morning.

It is very hard to have a daughter say, quite suddenly—it is always suddenly no matter how long deferred—"Mother, I've changed my mind about my work. I've decided I might as well get married now as later. Al has quite a bit saved up and he has a good job as manager in the city. If you and Dad don't mind I'd like to get married next month."

Well, we have no right to feel torn and hurt. We knew that the children must grow up and go away. We always knew it. Better turn to and help them get started. Then, afterward, you can begin planning again. There are the grandchildren. They'll help some. And cheer up. The children are not cruel. And you would not blame them for not understanding something they know nothing about?

ON THE SIDELINES

Which may or may not be in accord with the views of The Register

By Horace McPhee

WHAT CAUSES THAT?
Of all California's representatives in both Senate and House, Congressman Welch was the only one who voted against the tariff bill on its final passage.

In the matter of his vote on the tariff, Congressman Welch of California would appear to be in a similar attitude to that of the city councilman who said he was "in favor of the ordinance but opposed to its enforcement."

But, bless your heart, Congressman Welch voted with the rest of the California delegation and the Republican majority on the various items of the bill as they were individually considered in the House and for all the conference reports.

When the measure first came out of the House on May 28 last year with rates much higher than the bill just passed and signed Congressman Welch voted for it.

Congressman Welch's only vote against the tariff bill was at the end, after the measure had been completed and was certain of passage.
